Probers Find Loafing on Surprise Visit To Brewster

3 Committeemen Blame Previous Managements for Absence of Morale

By Mary Spargo

Arriving in a Navy transport plane for a surprise visit at the Johnsville plant of the Brewster Aeronautial Corp. yesterday, members of the House Naval Affairs Subcommittee saw, they said upon their return here, "a slow motion picture," with male employes loafing while pretty girls in afternoon frocks stood about admiring their manicures.

The three representatives, Hebert (Democrat) of Louisiana, Maas of Minnesota and Grant of Indiana, both Republicans, have been active in the two months' committee investigation into reasons for past production failures at the Brewster plants. Together with Richard Wells, assistant counsel, they paid their first visit to the plant preparatory to completing a report which will determine the fate of the Navy's contract for Corsair fighter planes assembled at Johnsville.

Voice Dissatisfaction

While the three would not comment on how their visit might affect the recommendations of their report, they made no secret of their dissatisfaction with the plant of which Henry J. Kaiser, war production genius, became unpaid president October 7.

Hebert, chairman of the group, bluntly said,

"I have returned disgusted, discouraged and depressed."

He and his colleagues insisted there was no spirit or morale at Brewster.

All were unanimous in asserting that if it were not for the war and the urgency of plane production, they would recommend cancellation of Brewster's contracts with the Navy at once.

Seemed Afraid of Speed

Maas, ranking minority member of the full committee, said:

"The whole place had the dreamy quality of a slow-motion picture. The workers were acting as if they were afraid to show any sign of speed or interest in their work. There is a total absence of spirit and effort on the part of all the workers. It is apparent there has been no fundamental change in attitude throughout the plant."

Hebert, former city editor of a New Orleans newspaper, remarked:

"As I walked through the plant and observed the attitude of the people I shuddered to think that at that moment boys were fighting and dying, waiting for planes which

Landing Craft Output Given Right of Way

By the Associated Press

Invasion craft have been put ahead of everything else in the Nation's arsenal, it was learned last night, with the granting of an overriding priority order giving them the right of way over planes, high-octane gasoline and all other "urgency" production programs.

Four thousand prime contractors will be turning out the landing craft, authoritative sources said. With their subcontractors, the total number of manufacturing firms involved in the vast drive will be approximately 20,000.

The number of self-propelled landing barges, amphibious "ducks," tank-landing vessels and other invasion craft was not divulged, but the program was understood to exceed the similar "big push" on landing craft last fall and winter that preceded the Mediterranean invasions.

In that instance, about 750 million dollars' worth of the vessels

Schools, Offices Hit by Epidemic Of Mild Flu

Federal Workers, Students Affected; Not Deadly 1918 Type

An epidemic of mild flu and respiratory ailments is sweeping the Capital, affecting thousands of school children and government workers, Federal and District health officials reported yesterday.

The students and government workers are especially susceptible to the "bug," it was pointed out, their constant association with crowds of people—at school, at work in crowded streetcars and buses and, in the case of the government workers, in rooming houses—bringing them into regular contact with other infected persons.

Health officers for the District Board of Education have reported increasingly large numbers of absences from school classrooms during the past seven days.

In Stuart Junior High School alone, 20 cases of communicable throat and chest ailments were isolated last Friday, with 30 more added today.

Not "1918" Variety

The influenza outbreak, described by District Health Officer Dr. George C. Ruhland, as "not pandemic," or of the fatal 1918 variety, apparently reached its peak to date last weekend. Druggists and physicians were swamped with phone calls for advice and prescriptions for the newly-stricken.

U. S. Public Health Service spokesmen also emphasized that

Chiefs Agree On Timing Of Final Push

By John F. Chester and William McGaffin

Cairo, Dec. 6 (AP).—Leaders of the greatest Allied powers—the United States, Russia and Britain—in historic conference in ancient Persia reached full agreement to crush Germany by concerted blows from the east, west and south, it was disclosed today, and laid plans for a world family of democratic nations to "banish the scourge and terror of war for many generations."

This most significant of all wartime meetings, bringing President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin together for the first time, was held in Teheran, capital of storied Iran (Persia) for four days, from November 28 to December 1.

The conference, further tipping the scales of defeat against Germany by incontestable unity of three chiefs of state said to have met "in extreme cordiality," came as the Allies massed strength in the west and in the Mediterranean, with Russia already pressing in from the east.

Further indicating that the blows from west and south may not long be delayed, the topmost military chieftains of America and Britain pooled their genius again in meeting from Friday through today in Cairo after returning from Teheran, Churchill joined them. The whereabouts of President Roosevelt since he left Teheran December 2 were not disclosed. Stalin's safe return to Moscow was announced Monday night.

Premier Stalin, in a toast at a Teheran dinner, said: "Without American production, the United Nations could never have won the war." He put United States warplane production currently at 10,000 a month, England's at 3,500 and Russia's at 3,000.

Inonu, Roosevelt And Churchill Reported Meeting

London, Dec. 6 (INS).—The British press association said tonight it is "believed" a conference of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Turkey's President Ismet Inonu "is now in progress" in North Africa.

The article declared the new "deliberations may be almost as important in their effect on the course and conduct of the war" as the Teheran and Cairo talks.

The Germans are reported concentrating large bodies of troops in southeastern Bulgaria along Turkey's European frontier.

The Germans reported Inonu was accompanied to Africa by Marshal Fevzi Cakmak, chief of the Turkish general staff, indicating military operations were being discussed.

Capital Sees Parley Ending 2d Front Issue

By Edward T. Folliard

The long and sometimes bitter argument over a "second front" in Europe is dead. America and Britain, with Gen. George C. Marshall in command of the invasion army, will strike from the "west" to get at the German army and destroy it.

That, together with the promise of synchronized United Nations blows from the "east" and "south," is the big news of the Teheran conference, as seen from Washington.

Secretary of State Hull emphasized that "these concerted plans will undoubtedly result in making effective to the fullest extent the fighting strength of all the United Nations."

The "scope and timing" of the operations against Germany were agreed upon by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and

Teheran, Persia, Dec. 2 (Delayed.)—The long-awaited rendezvous among the "big three" took place in this capital, 1100 miles from the nearest enemy airfield but only a few moments' flight over the snowy ramparts of the Alborz Mountains of Russia's southern frontier.

At its conclusion Stalin seemed at last to be satisfied with his Allies and the manner in which they synchronized their program with his own for the military campaigns that lie ahead.

With Roosevelt installed in the Russian Embassy as Stalin's house guest—Stalin having moved to the second building within the vast Russian compound in the center of the city—plenary sessions began last Sunday. Yanks Capture Heights Above Road to Rome

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Dec. 6 (AP).—American troops, fighting yard by yard up slopes too steep for supply mules, have captured three more heights in the Mount Maggiore area from which they can look down upon the German stronghold of Cassino and the valley beyond leading to Rome, the Allied command announced today.

There, too, the fighting was violent and the Nazis appeared determined to halt the break-through at all costs. The enemy threw new reinforcements into the battle, including mechanized grenadiers, and

Blow Termed Heavy Raid; 11 Jap Ships Sunk by Subs

Navy Says Strong Task Units Attacked Isles; War's Toll of Nip Craft Now 516

By John G. Norris

American naval forces have struck a heavy new blow against the Japs in the mid-Pacific, attacking enemy bases in the Marshall Islands with "strong carrier task forces," the Navy announced last night.

At the same time, the Navy reported that United States submarines have sunk 11 Nipponese vessels in new raids on their Pacific supply lines.

Few details were given in these "second Pearl Harbor anniversary announcements" of offensive action against the Japanese.

A brief Pacific Fleet communique, issued simultaneously here and at Pearl Harbor, merely stated that the Marshalls had been attacked by strong carrier forces Saturday, and said that no further information has been reported due to the necessity of the task forces maintaining radio silence.

Tokyo Broadcasts Report

Thus there was no official word as to whether the attack was the spearhead of an invasion of the Marshalls, which are northwest of our newly won bases in the Gilberts, or was a heavy raid, designed to soften them up for later operations.

Earlier in the day, Japanese imperial headquarters in Tokyo broadcast a report that "a fleet of 100 carrier-based Allied planes" had raided the Marshalls Saturday, and admitted that they had caused some damage.

The enemy claimed to have shot down 20 of the attacking planes, to have pursued the task force and sunk a medium-sized aircraft carrier and a large cruiser, and to have damaged a large cruiser and a cruiser.

Observers here concluded from the American statement that "strong" carrier forces made the attack, and from the enemy admission of "some" damage, that the important Jap bases in these mandated islands must have been heavily blasted.

Believed Raid, Not Invasion

The assumption here, pending later reports, was that the operation was a raid and not an invasion of the Marshalls. It is believed that an amphibious move against the latter will await completion of bomber airfields on Tarawa and Makin Islands in the Gilberts.

There have been recent raids on the Marshalls by land-based bombers of the Army Seventh Air Force, but these probably came from more remote bases in the Ellice Islands. There have been no recent carrier-plane attacks on the Jap strongholds in the Marshall group.

In reporting the sinking of 11 additional Jap ships by our Pacific

U. S. Work Force Slated to Total 66.3 Millions by Next July

By Ben W. Gilbert

The Nation has started on "the last, but hardest and most crucial lap of manpower mobilization," William Haber, assistant executive director of the War Manpower Commission stated yesterday after revealing that the national work force is scheduled to rise to an all-time high of 66.3 million persons (including the armed services and agriculture) by July 1, 1944, from 64.8 millions last July.

Haber announced revisions of WMC manpower estimates which revealed that munitions industries employment is scheduled to expand 10.7 millions by July, 1944, instead of 11.6 millions, a saving of 900,000 attributed to curtailment of munitions programs.

However, because of a previous overestimate of the amount non-war employment would decline during the 1944 fiscal year period (July to July), a total of 1.5 million persons must be added to the work force, instead of the 1.3 millions previously scheduled, Haber said.

Haber pointed out that the manpower job—increasing our armed forces from 500,000 in July, 1940, reducing the unemployed from 9 million in 1940 to about 700,000 currently, and increasing the total work force to unprecedented levels—was accomplished without the use of national service (labor draft legislation.

He expressed the opinion that the job could be finished without

Armed Forces Increased 700,000 Since July

The armed forces have increased only 700,000 since July 1 to a November 1 level of 10 millions, figures released by the War Manpower Commission revealed yesterday, indicating that they will fail to meet their year-end goal of 10.8 millions by a substantial amount.

It was pointed out that current monthly calls of 300,000 for the armed forces allow about 70,000 for replacements. On this basis the estimated year-end net strength of the armed forces would be about 10,460,000, or 340,000 short of the goal.

Officials cautioned that current estimates could be 100,000 in error, but acknowledged that a deficit of 200,000 to 300,000 or possibly more is expected.

Meeting Tomorrow

Halleck Reported GOP Choice To Head Congressional Drive

By Robert C. Albright

Representative Charles A. Halleck, 43-year-old Indiana Republican, last night appeared the certain choice of the House GOP to head the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

HALLECK

The important party post, vacant since the death of the late Representative J. William Ditter of Pennsylvania, will be filled at a special meeting of the committee tomorrow.

Keen interest has developed in the meeting in view of the Republican drive to win control of the House as a minimum 1944 campaign goal. Halleck's name will be placed in nomination by Representative Leonard W. Hall (Republican), of New York. One generally well-informed party spokesman predicted his election will be "unanimous."

A member of the House since January, 1935, Halleck caught the national eye in 1940 when he placed Wendell L. Willkie's name in nomination at the Philadelphia convention of the Republican Party. His speech helped stampede the convention for Willkie. During Willkie's arduous presidential campaign, Halleck was a steady counsellor and frequently traveled with him on the "Willkie Special."

Since the 1940 election, however, Halleck has frequently differed with the 1940 ticket leader on party as well as some national issues and is not now known as a "Willkie man." Friends say that his personal relations with the party's last nominee continue good,

Japs Cling to Tarawa Pillbox Despite Gasoline, Dynamite

Tarawa, Gilbert Islands, Nov. 24 (Delayed).—A cleanup party of United States Marines on this central Pacific island today used hand grenades, dynamite, gasoline, machine guns and rifle fire in an effort to flush several Japanese snipers from a heavily fortified pillbox.

EARL WILSON

The action was typical of the tenacity with which the Japs hang to their concealed positions.

All around the area working parties were clearing up the air strip, carrying ammunition and resting after a hard night's fighting.

Several shots nicked a man as he walked down the beach. The cleanup party closed in, firing at the opening with hundreds of rounds of ammunition. As the men advanced, more shots rang out.

Several grenades were tossed in, followed by more firing from 20 feet away. Again an advance, and more firing. Men covered the opening to prevent an escape, while others sent for dynamite.

Corpl. Emmet D. Rhoden of Kerrville, Tex., bundled up 12 sticks of dynamite, went to the top of the mound and dropped the charge. Smoke billowed up. Again an advance, and again shots from the Japs inside.

We sat down on cocoanut logs just around from the opening and our plans for the destruction of the German forces," declared the joint communique released here and signed simply by "Roosevelt, Stalin, Churchill."

"We have reached complete agreement as to the scope and timing of operations which will be undertaken from the east, west and south.

"The common understanding which we have here reached guarantees that victory will be ours," it asserted in measured words of doom for Hitlerism.

As to the peace, "We are sure that our concord will make it an enduring peace," and "We shall seek the cooperation and active participation of all nations, large and small, whose peoples in heart and mind are dedicated, as are our own peoples, to the elimination of tyranny and slavery, oppression and intolerance. We will welcome them as they may choose to come into a world family of democratic nations."

"No power on earth can prevent our destroying the German armies by land, their U-boats by sea, and their war plants from the air," the triumvirate asserted. "Our attacks will be relentless and increasing."

In another declaration, the conferees pledged wartime and postwar aid to Iran, and invited the assistance of Iran and other peace-loving nations in establishing and maintaining peace "in accordance with the principles of the Atlantic Charter."

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill flew the 1250 miles from Cairo to Iran after the Pacific conference here the week before with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek which, under the shadow of the Pyramids, charted the ruin of Japan.

The scene at Teheran—where the Nazis had unsuccessfully dropped agents by parachute—was marked by thousands of Allied troops, armor and guns, by Stalin honoring his Allied friends in smiling, glass-clinking toasts, by a party on the occasion of the sixty-ninth birthday of the ebullient Churchill, and by presentation of a handsome British-made "Salingrad sword" to Stalin.

Assert Allies Are Unstoppable

These and other details were described in dispatches by Lloyd Stratton, president of the Associated Press Limited, British subsidiary of the Associated Press. Stratton and Edward Angly of the Chicago Sun were the only two American correspondents who reached Teheran.

Stalin in a toast at one dinner declared that "without American production, the United Nations could never have won the war."

President Roosevelt addressed United States troops who are shuttling supplies into Russia, telling them the conference had made progress in its objectives of "winning the war just as fast as we possibly can" and of trying to "plan for a world for us and for our children when war would cease to be a necessity."

To British soldiers, Churchill said "I hope and trust the decisions we are making may play their part in shortening the war."

One of the most marked aspects of the conference, which brought President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin face to face for the first time at 3 p. m. on Sunday, November 28, was the friendly and intimate atmosphere in which the three leaders moved. An observer said that atmosphere apparently augured well for the future.

Stratton described an outstandingly colorful tribute to the friendship, the presentation on November 29 of the Stalingrad sword, the work a London craftsman, by Churchill on behalf of King George VI to Stalin. It was, Churchill said, in memory of the "steel-hearted citizens of Stalingrad," the bloody, ruined city where Soviet Russia heroically resisted, and then sprang disaster upon Hitler, destroying his Sixth Army.

At Churchill's birthday dinner party, November 30, when he received gifts of antiques and Persian art, Stalin, joining in each of some 50 toasts, drank to "my fighting friend, Churchill," and "my fighting friend, Roosevelt." Churchill pledged a toast to "Stalin the Great."

But these were social highlights during four days devoted earnestly to tripower discussions of the highest importance, shaping both the course of the war and the world to come. The first plenary session came Sunday, after the initial meeting of Stalin and Roosevelt, who were joined an hour later by Churchill.

With Stalin came but two high adviser, Foreign Secretary Vyacheslav Molotov and Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, while Roosevelt and Churchill were accompanied by large staffs of star military and diplomatic leaders.

The fact of the conference was fully known to the Axis in advance but the Germans, significantly, could do nothing about it. Most of the Nazi agents dropped among the tribes before the meeting were said to have been captured, and no gap was left in the cordon of protection thrown about the city.

Armored cars and trucks nosed about the city of Mongolian and modern architecture, guards with tommy guns at the ready patrolled the streets, United States military police guarded main streets and squares, and overhead a canopy of fighter planes and bombers flew constant vigil. For five hours on Monday, Teheran's business came virtually to a halt during the meeting at the Russian Embassy, with traffic stopped, and pedestrians herded into doorways, alleys and shops.

Even attending servants carried small automatic weapons.

The choice of Teheran, built on a high plateau surrounded by snow-capped peaks, was noteworthy. It carried acknowledgment of Russia's tremendous expenditure in manpower in driving back the Nazi invaders, since Teheran is the nearest big city on occupied belligerent soil.

For Stalin, whose armies threw the Germans out of the Caucasus, selection of Teheran meant he would be away from close, active direction of Soviet forces only a minimum of time, since Teheran is only some 230 miles from the Russian frontier at the border of the Republic of Azerbaijan. There was symbolism, too, in the fact that the three Allies already are cooperating in Iran, using it as a supply funnel.

It was Stalin's first trip outside Russia's boundaries since 1917.

The final session of the epochal conference was held Wednesday at the Soviet Embassy. Military problems had been settled. The three leaders sat down at luncheon, talked throughout the afternoon, had dinner together and continued their discussion until 10:30 p. m. Then, apparently on the most friendly terms, they said goodbye. At intervals they were joined by their high diplomatic advisers.

At that time they apparently knocked down their major differences—obviously dozens of minor differences were not settled if even discussed—and emerged with the outline for an "enduring peace."

Roosevelt Visits Troops

On Thursday, December 2, President Roosevelt visited American troops before he and Churchill left by plane.

There was no mention made, apparently, of a "second front," and it appeared that that question had been fully settled. Also, no mention was made in the communique of "unconditional surrender" of Germany, nor was an expected "surrender or die" ultimatum given Germany.

But the threat to and worry for Hitler ran unmistakably through the entire communique.

The three declared their meeting in the capital of their ally, Iran, had "shaped and confirmed our common policy. We expressed our determination that our nations shall work together in the war and in the peace that will follow."

Then came the pregnant words of concerted action to burst upon Germany from three directions.

Looking to the future, the national chieftains said "we recognize fully the supreme responsibility resting upon us and all the United Nations to make a peace which will command the good will of the overwhelming masses of the peoples of the world and banish the source and terror of war for many generations."

It concluded:

"From these friendly conferences we look with confidence to the day when all the peoples of the world may live free lives untouched by tyranny and according to their varying desires and their own consciences.

"We came here with hope and determination. We leave here friends in fact, in spirit and in purpose."

As for Iran, the three governments recognized her aid in the war, and pledged her continued economic assistance.

In postwar years, they agreed with the Iranian government that "any economic problem confronting Iran at the close of hostilities should receive full consideration along with those of the other members of the United Nations by conferences of international agencies held or created to deal with international economic matters."

The three governments "count upon the participation of Iran together with all other peace-loving nations in the establishment of international peace, security and prosperity after the war in accordance with the principles of the Atlantic Charter, to which all four governments have continued to subscribe," the announcement declared.

The who's who among the headliners for the United States and the United Kingdom at the conference:

United States: Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff; Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Army air chief; Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, chief of Army service forces; Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet and chief of naval operations; Admiral William D. Leahy, President Roosevelt's chief of staff; Harry Hopkins, the President's official adviser; W. Averell Harriman, Ambassador to Russia, and John G. Winant, Ambassador to Britain.

Great Britain: Gen. smoked cigarettes while more dynamite was sent for. Then, not 50 feet away, Pvt. John Jennings, 19, of Columbia, Miss., fired at a Jap who had been hiding in a hole, apparently for several days. His shot went through the Jap's eye. On the beach 100 yards, another Jap sniper was shot amid much yelling and shooting from the Marines.

Meanwhile, the dynamite came up. This time the blast blew a helmet out of the opening. We thought surely the Japs must be dead by this time. No so. Some rations were tossed out, and then a grenade.

Gasoline was poured in and ignited. More grenades were tossed. A Japanese interpreter got near the hole and yelled for the men inside to surrender so that they would not be killed. The men inside chattered for a few moments and then we heard the muffled boom of a grenade as they committed suicide.

fleet submarines, the Navy revealed that one was a large tanker and the others were freighters, one small and the others medium sized.

This latest "bag" brought the announced total of Nipponese craft reported blasted by our subs in two years of war to 516 vessels of all types. Of the number 366 are definitely listed as sunk, 36 as probbaly sunk and 114 as damaged.

Neither the Americans nor the Japanese reports of the attack on the Marshalls mentioned the bases raided, but the Japs are known to be strongly established at a number of points, notably Wotje, Jaluit, Mili, Kwajalein, Roi and Taroa.

Some of these atolls were the target of the first American offensive action in the war. Carrier-based planes and warships under Admiral William F. Halsey raided the islands January 31, 1942. Since then sereval similar raids have been made.

The mid-Pacific coral islands, which Japan has held under mandate for more than 20 years, lie about 400 miles north of the Gilberts and some 2000 miles southwest of Hawaii. They are believed to be even more strongly fortified than Tarawa in the Gilberts, captured by the Japs two years ago, and won back last month after a bloody three-day battle.

Premier Stalin. Like all Allied war plans, however, they will have to be announced from the mouths of guns.

An Anglo-American "second front" this winter is not ruled out, but military men admit there are grave disadvantages involved. Winter brings stormy weather to the English Channel. This would mean high surf and difficulty in landing on the beaches. Also it might militate against adequate air cover. But even if these were surmounted, it would be tough going for the Allied invaders once they got ashore.

The one big advantage of a winter invasion would be the long nights, which, together with fog, might contribute toward surprise landings.

Summer weather would make landings easier and also would be welcomed by the Allied fliers who will have to blast a way for the troops. But here also there is a disadvantage: the short summer nights lessen the chances of surprise.

Actually, there is no "ideal" time for invading Northern France, the Low Countries or Norway.

Food for Nazi Though

The question of weather does not loom so large in some other theaters or potential theaters. In this connection the Germans will certainly ponder that part of the Teheran communique which mentioned Allied operations from the "south." This could mean Italy; but it could also mean southern France or the Balkans. Even as the Big Three were meeting, the Germans were reported to be massing troops near the Turkish frontier.

The Teheran declaration was not quite the "political block buster" that some had expected. German propagandists, for example, had been proceeding on the theory that the Big Three would try to drive a wedge between the German people and the Nazi leadership. They did no such thing. Instead, they talked a language that the Germans can best understand.

They said that the Allies, hitting from all directions, were going to smash the German army. That has always been the goal, but the big air offensive and talk about "psychological warfare" has sometimes obscured it.

Hitler conquered 10 countries with his army. His objective in Russia was not to gain territory but to knock out the Red army. If he had achieved that, he would have had all the lebensraum his covetous heart could desire. Likewise, if his own army is defeated, he and Germany are finished. That obvious fact, it was believed here, accounted for the failure of the "big three" to reiterate the words "unconditional surrender" in their declaration.

The Teheran conference, judging from overseas reports, was primarily a military conference, three-fourths of the time being dedicated to the problems of coordinating strategy and drawing up a master-plan for Germany's defeat. The rest of time was given over to political problems.

Secretary Hull, in his statement, emphasized the military above the political, saying:

"The conference of the chiefs of government at Cairo and Teheran have naturally attracted keen and universal attention because of the widespread importance and significance of the discussions and decisions.

"At both of these conferences military plans were concerted for the destruction of the Axis forces on all fronts. It should be welcome news to all United Nations that in the European theater complete agreement has been reached 'as to the scope and timing of the operations to be undertaken from the east, west and south'."

Don't Delay Subsidy Vote, Jones Pleads

By Christine Sadler

In the name of 1944 food production plans, War Food Administrator Marvin Jones yesterday asked Congress not to delay its vote on the subsidy issue.

A 60-day postponement, suggested by members apparently eager to sound out the home folk at Christmastime, would create confusion among farmers and might seriously hamper their programs for next year, Jones told the Senate Banking Committee.

J. B. Hutson, president of the Commodity Credit Corporation, also urged an early decision and joined with the food administrator in condemning the move to outlaw subsidies after December 31.

Farm bloc leaders said later they would press for conclusion of committee hearings by Thursday with a view to getting the bill to the Senate floor next week.

New Milk Plan Urged

Charles W. Holman, executive secretary of the National Cooperatives Milk Producers Federation, asked that the bill to kill subsidies be passed—but declared that if they should be continued the new milk subsidy machinery should be changed.

He charged the Government has 125,000 persons busy tracking down three million dairy farmers and getting them to make out sales reports so they can get their subsidy checks.

"The county courthouses are filling up again with stenographers working on subsidy forms. If all the farmers eligible to get payments participate in the program, the total paid to them will be 350 million dollars rather than the 220 at first estimated," he declared.

Pay Through Destributors

Holman would have the subsidies paid through the distriubtors—if at all—as an aid to the farmers and a saving to the Government. He said they could be handled in the Federal milk marketing areas just as the direct milk subsidy is handled in four metropolitan areas now, contending that while the Government calls the payments "dairy feed payments," they are made on the basis of amount of milk and butterfat sold.

Congresswoman Mary T. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, entered the subsidy fight at a press conference at which she declared, "American housewives are staging a revolt against a lobby-ridden Congress . . . They see in the attempt to kill food subsidies a threat to the American home and an outrage to the soldiers who are sent off to fight in the war in the name of freedom from want while their loved ones are left at the mercy of food profiteers and inflationers."

She said she has received hundreds of letters and telegrams asking that subsidies be continued and only three messages opposed to them. Senator Wagner of New York, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, has received more than 6,000 individual messages in favor of subsidies, she said.

Consumer group representatives will appear before the committee Thursday and will hold their own meeting on Capitol Hill the same day under the guidance of Representative Scanlon (Democrat), of New York.

Ciano Reported Executed as Traitor

Bern, Dec. 6 (AP).—An unconfirmed report from the Swiss-Italian frontier tonight said Count Galeazzo Ciano, former Fascist Foreign Minister of Italy, had been executed by a firing squad today as a traitor to the old regime of Benito Mussolini, his father-in-law.

(The German news agency DNB broadcast a denial, quoting "competent Italian quarters" in Nazi-occupied milan. DNB said "the trial against Count Ciano has not begun yet.")

The Frontier report, said both Mussolini and his daughter Edda, the wife of the count, refrained from intervening in Ciano's behalf.

The Swiss agency said the trial was supposed to have been held in northern Italy. Ciano was declared to have conducted himself bravely at the trial and the execution.

Text of 'Big 3' Statement on Iran Meeting

London, Dec. 6 (AP).—Following is the text of the declaration of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin at the conclusion of their Teheran conference:

We, the President of the United States of America, the Prime Minister of Great Britain and the Premier of the Soviet Union, have met these four days past in this capital of our ally Iran and have shaped and confirmed our common policy. We expressed our determination that our nations shall work together in the war and in the peace that will follow.

As to the war, our military staffs have joined in our roundtable discussions and we have concerted our plans for the destruction of the German forces. We have reached complete agreement as to the scope and timing of operations which will be undertaken from the east, west and south.

The common understanding which we have here reached guarantees that victory will be ours.

And as to the peace, we are sure that our concord will make it an enduring peace. We recognize fully the supreme responsibility resting upon us and all the United Nations to make a peace which will command the good will of the overwhelming masses of the peoples of the world and banish the scourge and terror of war for many generations.

With our diplomatic advisers we have surveyed the problems of the future. We shall seek the cooperation and active participation of all nations, large and small, whose peoples in heart and mind are dedicated, as are our own peoples, to the elimination of tyranny and slavery, oppression and intolerance. We will welcome them as they may choose to come into a world family of democratic nations.

No power on earth can prevent our destroying the German armies by land, their U-boats by sea and their war plants from the air. Our attacks will be relentless and increasing.

From these friendly conferences we look with confidence to the day when all the peoples of the world may live free lives untouched by tyranny and according to their varying desires and their own consciences.

We came here with hope and determination. We leave here friends in fact, in spirit and in purpose.

Signed at Teheran, December 1, 1943

STALIN,
CHURCHILL.

Economy Report Shows Navy Lead In New Employes

The Navy Department led all Federal departments in the number of employes added between September 30 and October 30 with a total of 15,399, it was announced yesterday by the Byrd Joint Economy Committee.

The War Department in the same length of time has eliminated 15,246 workers, Chairman Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia pointed out in a report to the Senate.

Since September, 27 agencies have increased the number of employes by 20,644, the statement declared. Other increases were: Commerce, 909; National War Labor Board, 524; General Accounting Office, 646.

Teheran Pact Seen as Dashing Nazi Hopes for Peace Deal

London, Dec. 6 (AP).—The three-power declaration of Teheran was viewed in London tonight as a crushing blow to German hopes for a negotiated peace.

Likewise there was encouragement for those who see the future welfare of the world dependent on British-Soviet-American leadership.

The British foreign office withheld comment, but the authoritative Reuters diplomatic correspondent hailed the Teheran communique as "Germany's military death warrant."

German propaganda took the line that both an Allied invasion of western Europe and a Russian winter offensive now are to be expected, but that Germany is well prepared to resist and shortly would retaliate for destructive Allied air raids on German cities.

The German radio alleged that the "big three" plotted at Teheran to impose a fantastic reparations bill on Germany—600 billion dollars—and "since it is realized this never can be paid, the Allies intend to compensate themselves by confiscating German industry and post-war production."

Stalin Seemed Coolest One In Entire Galaxy, Writer Says

airplanes Saturday.

Stalin Returns Home

Today, Stalin, who is said never to have been in an airplane until he came to Teheran, returned to his vast homeland. Separately Roosevelt and Churchill winged their ways southward.

Though Roosevelt and Churchill each had brought to Teheran their topmost military figures and an impressive roster of diplomats whom they drew from Moscow posts as well as from London and Washington, Stalin was content to take to the big table with him only his Foreign Minister and one military man, Marshal Klemente Voroshilov, hero of Stalingrad.

By all accounts, and I've talked to many of the lesser but intimately treated lights among the delegations, the first meeting of Roosevelt and Stalin, which took place soon after the President moved from his own legation to Russia's on Sunday afternoon, was cordial. Only an interpreter was with them.

As the acquaintanceship began, evidences of increasing friendliness were manifested as the days passed. The two men met often, sometimes by themselves, sometimes with Churchill.

At other times they met in plenary military sessions or at nightly dinners which were of such informality that on at least two occasions, including Churchill's birthday party, Roosevelt wore street clothes. Stalin stuck to his new marshal's uniform, while Churchill favored uniforms by day and dinner jacket in the evening.

To my eyes and to those of every other man who saw him and to whom I talked, Stalin throughout seemed the coolest and surest person in this whole glittering gathering.

The midnineteenth century Russian Embassy building was given over entirely to President Roosevelt. Back 100 yards or so beyond a grove of trees Stalin, his Foreign Minister, Molotov, and Voroshilov had their quarters in a second building within the compound. Outside the compound walls soldiers with tommy guns and machine guns paced American military police drawn from the Persian Gulf Service Command, which gets the lend-lease supplies to Russia's main delivery door, maintained a vigil in the square one-story biulding in which the President stayed.

And, of course, Michael Reilly and his White House Secret Service details were unobstrusively open-eyed everywhere. President Roosevelt's closest civilian adviser, Harry Hopkins, also had quarters in the Russian Legation as did the President's son-in-law, Maj. John Boettiger, fresh from Allied Military government talks in Italy.

Also ensconced in the Russian Embassy were Col. Elliott Roosevelt in charge of an army reconnaissance photograph unit and Hopkins' son Robert, an Army sergeant, brought here from Africa as an official photographer.

With Churchill was his slender red-haired daughter, Sarah, wife of Vic Oliver, the English comedian.

Mrs. Vic Oliver was the only woman present at her father's birthday dinner. Her gift, a ceinture of Biblical times, and Roosevelt's a Persian bowl, were the only two that adorned the table where the 33 male guests drank toasts in the Russian fashion to the number of several score.

So far as we few outsiders who got inside the Russian compound were concerned, the biggest and best of all the shows on earth this week was that of Monday afternoon, November 29.

On that occasion absolutely everybody in all three delegations was on display before the cameras and one another for almost a full hour.

One by one and in carloads of twos, threes and fours, the diplomats and the military leaders drove up, got out of their automobiles and strode into the large conference hall at the front end of the Russian Embassy. It was essentially an Anglo-Russian affair, so President Roosevelt literally took a back seat, his chair being placed in a corner of the room away from the ceremonial centers and scarcely observable to many of the 200 or so persons gathered around the great new table of light oak which had been made especially for the occasion.

The American delegation too obviously tried to be inconspicuous, even to the extent of quietly finding seats that seemed to be partly shielded by ranks of guards, a detail of British Buffs of a Kentish regiment on one side of the table, an honor guard of 20 Russian officers on the other.

Stalin walked quietly through the door near the southeast corner of the great oblong room. He stood still a moment in his marshal's uniform and I haven't found one Occidental who would even try to guess what was going through his mind for his expression was utterly immobile.

He looked well and certainly not 15 years older than when I first saw him at a funeral in Moscow back in 1928. The old square-cut high-collared undecorated blouse he so long affected at home had been replaced this day by a truly well-cut uniform of obviously fine material, its color a light tan just a nuance off the shade of the summer shirts American soldiers wear.

On his breast was but one decoration, the Red star over a gold star that marks a hero of the Soviet Union.

After glancing about the room without a nod or a change of expression, he took a place at the end of the rank of Russian guards, almost in the manner of a sergeant dressing up a line, and there he stood motionless for what seemed minutes, but which, judging from the two mantelpieces opposite him, was only a few seconds.

Churchill Joins Party

Now, through another door near the southeast corner entered Churchill, straightfaced and clad in the uniform of an air commodore with several rows of ribbons above his stout heart, followed by Eden. He flushed a covey of admirals and generals who stepped aside to make a path for him toward the table.

Stalin, followed by Molotov and Voroshilov, now moved from the place he had taken at the end of a bank of his officers to approach Churchill coming from the other end of the table.

Meanwhile, unobserved by most of those in the room, Roosevelt had unobtrusively entered. Now, for the first time more than just a handful of men could, with one stroke of the eye, take in Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin. The cameras clicked with almost machine-like rapidity. The supreme Russian authority approached Britain's most eloquent warriar.

As they came within a yard of one another a Russian soldier band in a room off an open alcove struck up the "Internationale," followed by "God Save the King." The two leaders stood at a rather casual salute, Stalin's hand two-thirds open and facing the front. As the last note faded out Churchill removed a sheet of paper from his pocket and without further ado spoke his first words to present a sword by the command of his King who himself approved the design.

An interpreter translated and the Prime Minister, the sword laid across his two outstretched palms by a British lieutenant, passed it on to Stalin. The Russian leader took it in his two outstretched hands, raised the sword to his lips, kissed it, and handing it to Voroshilov, spoke his few words of acceptance. He paused at the end of each sentence for its translation into English.

Voroshilov handed the sword on to a junior Russian officer who held it across his forearms and carried it about the room for general inspection, making his way with the Russian ceremonial march which is a modified, less ugly, less noisy form of the goose step. The cameras which recorded the ceremony of the sword were without sound equipment so the voices of Churchill and Stalin on that occasion will not be heard by motion picture audiences, a fact that seemed to displease the Prime Minister when he made inquiry after the ceremony was over.

"Did you have sound?" Churchill asked of his civilian countryman in charge of the photographic publicity for that ceremony.

"No, sir," he said.

Sword Shown to Roosevelt

After the sword had been formally shown among a group of higher military figures, Voroshilov once again took it and walked with it to where Roosevelt was sitting. As he showed it to the President, Roosevelt, after an admiring glance, looked up and made his compliments on its quality and the beauty of the craftsmanship. One caught only the words "truly a heart of steel."

Then the Russian officers, smartly turned out in black boots, blue breeches, alive drab tunics with red and yellow shoulder boards, their heads covered with black visored caps, formed a guard of honor about the sword and took it from the room gradually. Then everyone drifted out beneath the porte cochere at the east entrance to the embassy and strolled along gravel paths to the front yard, Stalin saying a few words in turn with Churchil, with his own small entourage, with various British officers.

Churchill did the same, sometimes talking with civilian dignitaries, sometimes with admirals and generals and even lesser men.

By now Roosevelt had appeared on the porch, seated in the center at the front of the six columned portico, directly beneath the center of the pediment whereupon the hammer and sickle were crossed.

When Churchill saw that Roosevelt was waiting at the top of the stairs and that the cameramen were swarming at their feet, he turned to those closest to him and said smilingly, "Come, gentlemen, and put on your most engaging expressions." In ones and twos and threes all the leading figures, half a hundred or more of them, walked up the steps.

The President signaled to Stalin to take the seat at his right and then Churchill slumped into the remaining chair. For 27 minutes they sat there. Never once in all that time did Roosevelt light a cigarette or Churchill put a cigar in his mouth or Stalin reach for his pipe. Mostly, they just looked at the cameras and tried to please the cameramen.

Girl Gets Into Picture

Not half a dozen times was the Russian interpreter called to Stalin's side to translate for him or his two companions in various groups. The others came up from time to time to have their pictures taken behind the Big Three. Toward the end the President summoned Mrs. Oliver to stand in the group behind the chairs. He presented her to Stalin, who rose, turned, quickly shook her hand, and promptly resumed his seat.

Russians Came Prepared

On the business side, whatever the Allies brought to the conference, the Russians came fully prepared with a list of what they intended to do. That, perhaps, is why Stalin did not feel obliged to bring any large retinue of experts or bargainers with him. It was reported after the first plenary session that he turned his military cards up on the table and merely invited the others to do the same.

On the political or geographical side, everybody knew beforehand that Russia was avowedly determined not to give up after the war any of the territory she acquired in the spring of 1940, when she walked into the Baltic states the while Hitler was crushing France and isolating Britain.

Certainly to outward appearances Stalin throughout the Teheran conference remained, in Jim Farley's phrase, cool, calm and collected. He could afford to be jovial and he was. Like Roosevelt, he stuck close to the confines of the Russian compound throughout his stay.

Roosevelt, those close to him said, kept his usual regular White House hours. Churchill, as is his wont, did a lot of his own work after most people had gone to bed. One night he was up conferring with Eden until 2:30 a. m.

At one of the dinners this week Stalin took the occasion to say in offering a toast that without American machines victory for the Allies would be impossible. He reportedly gave the current airplane production as 10,000 monthly by America, 3500 by Britain, 3000 by Russia.

In order not to make any drain on Persia's inadequate food supplies, each delegation brought along almost everything the visitors ate and drank during their stay. Even Roosevelt's drinking water was brought across the ocean and flown here.

New Simplified Payroll Procedure

Handles All Deductions—Saves 50% of Office Time

HOURS saved in any business or department add to the stockpile of time available for critical war tasks. For "time," said Arnold Bennett, "is the raw material of everything."

Each new shortcut—in welding a turret, assembling a plane, routing a shipment or writing a letter—speeds war production and hastens victory.

▲ FOR INSTANCE—this week many offices will produce today's complex payroll records in one-half the time formerly consumed. This despite the new "load" added by the Withholding Tax.

▲ THE REASON—a new payroll plan by Shaw-Walker automatically transfers each figure to the several essential records.

After writing payroll figures just once, every record needed is completed, correct and up-to-date—ready for quarterly reports and government inspection. Rewriting of figures is entirely eliminated.

Entirely eliminated, too, are separate records for War Bonds, Social Security, Withholding Tax, employee insurance, employee hospitalization, union dues and all other ledger records of a similar nature.

Every pay day the statement you give to each employee includes

(1) A complete record of earnings.

(2) A detailed list of deductions.

(3) A notice telling the worker the exact amount he has on deposit with you toward his next War Bond.

ALL MADE AT ONE WRITING: pay checks, employee pay statement, social security and withholding tax record, War Bond Record, ledger record of other deductions, check register and payroll summary.

▲ SO SIMPLE is the "KOPI-SPOT" payroll system that any clerk can handle it. It can be adapted to any type of payroll whether you pay by check or in cash—whether you make your entries by typewriter or by hand.

▲ A COMPLETE FOLDER has been prepared, illustrating the "KOPI-SPOT" and explaining its application to various payroll methods. May we send you a copy of it?

FOR THE DURATION any old file will do—it's the system itself that counts!

AFTER THE WAR transfer the system intact to any of the following:

A SHAW-WALKER FILING CABINET—the file that's "Built Like a Skyscraper." Result of 40 years of Shaw-Walker experience.

A SHAW-WALKER FIRE FILE—the steel file with built-in fire protection. It gives safe-like security, even in severe fires.

OR THE DRAWERS of the Shaw-Walker steel desk. This is the famous new low desk for comfort and hard work.

DO YOU PLAN TO BUY LIQUOR FOR THE HOLIDAYS?

..then heed this advice from SCHENLEY

ALONG with many another time-honored holiday treat, fine whiskey won't be as plentiful this year as any of us would like. We're doing our best to see that you get some SCHENLEY Royal Reserve (from precious pre-war reserves) to brighten the season. But please remember — SCHENLEY distilleries have made no whiskey for 14 months — our vast facilities have been, and are still, producing alcohol for war use by the government. Here are six suggestions to help you plan your holiday purchases:

SIX SUGGESTIONS FOR HOLIDAY BUYERS

1. Plan your purchases as far ahead as possible.
2. If you cannot fill all your requirements for whiskey, supplement with well-chosen wines or fine domestic brandy.
3. Avoid shopping during rush hours — remember, your retailer is short-handed these days. Take packages with you.
4. If your dealer is out of SCHENLEY Royal Reserve today, ask again tomorrow. Carton and glass shortages and transportation difficulties often delay shipments.
5. Don't blame your retailer when shortages occur —he's doing his best to supply you.
6. AND PAY NO MORE THAN O.P.A. CEILING PRICE $3.21 4/5 QUART

(Includes Federal and District Taxes) IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

FOR 14 MONTHS, SCHENLEY HAS DISTILLED NO WHISKEY . . . ONLY ALCOHOL FOR WAR USES BY THE GOVERNMENT — smokeless powder, synthetic rubber, medical supplies. Make each bottle of SCHENLEY Royal Reserve go further — by enjoying it in moderation.

Fresh Nazi Units Sped to Yugoslavia

2 New Divisions Reported in Fierce Balkan Fighting

London, Dec. 6 (AP)—German troops were pouring into Yugoslavia tonight in force as Hitler sought with frantic energy to seal off—ahead of the expected full storm of an Allied attack in the south—the small breach in his Balkan flank resolutely being held open by Yugoslav guerillas.

The Partisan army of Gen. Josip Broz (Tito), already engaging perhaps 150,000 or more Nazis, announced that two fresh enemy divisions, rushed down from Austria, had been spotted at a railway station on the Fiume-Zagreb main line.

In Hercegovina and along the Adriatic coast the Nazis also were marshaling strong new forces for a climatic assault on all Dalmatian islands and the whole of the liberated territory in Yugoslavia.

Tito's communique said "on all fronts bitter fighting is going on against occupying troops," but asserted the Partisans are "offering strong resistance and have repelled all attacks." The Germans were declared suffering heavy losses.

Bombers from the Italian war theater struck yesterday at Split, main Yugoslavia harbor held by the Nazis, and heavy bombers set Salonika in Greece aflame, pounded enemy shipping off the Aegean Islands of Leros and bombed another Aegean harbor at Symi. At least three enemy ships were damaged.

British submarines sunk at least 16 German ships and bombarded the shore of Naxos.

Landing Craft Get Right of Way

were produced in approximately five months, aided by the same type of special priority directive now being applied.

That program was the first case in which the special directive device was used. It subsequently was applied to synthetic rubber, to speed the rubber director's plant construction program, and to aviation gasoline.

Admittedly Difficult

Officials concerned with the new production push were confident their objective could be achieved but noted that "the difficult task" will be to do it without delaying aircraft, military trucks and other highly essential programs.

The War Production Board has telegraphed instructions to landing craft builders to speed up their schedule of deliveries through next spring and summer by about two months.

Emphasizing the shift from defensive to offensive weapons, the Navy already has announced two substantial cutbacks in the planned production of destroyers escorts for use against submarines. Navy officials said the cutbacks were ordered to free shipbuilders for the accelerated production of landing craft.

A Medal Axis Didn't Use

TRIUMPH DIDN'T MATERIALIZE—The occasion for this medal did not arise. The medal apparently was struck by the Italian and German governments to celebrate the triumphant march they expected to make into Alexandria, Egypt. It was exhibited by Commodore William A. Sullivan, USN, salvage expert, on his return to this country from North Africa and Italy.

'Big 3' Parley Success, Roosevelt Tells U. S. Troops at Teheran

Camp Amirabad, Teheran, Dec. 2 (Delayed) (AP).—President Roosevelt in an ebullient mood today told thousands of American soldiers in this big camp he had just concluded "very successful" war and peace talks with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Marshal Stalin.

Seated in a jeep, his soft gray hat turned up in front, the American Chief Executive told the tinhatted troops drawn up on three sides of a hollow square that they had made real "progress" toward a swift ending of the war and enduring peace.

Roosevelt had left Stalin and Churchill less than 11 hours before. He drove to the camp around 11 p. m. on December 1 and talked to the men immediately after breakfast today.

The City of Teheran lies further down the slope, and when the presidential jeep was driven up on a ramp, which served as a speaking platform in front of the troops, fog lay over the city, although Amirabad was in bright sunshine with the temperature in the sixties.

He assured the soldiers that America was "proud of what you are doing in this distant place" and added, "I wish great numbers of our people could see this work of getting necessary equipment and supplies through to our ally, who has had very heavy losses but who is licking the Nazi hordes."

Before a smaller audience of red bath-robed ambulatory patients in the camp hospital, Roosevelt remarked: "This is the nearest thing to the United States that I have seen yet." He added:

"I have had conferences with Marshal Stalin and Mr. Churchill during the past four days—very successful, too—laying plans as far as we can to make it unnecessary for us again to have Americans in Iran—just as long as our children live. I think that is worth fighting for—even being sick for—in Iran."

Suspenders Win, Hold-the-Pants Order Rescinded

By the Associated Press

War Production Board officials in charge of trousers stabilization gave in yesterday to irresistible pressure from a suspenders bloc.

Suspender buttons were barred from men's work pants on August 14, 1942, to conserve buttons. There have been bitter protests from lumberjacks, shipyard workers and fishermen that enforced stabilization of their breeches by belt constituted an unwarranted rollback of their waist lines and contributed to national insecurity.

Hotel Men Seized In Raid Get Delay

Neshan G. Shamigian, 54, owner of the Capital Hotel, 1018 I st. nw., and Roscoe Collins, 66, night clerk, obtained a postponement in Municipal Court yesterday until December 11 when they were charged with operating a disorderly house.

About 65 police raided the hotel Saturday night, and took into custody 20 persons, including 11 service people. Five persons posted $10 collateral on morals charges. Two juvenile girls were turned over to the Receiving Home.

Bond for Shamigian and Collins was set at $1500 each.

TWO YEARS OF WAR

An Accounting to the American People

TWO years ago today at Pearl Harbor the American people were without warning bombed from their dream of peace.

You know what has happened since—how, in desperate delaying actions, time was bought by prodigies of valor, to enable this nation to gird herself for war.

You know at what cost in toil and blood American airmen, soldiers, sailors and marines, in far places over all the world, made their indomitable stand, altering at last precarious defense into the triumphant march that everyone now can see must lead to victory.

And you know how, awkwardly at first, and then mounting as a tide of incredible swiftness and power, American industry rose to the needs of the hour, pouring into the hands of our fighting men the most and finest weapons and equipment the world has ever seen.

On this second anniversary of that fell day at Pearl Harbor it seems fitting that Goodyear, as a typical American industry, should render an accounting of its stewardship in the duties that were given it to perform.

This is undertaken certainly not in any boastful spirit, but in the belief that it is serviceable that the people of our country know what one business, whose story is not unlike that of thousands of others, has been able to do.

When the enemy struck, we employed in all our plants 66,314 people; today we are employing 100,758 people—and 19,026 Goodyearites are in the armed services. In terms of physical accomplishment, since Pearl Harbor, here are a few of the things Goodyear and its people have done:

—erected and put into operation four large synthetic rubber plants.

—put into mass production four huge aircraft factories; manufactured important subassemblies for Curtiss Wright, Grumman, Martin, Consolidated, Northrop and Vega planes.

—built a fifth huge plant now manufacturing FG-1 Corsair fighters.

—produced a whole fleet of lighter than air ships for submarine patrol.

—built a prodigious number of airplane wheels and brakes—used by almost every airplane manufacturer in the country.

—converted one tire factory to making anti-tank guns; another to small arms ammunition; both now being reconverted again to production of tires to help meet the nation's tire problem.

—engineered, staffed and operated one of the world's largest powder-bag loading plants.

—greatly multiplied production of hundreds of military rubber products including life rafts, barrage balloons, airplane and combat tires, pontons, and assault boats.

—developed and put into mass production bullet-puncture-sealing fuel tanks for American warplanes.

—turned over upward of 130 Goodyear inventions, patented and pending, to the government for industry wide use and are currently adding to that number in an indeterminate volume.

—employed the services of more than 11,000 subcontractors and suppliers.

—produced a grand total (to date) of almost a billion dollars' worth of military products.

—established the world's largest rubber research laboratory for the development and improvement of military and postwar products.

—and at the same time, maintained production of essential civilian tires and industrial rubber needs.

Goodyear is thankful and proud of this record; thankful to the men and women who made it possible, proud that industrial performance like this is the rule rather than the exception throughout wartime America.

We believe you can be proud of it, too, as an earnest of the vitality and competence of your country, and its promise that glorious as the past has been, "The Best is Yet to Come."*

This phrase is inscribed over the entrance of the new Goodyear Research Laboratory which is dedicated to unlocking the vast storehouse of nature, to the enlargement of life thereby, and to the service of man.*

Apple Butter Price Will Jump, Due to Increased Fruit Cost

The retail price of apple butter made from the 1943 apple crop will be hiked three to four cents for a 26-ounce jar.

The Office of Price Administration said yesterday the boost results from increased apple prices.

The OPA also announced that all cream cottage cheese containing more than 4 per cent butter fat would require eight brown ration points a pound. In the original December ration charts, it was erroneously stated that only cottage cheese containing more than 5 per cent butter fat required coupons.

A 10-cent increase in the retail price of country cane syrup, for No. 10 cans, likewise was authorized, along with a 4 to 5 cent increase for commercial, or "Louisiana-type," cane syrup.

The increases at the consumer level will result from a general revision of the order fixing producers' and packers' ceilings on syrups and producers' prices on molasses. The rise in syrup prices reflects increased returns to sugar-cane growers.

At the Capitol, meanwhile, Representative Andresen (Republican) of Minnesota accused the OPA of "bungling" the nation into a serious civilian butter shortage, and asserted at the same time that the fighting forces are not getting enough butter either.

Oleo Move Fought

Andresen, spokesman for dairy State Congressmen, appeared before the Senate Finance Committee to oppose repeal of a 10-cent a pound Federal tax on colored oleomargarine. He said an "oleo lobby" was behind the repeal attempt.

"The sole purpose of oleo manufacturers," he said, "is to attempt permanently to change the diet of a large percentage of the population from butter to oleo."

"Bungling OPA directions," he said, have caused a situation where "milk and cream are being diverted away from butter, which will cause a large decline of butter production this year and in 1944."

Grape Rules Changed

The price agency, in one order exempted from price control certain gift packages of grapes, 16 pounds or less, delivered by mail or express, but only in cases where not more than five such packages are sold at a time to a single purchaser.

OPA also announced a reduction of the cash markup allowed intermediate handlers of grapes on less-than-carlot and less-than-trucklot sales. The markup was cut from 56 to 42 cents on a 28-pound lug box and in proportion on other quantities.

OPA said the change may result in a reduction at retail of as much as 1 cent a pound.

Veterans Call Halt On Medal Giving

Austin, Texas, Dec. 6 (INS).—Texan Veterans of Foreign Wars tonight protested the "indiscriminate" awarding of the Crongressional Medal of Honor. A resolution passed by the veterans was forwarded to Congressmen.

Horace Shelton, departmental judge advocate, declared so many Congressional Medals had been given out in this war that it was becoming "as cheap as the Croix de Guerre was in the last war."

Good Advice . . .

Chicago, Dec. 6 (AP).—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox said tonight he believed "the security of the world depends in very large measure upon Anglo-American leadership.

In an address prepared for the English Speaking Union on the eve of the second anniversary of Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor, Knox said:

"The recurring blood-lust which afflicts nations will only be cured when it is caught in its incipient stages. It can only be thus detected, and quelled, if there is maintained a constant viligance, alert to detect, and swift to halt, the first signs of madness.

Mutual Effort Needed

"Obviously that is more than one nation can, or should do. The cure would be as bad as the disease. The need bespeaks mutual effort by the nations historically dedicated to the principles proclaimed in the Magna Charta or the Declaration of Independence.

"But, no matter how numerous that company, no matter how vital the part other nations must necessarily play in the detection and quarantine of aggression, I unhesitatingly affirm, as my studied opinion, that the security of the world depends in very large measure upon Anglo-American leadership.

"It is the very fact that the British and the American commonwealths have had their vigorous disputes, and for more than a century have settled them without recourse to arms, that gives substance to the hope that Anglo-American leadship provides for the rest of the world."

Bond of Common Tongue

The Secretary said the bond of a common language enabled George Canning and Richard Rush to devise the policy of the Monroe doctrine in London 120 years ago, and added:

"It is too little known, too little appreciated that the Monroe Doctrine is—and always has been—an Anglo-American instrument which might have failed disastrously had it not had the tacit support of the British fleet."

Knox said he wished "to challenge that stupid, that unpatriotic falsehood, that America always comes out on the short end of any transaction with the British. We all know for what cruel purpose that lie is uttered, and repeated, and embellished, with cartoons and caricature, but God knows why the perpetrators seek to destroy a working, although silent, agreement which has helped the United States to keep militaristic aggression away from our hemisphere."

Boy of 13 Jailed, 30 Years to Life

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Dec. 6 (AP). Thirteen-year-old Edwin Codarre, who pleaded guilty to second degree murder in the rape-slaying of a 10-year-old girl, was sentenced today to 30 years to life in Sing Sing Prison.

9 Nations Still Neutral as 44 Fight Axis' 6

The second anniversary of United States entry into World War II finds the nations of the world lined up 44 on our side, 6 with the enemy, 9 neutral and 7 requiring special classification.

On our side: Australia, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Canada, Chile, China, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Ethiopia, French Committee, Great Britain, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Iceland, India, Iran, Iraq, Liberia, Luxembourg, Mexico, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Union of South Africa, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United States, Uruguay, Venezuela and Yugoslavia—total 44.

The enemy: Bulgaria, Germany, Hungary, Japan, Rumania and Thailand—Total 6.

Neutrals: Afghanistan, Argentina, Eire, Portugal, Saudi, Arabia, Spain, Sweden Switzerland and Turkey—total 9.

In special categories are: Finland—at war with Great Britain and Russia, but not at war with the United States. Italy—cobelligerent of the United Nations. Austria, Denmark, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania—occupied without governments in exile and maintaining diplomatic representatives in Washington.

Included on "our side" are a number of nations who have not actually declared war but have broken diplomatic relations with at least some of the Axis powers.

At the present rate, blood donated to the Red Cross in a year's time would fill a 50-car train of large tank cars.

An aviation concern engaged in war work is interested in leasing this building to house defense workers and their families in their employ.

Sidelights of War

Australian Woman Senator Says Americans Desert Wives

Adelaide, Australia, Dec. 6 (AP).—Dorothy Tangney, Australia's only woman senator, said tonight she proposed to take action on behalf of Australian wives who have been deserted by their American soldier-husbands.

"I have been amazed," she said, "by the number of Australian-American marriages that have foundered. In Perth, eight or nine girls came to see me and others rang me up. Some had babies and were without maintenance of any sort from their husbands."

Miss Tangney said that under present laws none of these wives could obtain redress or divorce unless she went to America or could afford to retain an American solicitor.

The senator said there were faults on both sides and it would be wrong to make recriminations at this stage.

"Most of these marriages were contracted before June, 1942," she said, "when the American laws on marriage abroad of servicemen were tightened up."

Japs Cross Yuan River

Chungking, Dec. 6 (AP).—Reinforced Japanese troops have driven southward across the Yuan River in central China in the general direction of Changsha, Hunan Province capital, and fighting is raging near Tehshan, the Chinese command announced tonight.

For the second consecutive day the communique made no mention of fighting inside Changteh, suggesting that the Chinese stand in that gateway city had failed.

Tehshan is on the 100-mile road from Changteh to Changsha.

Free Greece Foreseen

London, Dec. 6 (AP).—Greece will be free before this time next year, Philip J. Noel-Baker, parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of War Transport, asserted today in probably the first flat prediction on the length of the war by any British governmental official.

In a broadcast to Greek sailors, Noel-Baker said: "A year from today you will be saying to your friends 'many happy returns' in a free and glorious Greece."

Nazis Lose Locomotives

London, Dec. 6 (AP).—The air ministry news service said today the German rail system probably was losing about 300 locomotives a month under attacks by British, American and Russian squadrons.

Many Killed in Calcutta

New Delhi, India, Dec. 6 (AP). The British announced today that Japanese airmen, in their first daylight air raid on Calcutta yesterday, caused "some 500 civilian casualties of which over one-third were fatal."

Can You Picture WASHINGTON without Newspapers?

Every hour of the day headline news of overwhelming interest to every person in America is being made all over the world. But without our modern communication systems and particularly our newspapers it would be next to impossible to find out what's going on.

Getting even closer to home, we wouldn't know what local boys are back on furlough—who's getting married—what's happening in the comic strips — what events are taking place all over town.

All of us should feel proud of the fine job newspapers are doing to keep the nation in touch with the times. It's a strong and free press, serving free people—one of the first things the dictators would suppress if they had the chance!

And it would be hard to over-estimate the part played by our 1894 daily and 10,195 weekly newspapers in furthering the war effort. Millions of people buy these papers—far greater numbers read them — the whole country relies upon them for information and inspiration.

For this reason Greyhound depends upon these newspapers to carry its information on bus service to all who travel. Greyhound, in turn, carries many newspapers to rural areas not served by other transportation.

The Greyhound Lines take pleasure in helping to make near neighbors and good neighbors of all the communities we serve—linking them to each other and to the rest of the country, as newspapers do.

Fight to Retain Renegotiation Control As Tax Bill Hearings Are Concluded

By the Associated Press

Representatives of Government agencies fought yesterday to retain their control over war contract negotiations as the Senate Finance Committee completed public hearings on the $2,140,000,000 House-approved tax bill.

Representatives of the Army, Navy, Treasury, Justice and Commerce Departments appeared before the committee's final session to discuss proposed changes in the Price Adjustment Act under which the Army and Navy have been renegotiating war contracts to strip them of excessive profits.

Francis M. Shea, an Assistant attorney general, argued that contract renegotiations should not be subject to court review unless there is evidence of bad faith, fraud or arbitrary conduct in making the contract settlement.

"An appeal of the type you propose is no appeal at all," declared Senator Taft (Republican) of Ohio. "It is useless."

Subject to Review

Shea explained that negotiated contracts were subject to review by the Secretaries of the War and Navy Departments.

"I want somebody else to have the final say besides the Army and Navy," Taft continued.

The bill provides that appeals from contract renegotiations go to the Court of Tax Reviews, but most of the agency spokesmen opposed that proposal.

Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of War, told the committee it is "physically impossible to prevent all excessive profits" in war industries.

"Undoubtedly some companies as well as some individuals will emerge from this war with more profits than they deserve, no matter what efforts are made to prevent that from happening," he said.

Patterson said, however, that the War Department has recaptured $1,500,000,000 in excessive war profits by renegotiating terms of its contracts with big supplies of war goods. He advocated continued contract renegotiations rather than a 100 per cent excess profits tax as the best way of preventing unjustified war earnings.

Sees No Great Damage

Backing a proposal that only those contracts involving more than $500,000 be subject to renegotiations, the undersecretary said that renegotiation of contracts under $500,000 involve too much administrative work for the total amount of money involved.

Patterson took sharp issue with Willard F. Rockwell of the Timken-Detroit Axle Co., who testified last week that "inexperienced" Army men had treated his company unfairly in renegotiating the contract on its 1942 fiscal year business.

"This company has shown itself quite unwilling to limit itself to reasonable profits," he declared. "The facts in that case made it clear that taxes have not been effective to prevent excessive profits."

The Undersecretary said Timken had a net profit of $5,070,000 for the fiscal year 1942 after renegotiation and after taxes.

"That profit," he said, "is . . . . more than 2½ times the average of the normal years after taxes and 32.4 per cent of the total book net worth of the company."

Janitor's Error Gives Students Extra Holiday

Students at the Bladensburg (Md.) High School were given an unexpected holiday yesterday because a mix-up over the keys for the furnace room at the school left the building without heat.

T. S. Klein, principal of the school, said a new janitor had been appointed for the school on Friday, but that he had forgotten to obtain the keys to the furnace room from the former janitor. He said that although heat was available by noon yesterday, he had dismissed the students during the morning to safeguard their health.

Now—IS THE TIME TO RE-DOUBLE OUR EFFORTS

TWO years ago America's anger was roused! We vowed that we would avenge the trickery and double-dealing which cost the lives of many of our bravest and finest. Every citizen was shocked! Everyone wanted to do something to help destroy those forces of evil.

Do we feel the same way today? Are we measuring up to the promises made to ourselves on that other December seventh? This is no time to relax! Now is the time to re-double our efforts.

Every American can answer the enemies of decency and freedom by providing the means for defeating them. The one way all can observe this day is to . . .

were not rolling off Brewster production lines."

Unaware of Need

The three were agreed that on the eve of the second anniversary of Pearl Harbor the workers in this airplane factory appeared unaware that the product of their hands was needed by a nation at war.

Maas asserted that despite "considerable improvement in production since Kaiser took over, it takes as many man hours to build a Brewster fighter plane as it does to construct a Flying Fortress. There will have to be a vast change before the Navy's contract can possibly be justified."

Equally concerned over what he termed "open, flagrant and unconcealed loafing," Grant approached his findings differently.

He made a blistering comment on all previous Brewster managements for hoarding manpower, including three successive Navy-installed managements, and mentioned that Kaiser, who took over as the Navy's "last hope," had discharged 1000 workers and will discharge more.

He attributed some of the "widespread loafing" observed yesterday to the fact that the Kaiser management is changing over to a single efficient assembly line. Grant said that within two months Kaiser has brought about a change which should have been put into effect by other managements.

Grant said he was not convinced that workers were loafing at Brewster because they wanted to, but attributed some of the still-continued loafing to previous management failures.

Members observed scores of employes standing about in groups of threes and fours chatting.

The dress, appearance and manicures of women workers who were supposed to be engaged in production were noted.

"Love-nest" Messages

Congressmen who had heard tales of sex, sin and sabotage at Brewster from a security officer watched some of the women workers busily chalking up messages on the fusilages of planes, which testimony had described as love nests for Brewster couples.

Some of the messages observed were reported as:

"Girls! Stay away from ——— He's mine."

"Now, lookout, girls for ——— He's an expectant father."

The girls chalking up the messages were dressed in slacks, but some women were described as dressed for an afternoon tea, instead of work in an aircraft factory, looking as if they had just come from a beauty parlor with freshly manicured hands they didn't want to soil.

"Is this a rest period?" the visitors inquired when they observed the general inactivity. They were told the rest period did not begin for another 10 minutes.

Members met two members of the shop committee of Local 365, UAW-CIO, Dan Costello and Sidney Traurig, both of whom figured in testimony before the committee. Their comments on the two were on the acid side.

On their tour the congressional visitors, who had purposely kept their intention of going to the plant a secret even from the Navy Department officials concerned with Brewster contracts, saw one girl leisurely scraping paint from the floor.

drawal northeast of Krivoi Rog, Axis stronghold 60 miles below Znamenka, which might mean the beginning of a large Axis retreat throughout the Dnieper River bend after a desperate six-week stand.

Germans Anxious

Berlin broadcasts reflected German anxiety over the coming months of winter fighting by suggesting the possibility the Russians were ready to throw two fresh winter-trained armies equipped with skis and sleds into the conflict.

Seizure of a portion of the 50-mile Nazi artery between Semia and Znamenka was accomplished after a powerful Soviet artillery and air barrage softened the heavily fortified area, Moscow said.

Nine hundred Germans were killed and 17 enemy tanks destroyed or captured as Gen. Rodion Malinovsky's troops fought their way through snowdrifts, whipped by a howling blizzard.

Heavy losses also were inflicted on the Germans in the capture of Alexandriya and Baidakovka, 5 miles to the south, the communique disclosed.

"Our troops captured a great amount of equipment and ammunition, and prisoners were taken," it said.

Znamenka Menaced

Znamenka appeared about to fall. The Russians already had been reported only 6 miles from Znamenka, and about the same distance from Smela after by-passing Cherkasy on the Dnieper in their thrust deep inside the river loop.

The Russian forces which cut the Smela-Znamenka railway, an important link in the Nazi supply system throughout the river bend, were those which weeks ago had fought their way across the Dnieper at Kremenchug. They were trying to link up with other units meeting stiff German resistance in the Cherkasy-Smela sector.

The capture of Tsibulevo put the Russians only 23 miles from Kirovograd, and the unfolding Russian offensive probably will cause repercussions among the enemy formations anchored between there and the Black Sea and Rumania.

A communique supplement also said the Russians had killed 1000 Germans in beating down enemy counterattacks in the Chernyakhov sector 85 miles west of Kiev.

Hundreds of Germans were killed in stubborn fighting, much of it hand-to-hand, and the units of one Russian formation alone killed more than 400 enemy soldiers during the day, the supplement said.

Yanks Seize New Height Overlooking Road to Rome

the Eighth Army captured another of the flame-throwing tanks whose jets of deadly fire failed to impede Montgomery's advance last week.

Fanatical "last man" resistance by the Germans in the mountain passes opening the gateway to Rome made the progress of Clark's army slow and costly. Bad weather kept the Allies from bringing their tremendous air superiority into play yesterday, leaving the burden on the slogging infantry, which had to dig the Nazi machine gunners and mountain troops out of their caves and dugouts one by one.

American and British Infantry still are fighting for the possession of all ridges and peaks linking Mount Maggiore and Mount Camino, although many key strong points have been taken. The Germans are resisting bitterly and in many cases holding out in caves even after Allied infantry waves have overrun their positions. The Germans are suffering heavy casualties in their counterattacks.

Official announcements omitted mention of the furious battle for Orsogna which was reported raging yesterday on the Eighth Army Front after the Germans recaptured the town with a tank-led counterattack.

There was absolutely no Allied confirmation of the Tokyo claim of damage to our fleet which attacked the Marshalls, and, particularly of late, Japanese claims have been about 100 per cent false.

1.3 Millions Face Call by July

national service legislation, explaining that he did not hold to that view some months ago.

Defending the record of WMC from charges that it has left the manpower picture a "muddle," Haber stated that WMC never asked for a reduction in production schedules to solve manpower problems, nor did the labor supply picture force a reduction in the civilian standard of living.

In summary, the needs for additional manpower from July, 1943, to July, 1944, are as follows:

Armed forces, 2,000,000; munitions and munitions materials industries, 1,100,000; transportation, fuel, and utilities, 100,000; food industries, 100,000—total additional needs, 3,300,000.

The following amounts of labor must be drawn from the following sources to provide the needs:

Construction, 700,000; building materials, 100,000; non-munitions manufacturing, 100,000; trade and service, nonwar Government domestic servants, and miscellaneous, 600,000; agriculture, 100,000; reduction of unemployment, 200,000; employment of additional workers not now in work force, 1,500,000—total provided: 3,300,000.

As of November 1, a total of 9.8 millions were listed in munitions industries, with 10 millions in the armed forces, compared with 9.6 millions in munitions last July 1, and 9.3 millions in the armed forces. Between November 1 and next July, 900,000 workers must be added to munitions industries, with 1.3 millions added to the armed forces.

WMC attributed the revision in munitions employment figures to the overall cutback in the war program "dictated by military experience and strategy," reducing the 1944 production schedule from 82.4 billion dollars to 76.7 billions.

Another "saving"—of 400,000 workers—was made in the revision by assuming that employment in Federal war agencies would remain constant at the July, 1943, figure of 1.6 millions, instead of increasing to 2 millions as expected. The war agency employment figures covered all the alphabetical war agencies and the War and Navy Departments, exclusive of military personnel and workers employed in arsenals and Navy yards.

Employment leves in trades and services are now expected to drop only 100,000 from the July, 1943, estimate of 10.6 millions by July, 1944, instead of to the earlier estimate of 9.9 millions.

Haber stated that the WMC miscalculated the amount nonwar employment would decline because of a variety of factors, including the Government's failure to adopt a thoroughgoing program of concentration of civilian production, comparable to the one in effect in Britain.

It was also found that many nonwar activities took on an "essential" character in war-crowded communities, making it inadvisable to drain them of manpower.

Halleck May Head Congress Drive

but that Halleck is preserving a completely independent attitude toward the coming contest.

Halleck, a native of Jasper County, Ind., was for five terms prosecuting attorney of the Jasper-Newton circuit before he was elected to the Seventy-fourth Congress in a special election. He is one of the few House members to hold two major House committee assignments (Rules and Interstate Commerce).

The congressional campaign committee, comprised of one member from every State having Republican representation in Congress, is charged with aiding the election of Republican House candidates, wherever they run, and works in close harmony with the Senate and National Republican campaign committee.

Job Is Stepping Stone

Chairmanship of the committee is generally regarded as a jumping off spot for the post of House minority leader — Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr. of Massachusetts took that route to the leadership. If Republicans organize the House next year, Martin would step up to the Speakership, and Halleck almost certainly would make a race for majority leader.

A number of leading House Republicans originally were mentioned for the campaign post, but most of them have dropped out of the contest. At least two of those formerly mentioned for chairman—Representative Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, who recently jumped into the GOP 1944 Presidential race, and Representative Albert E. Carter of California—are now reportedly backing Halleck.

the contagion was not of the "dangerous" variety. They pointed out, however, that its incidence this year—even considering the increased population—was greater proportionately than for the same season in previous years.

Dr. J. P. Leake, authority on epidemology at the National Institute of Health, a branch of the Public Health Service, contributed a ray of comparative sunshine to the feverish scene last night.

Acknowledging the prevalence of what he termed "exaggerated colds," Dr. Leake added the opinion that the widespread infection—so long as it continued in mild form—"might immunize people" to the more virulent germs and preclude the kind of influenza epidemic which swept the country so catastrophically during the last war.

"Hello Mom—I'm coming home . . . I finally got a reservation"
There is not always room for both you and this soldier! Trains, in wartime, are crowded. Service men and women, and people engaged in essential industry, too frequently are forced to cancel important trips because no passenger space is available.
You can help relieve this critical situation by avoiding all unnecessary travel. For war creates a drastic shortage of passenger equipment. So before travelling think; will it be you, or him? Travel sparingly!

Year of Pacific War Reviewed by Halsey

Hails Victories of Slender Forces Facing Great Odds in Far-Flung War

(The following review of the second year of war in the South Pacific was written by the commander of the South Pacific force and South Pacific area:)

By Admiral William F. Halsey

The year of South Pacific warfare that ended on August 6, 1943, had been a difficult one for the Allied forces. Looking back upon it, from initial setbacks to the moment when, at 15000 (3 p.m.) on August 5, last, our combined Army and Marine units, supplemented by our New Zealand, Australian and Fijian associates, completed the capture of our second Solomon Islands objective, Munda airfield, we can take deep pride in the knowledge of having achieved much against great odds.

It is an established military axiom that a firmly entrenched defender holds the initial advantage against an attacker.

Aware of Odds Faced

Well aware of the odds to be faced, the newborn South Pacific force moved against the lower Solomons on August 7, 1942. History shows that this force, then under Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, USN, accomplished its mission. Guadalcanal, Gavutu, and Tanambogo, were surprised in a perfectly timed, well-coordinated early morning assault.

Perhaps we should have wished to postpone our entry into the Solomons until a later date, when our strength in aircraft, ships and men would have been greater. We had little choice. At the very moment that Gen. A. A. Vandegrift's Marine shock troops swarmed the beachheads of Gaudalcanal, the airdrome, now famed as Henderson Field, was receiving its final touches from enemy graders and rollers. Delay would have jeopardized the security of the islands to the south as well as Australia and possibly New Zealand. We did not delay.

Long Struggle Started

Then began the long, long struggle which can only end with the annihilation of the Japanese imperial army and navy.

In the prosecution of the Pacific war, which encompasses almost 70 million square miles from the Aleutians to New Zealand, and from the China Sea to the west coast of the Americas, we have now made an earnest offensive beginning. Our first year of South Pacific sea warfare alone has accounted for what can be regarded as an impressive enemy fleet of combatant and noncombatant ships sunk and damaged.

Our victories in 1942 included the battle of the eastern Solomons, August 23-25; Cape Esperance, October 11-12; Santa Cruz, October 26; Guadalcanal, November 13-15; Lunga Point, November 30-December 1. This year we can look with the satisfaction of a tough job well done in the initial Kula Gulf action, March 5-6; battle of Kula Gulf, July 6; Kolombangara, July 12-13; Vella Gulf, August 6-7. We have made the waters of the middle Solomons costly and dangerous for the Japanese.

Submarine Warfare

I regret that security does not permit a breakdown of submarine action in our theater. This much I can say without aiding the enemy, our underseas forces grow daily; they strike him hard and often, where it hurts most—in his military breadbasket.

His attenuated supply lines which he must frantically guard in his efforts to pour men and materials into his cracking perimeter-defenses, provide a 3000-mile target for us. I call to witness the exploits of such submarines as the Wahoo—which disposed of a whole convoy of badly needed Japanese supplies.

In the air, our Navy, Marine and Army pilots, generally outnumbered but never outfought, shot down more than 1800 enemy planes of all categories. We can say with pardonable pride that on August 6, this year, one American was worth at least four Japs in aerial combat.

As our forces grow, we have been able to send heavier aerial concentrations into the skies against the enemy. The final days of our unrelenting onslaught against Munda saw more than 200 aircraft bringing our wrath down upon his head in the form of high explosives, cannonfire and machine-gunning.

The Jap found his own attempts at mass aerial attack devastating—to himself. Witness his rout on April 7, June 16, and June 30, on which three days he lost a total of 234 planes.

Under MacArthur Command

Early this year the South Pacific force, which has always been and remains an integral part of the United States Pacific Fleet, came under the strategical command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Each of us, he in his theater, and we in ours, had long been aiming at the same ultimate objectives.

Coordination of our efforts was nothing new. This unity of command was the natural outcome of our northward progress. Throughout our entire South Pacific operations, Army bombers under General MacArthur's command played an essential role in the successes we attained here. Teamwork has always been of the highest order.

We have begun a new phase of the campaign in the waters and on the islands of the southwestern Pacific.

Many months of unrelenting labor brought us to this desirable stage in the conflict. These were hard months of preparation, made harder by the fact that we started from scratch. We went into harbors where little if any docking facilities existed—and built them. We cut the turn-around time of cargo ships carrying vital supplies from weeks to days.

"Magnificent Engineers"

Our magnificent engineers, Navy Seabees and Army units hewed airfields out of jungles—and we got planes into them in time to stem all enemy counterattacks against our hard-won, new advanced positions. Sometimes it was touch-and-go. Often sheer guts, as exemplified by the Marine fliers who ferried gasoline drums into Guadalcanal in unarmed transport planes during the dark days of October, 1942, tipped the scales from defeat to ultimate victory.

It is with the deepest gratitude that I pay tribute to all these components of the South Pacific force.

Thanks to their labors, we now have these springboards from which our future offensives must be launched.

This I can promise: We shall have offensives. It is not the nature of Americans, Australians or New Zealanders to sit idly by while the enemy overruns their lands. Nor does anyone of us feel that he has begun to win until he reaches enemy soil. Taking back what was ours originally is just the start. Each of us has an appointment in Tokyo.

Order Lets Soldiers On Pass Work Part Time

The Army announced yesterday that soldiers have been authorized to accept part-time jobs at railroad stations, freight houses and terminals during their normal off-duty hours or while they are on pass between December 1 and January 2.

This employment is authorized only when civilians are not available, will not be allowed to interfere with the soldiers' training, and is intended to help relieve manpower shortages during the holiday season. No furloughs will be granted to soldiers for this purpose.

13,500 Enemy Planes Wrecked So Far by Army Air Forces, Arnold Reports

By the Associated Press

The Army Air Forces, now numbering more men that all United States branches, moved to Europe in the World War I, have destroyed or damaged 13,500 enemy planes since the Pearl Harbor attack two years ago.

Swelled to 2,300,000 men, the air arm has flown more than 225,000 individual plane flights, fired 41 million rounds of ammunition and chewed up two billion gallons of gasoline in that time.

Gen. H. H. Arnold disclosed the magnitude of the air operations in an article written for the Army and Navy Journal issue dedicated to the second anniversary of Pearl Harbor, and he summed up the accomplishments with the assertion:

"Today in every theater of combat the enemy is reeling from unceasing pressure. Target after target is being demolished. The offensive will continue to mount until the Axis has neither the will nor the ability to resist.

Mackenzie King Stops Here on Holiday Trip

By the Associated Press

W. L. Mackenzie King, Canadian Prime Minister, arrived in Washington yesterday for an overnight stop en route South for a holiday at an unnamed resort.

He told reporters that he had read the Teheran declaration from the Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin conference and that it, with the earlier Cairo declaration, "marks the dawn of a new world."

Every War Bond you give for Xmas

-is a bond

between our fighting men...and YOU!

War Bond for Dad
War Bond for Mother
War Bond for Anne
War Stamps for Harry War Stamps for Tony War Stamps for Sis
War Bond for Tom S.

THINK what Christmas will be like on our fighting fronts...with screaming shells for Christmas carols... sniper-infested forests for Christmas trees ... bursts of gunfire for a fireplace glow.

Think how much our boys are sacrificing... to keep our land and our Christmas free from the fury of war.

Then ask yourself what else you can do... to help bring our victory nearer... and our boys home sooner.

The answer is crystal-clear. Give War Bonds first this Christmas! For this is no ordinary Christmas...and War Bonds are no ordinary gifts. They are, in fact, unlike any other gift in this war-torn world!

Why? Because War Bonds are battling battalions! They fight on two fronts ... abroad and at home. They supply the tools of war...the implements our boys need to crush the enemy overseas. At home, they ward off the perils of inflation ...the dread danger that skyrockets prices and destroys the meaning of money.

And, in the post-war period, War Bonds will create a cushion of savings to see us safely through the transition from war to peace.

But most of all, they tell our boys that we at home do care ... and do share. Remember...every War Bond you give for Christmas becomes a bond between our fighting men... and you!

Supreme Court Urges States To Settle Own Differences

By Edward H. Higgs
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Supreme Court asserted yesterday that States should seek to settle their differences by negotiation rather than by resort to the courts.

The tribunal laid down this principle in dismissing a complaint by the State of Kansas against Colorado in a controversy over use of water from the Arkansas River for irregation purposes.

While acknowledging jurisdiction in such interstate disputes, the court declared that since they involve the interest of "quasi-sovereigns" and present "delicate" questions, expert administration rather than hard and fast court rules is necessary.

Negotiation and agreement should, if possible, the court said, "be the medium of settlement instead of invocation of our adjudicatory power."

Must Be Serious

"Before the court will intervene a case must be of serious magnitude and fully and clearly proved," the tribunal said.

In the Colorado-Kansas dispute, one of a long series going back to the turn of the century, the court ruled that Kansas had not backed up charges that Colorado's use of water from the river had seriously affected Kansas' interests.

A special master had recommended allocation of the stream flow, giving Colorado 925,000 acre feet annually and Kansas 185,000 feet.

But, the court declared, such a division undoubtedly would deprive some Colorado citizens of part of their livelihood and might even result in abandonment of some farms depending upon the water for irrigation.

Reargument Ordered

In another action, the court ordered reargument of a suit to determine whether Negroes are entitled to vote in a Texas Democratic primary election in which Federal officeholders are nominated. The action was taken in order to give the State of Texas an opportunity to outline its position.

Congressmen Seethe Over Bulletin to Japs

By the Associated Press

A suggestion that Japanese could give lessons in bathing to tenant farmers in Ohio and Michigan reached the ears of Congress yesterday and brother, did it get the War Relocation Authority it hot water!

After angry Congressmen from the two States got through with the idea—published in a bulletin put out by the Ohio unit of the agency which handles interned Japanese—the publication was ordered destroyed by the WRA.

Dillon Myer, WRA director, explained to a House subcommittee that Everett L. Dakan, Columbus (Ohio) WRA officer, had been "overenthusiastic" in writing the article, which Dakan described as a sales talk to encourage internees to come to the Midwest to help meet the farm labor shortage.

Bulltin Destroyed

Myer said he ordered all copies of the bulletin destroyed and demanded that future issues be submitted for review in Washington before distribution.

Rpresentative Clevenger (Republican) of Ohio read excerpts from the article on the House floor, quoting:

"Believe it or not, some few tenants and seasonal workers (in Ohio and Michigan) do not bathe. They think it is unhealthy. We need you people to change our ideas about this. We have a lesson to teach Ohio and Michigan farmers in sanitation."

"Mr. Speaker," the thoroughly aroused Clevenger concluded, "a single county in my district has probably more bathtubs than the whole Japanese empire."

"Insult to Americans"

Representative Rowe (Republican) of Ohio, saying that it is an "insult to sturdy Americans" to intimate they are dirty Americans, suggested that the House summon Dakan to explain his statements before a congressional committee. Rowe wasn't content to regard the business as all washed up.

Representative Woodruff (Republican) of Michigan and Representative Bolton (Republican) of Ohio, criticized any effort to persuade Japanese-American interness to come to Ohio and Michigan without first "consulting the people of those States."

"The article is an insult to every farmer in the United States and is of a character to nauseate every person in the country with the power to think," Woodruff asserted.

"The statement is asinine," said Senator Van Nuys (Democrat) of Indiana, who got in on the speaking as a neighbor, "People who have spent years in Japan tell me one of the principal physical weaknesses there is lack of sanitation. We don't want them in Ohio."

Plane Plant Complies, Hires Mexican Aliens

The President's committee on Fair Employment Practice (FEPC) reported yesterday that the North American Aviation Co. of Dallas, employing 27,000 persons, had revised its labor employment policy regarding Mexican aliens.

The FEPC chairman, Malcolm Ross, said that Mexicans now were being hired at the plant, which employs 27,000 workers, in line with President Roosevelt's order of July 11, 1942, which requires the employment of aliens in war work where there is no question of the aliens' loyalty to the United States.

Victim's Lover, Kidnaper Says

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 6 (AP).—Thomas H. Robinson, jr., 36, Nashville, Tenn., startled spectators in court today when he testified he had had intimate relations with Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, Louisville society woman, before he kidnaped her in 1934.

Robinson was arrested in 1936, after evading officers for two years, and pleaded guilty to the kidnaping charge. After serving six and one-half years of a life term at Alcatraz, he was granted a jury trial. He alleged he was coerced into pleading guilty and was not properly represented by counsel.

Robinson said today that in 1931 he worked in one of the filling stations owned by the Stoll family in Louisville.

Says He Flirted with Her

"While I was there, Mrs. Stoll parked her car at the station several times each week," Robinson said. "I knew who she was and had some conversation with her—a mild flirtation, you might say."

He added that he met her one afternoon as he was leaving work and that "she smiled at me and there was mutual recognition. I drove my car along beside hers and we had conversation."

"She parked her car at a roadside inn and got out of her car and into mine. . . . We stopped in a secluded spot."

Robinson alleged they were intimate there.

"We drove back to her automobile and I let her out and arranged for another date," he continued.

Other Intimacies

He then told of three other alleged intimacies soon after and then said he did not see Mrs. Stoll again until 1934.

Robinson said that before kidnaping Mrs. Stoll, he first attempted to kidnap her father-in-law, the late C. C. Stoll.

"Since I couldn't find C. C. Stoll, on October 10 I planned to kidnap Berry Stoll, husband of the victim.

"I tied her loosely with wire intending to get Berry when he came home," he said.

"She said she would help me get the money if I would give her half of it. I told her the note was for only $30,000 and if I were to give her half, it must be raised to $50,000. So, with a pencil, I changed the name of C. C. Stoll and raised the amount to $50,000."

He said he gave half of the $50,000 to Mrs. Stoll when the Stolls paid off.

Post-War "Muffler Magic"!

How A New Armor Against Rust Will Give Longer Life to Mufflers and Scores of Other Parts in Your Car of Tomorrow

IT'S a familiar experience to millions . . . a change from the usual whisper of your motor to a banging roar. Then the repair man's verdict—"Muffler's shot—needs a new one." And rust has added your dollars to the billion it steals from Americans every year!

But now a process has been developed that can give automobile mufflers, muffler pipes, fenders, bumpers, and scores of other parts far longer resistance to rust. This amazing new protection for metals is called Corronizing, and it awaits only Victory to save American motorists millions of dollars every year.

Corronizing has been developed, tested and proved through years of research in the laboratories of the Standard Steel Spring Company. It is a simple and inexpensive process that will not only make automobile parts last longer but will also affect your daily life in hundreds of other ways.

Corronized window screens will resist rust years longer. Downspouts and roof gutters will have many more birthdays. You will get up to four times as many years of service from water heaters, ventilators, washing machines, electric appliances, sporting goods, coal stokers, wire fencing and many other metal products.

Today there are no Corronized products available. The Standard Steel Spring Company is busy making armor plate, bombs and other war material. But when the war is won, it will pay you to look for the "Corronized" label on metal products. This label will be your assurance that the products you buy will resist rust up to four times as long . . . give you years of extra service for your money.

Navy Reports District Man Died in Action

Seaman Christopher Alfred Brown, USNR, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Abraham Brown of 3611 11th st. nw., has been killed in action, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

BROWN

The 22-year-old sailor was born in Elkwood, Va., but attended Roosevelt High School in the District. He was employed by the Navy Department at Indian Head, Md., prior to enlisting in the Navy in August, 1942. Trained at the Great Lakes Naval Station, he was stationed on a cruiser and had participated in three battles during the invasion of Sicily. His parents have been informed that he was wounded November 7 while in the Southwest Pacific and died the following day.

In addition to his parents he is survived by three brothers, Sergt. Ernest Brown, with the Air Corps in England; Robert H. Brown and Benson Brown both of Washington, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Hattie of Indian Head.

Also listed as killed in action was Lieut. Comdr. John Roland Speer, who was reported missing last September. He is the husband of Mrs. Edith Bower Speer of Bonheur on the Severn, Annapolis, Md.

3 D. C. Officials File Denials in Suit for $150,000

Commissioner John Russell Young, Police Superintendent Edward J. Kelly and Chief of Detectives Robert J. Barrett yesterday filed denials in District Court to charges made in a $150,000 damage suit last month by Robert J. Maghan after he was reassigned from detective sergeant to private.

The three officials said that Maghan was not demoted but was merely a temporary sergeant and they therefore had a right to reassign him without a hearing.

Maghan, who was charged with being drunk Sunday night, filed an amended complaint in which he called his arrest a "frame-up."

6 Injured as Rain At Dusk Adds To Traffic Perils

Five children being driven home from a nursery school and a middle-aged woman were injured at dusk yesterday when the drizzling rain made visibility poor and highways slippery.

The accident in which the children were hurt occurred at 16th and Taylor sts. nw., when a taxicab skidded into the school's station wagon. All five received minor cuts and bruises and were treated at Children's Hospital.

They were identified as Barbara Sweet, 4, 1646 Irving st. nw., William L. McGee, 6, 1307 12th st. nw., Ronald McDonald 6, 1105 C st. sw., Beverly Ann Dennison, 9, 2415 E st. nw., and Deanne Ulrich, 5, 918 K st. sw. All attend the Cathedral Hall School.

Mrs. Sadie Fleishman, 57, of Baltimore, received three broken ribs when knocked down by an automobile at 7th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. She was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Mother Gives Blood

To save the lives of other women's sons, Mrs. Virginia L. Wise, 1650 33d st. nw., who lost her only boy at Pearl Harbor, gave her blood to the Red Cross yesterday, eve of the attack two years ago.

Her son, a seaman, apparently was killed by a direct bomb hit when he left his ship, the Chew, and boarded the Arizona to aid stricken comrades.

Morris Heads Group Urging Action to Save Europe's Jews

Acting as a result of an "increasing sense of shock" about the failure of the United Nations to help save the remaining four million Jews in Axis-occupied Europe, George Maurice Morris, former president of the American Bar Association, yesterday announced the formation of the Washington Emergency Committee to Save the Jewish People of Europe.

Morris said the "purpose of the committee is to present the Jewish rescue problem to the United States Congress and to the members of the Administration with a view to definite action through the media of formal resolution and the selection, or creation, of an agency to give effect to such resolution."

Resolutions Pending

Identical resolutions, introduced by Senator Gillette (Democrat) of Iowa and 11 other Senators and Representative Rogers (Democrat) of California, are pending now in both Houses which urge "the creation by the President of a commission of diplomatic, economic and military experts to formulate and effectuate a plan of immediate action designed to save the surviving Jewish people of Europe from extinction at the hands of Nazi Germany."

Morris, who has taken over the chairmanship of the Washington committee, emphasized that it was not the intention of the organization to "wilfully separate the Jews from other peoples and single them out" but that they are simply reacting to Hitler's policy to exterminate the Jews "for no other reason than their being Jews."

Favors Temporary Haven Plan

Morris indorsed the previously announced suggestions of the New York Emergency Conference to facilitate the escape of Jews to neutral countries bordering on Germany or her satellites by granting them temporary haven.

The Washington committee includes Senator and Mrs. Guy Gillette, Representative and Mrs. Will Rogers, jr., Msgr. John O'Grady, Dr. and Mrs. Albert Joseph McCartney, Mr. and Mrs. Neville Miller, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Rourke, Mrs. Paul H. Appleby, Morris Cafritz, Mr. and Mrs. Fowler Harper, Miss Dorothy Detzer, Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Hellman, Mrs. Leon Henderson, Miss Rose Keane, Mrs. Ernest Lindley, Mrs. George Maurice Morris, Robert Lincoln O'Brien and Auguste Richard.

War Rally Slated By Citizens Group

The Metropolise View Citizens Association, meeting at 200 Rhode Island ave. ne. last night, completed plans for a Remember-Pearl-Harbor public rally, to be held in St. Vincent's School, 4th and Channing st. ne., at 9 o'clock tonight. Representative Paul Cunningham (Republican) of Iowa will speak.

The association adopted a resolution last night asking District officials to abolish the taxi stand on 4th st., between Rhode Island ave. and Bryant st. ne. because it is unnecessarily occupying parking space.

Mrs. Franklin G. Cartwell, association president, reported that a smoke nuisance created by the dump at Soldiers Home will be eliminated.

Mr. Morehouse Writes a Biography

Geo. M. Cohan Celebrated in New Book; 'Storm Operation' Opening Postponed

GEORGE M. COHAN

Skimmed through, but not read—it only arrived this last weekend—the story of the "Yankee Doodle Boy," obviously, at the merest glance, is an informative and in many ways surprising life story of the song-and-dance man who always will bear the distinction of having been the foremost exponent of all that goes to make up "Americanism" the theater has known in his or any other era.

His era was a long one, as stage careers go, covering an active span of almost six decades. During that time, as everyone knows, Cohan served as actor-author-composer-director-producer in a broad field that ranged from five-a-day vaudeville skits through musical comedy and revue to straight comedies and serious drama. His performance in Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness" will always be as memorable as the crazy dances he originated in his barnstorming days.

In the passing of George M., at the age of 64, the theater lost a distinguished figure the likes of which will not be seen again in many generations, if ever.

Touching upon all of the high points in his career—the prodigious productive capacity of the man, the special Congressional Medal presented to him by the President for "Over There," etc., etc.—Mr. Morehouse springs more than one authenticated fact that will startle even those who thought they knew George Michael Cohan intimately. One is that George M. was not born on the Fourth of July. That birthdate was supposed to be his chief trademark and the inspiration of all the flag-waving that marked his professional life down the years. But on page 25 of his book, Mr. Morehouse prints a reproduction of the Certificate of Birth and Baptism of George Michael Cohan, child of Jeremiah Coohan and Ellen Costilgan, recording July 3, 1878, as the date of birth. July Fourth being only a matter of hours away, "Jerry" Cohan foresaw the publicity value of the country's natal day being also that of his son. And that's the way it was accepted by the public and written into the lyrics of "Yankee Doodle Dandy" by George M.

It requires something like the Morehouse book, or the Warner Brothers' film biography, to remind this long-standing friend of their subject that George M. Cohan was only one man. His career divides itself so sharply into the four divisions of vaudeville, musical comedy, production and serious drama that unless one stops to think about it, the unfailing impression remains that he must have been at least a quartet! We are indebted to Ward Morehouse for a fascinating and valuable work on the life of a splendid gentleman.

Nearby Opening Postponed

Contrary to earlier announcement in this space, Maxwell Anderson's new play, "Storm Operation," will open in the Maryland Theater, Baltimore, on Monday night, December 13, instead of this Thursday night, December 9.

William Post, it seems, has withdrawn from the cast, to be succeeded in the leading role by Byron McCormick. Although Mr. McCormick is what is known to the trade as a "quick study," Philip Stevens, of the Playwrights' Company wires that Playwrights prefers to play fair with both the actor and the public in the matter of a letter-perfect first performance and therefore has decided to defer the opening, thus reducing the run from 10 days to the conventional week, Monday through Saturday, with the customary Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Those who already may have secured seats for this week at the Maryland, will be able to make satisfactory adjustment, no doubt, with the Maryland boxoffice. So now you know.

Reviving the ancient feud between Charlie McCarthy and W. C. Fields, Producer Charles R. Rogers has signed Fields for a leading role in his forthcoming musical, "Song of the Open Road." The comedian with the incandescent proboscis doubletalked his way into the cast after learning that his precocious heckler would star in the film. There is a rumor afloat that Edgar Bergen will be in there, too!

By a gratuitous bit of purely personal booking, we note that we have been placing Ina Ray Hutton and her Orchestra on the stage of the Earle Theater as an imminent attraction. That is at least a block-and-a-half away from the fact. Miss Hutton and her instrumentalists, of course, will be coming along to Loew's Capitol. I bow low and dip my beak in the dust.

Scrap for Script

Dave Hempstead, back from New York, tells of a funny scene during a performance of William Saroyan's play, "Get Away, Old Man." Right beside him sat Harry Cohn, Jean Arthur, and her manager, Jules Stein. It's well known that Jean and her boss, Harry Cohn, don't always see eye to eye, so this was a little peace dinner arranged by Stein. But the poisoned barbs of "Get Away, Old Man" were aimed at picture producers. When these blasts came over the footlights, Cohn sizzled, and it didn't make him happier to hear Jean Arthur start to giggle. But when stars were panned, their emotions were reversed, and she burned. Hempsted said, "It was much funnier than the play, and would make a wonderful scene in a picture." Well, why don't you use it, David?

Her new book, "God's Front Porch," will be out February 9, and I asked if she got that title from her hilltop home. She said, "Well, you know, I always wanted a ranch, but I've learned plenty since I've been on that hilltop. My neighbor had 10 of his turkeys killed by a pack of wolf hounds. My dog was bitten by a snake. You won't believe it, but it's only a mile from the heart of Beverly."

On the Mend

Ernst Lubitsch much better and able to receive friends. After his heart attack, it was natural for him to worry, but when told that Jerome Kern had suffered one worse than his, Ernst said quickly, "Yes, but has he written a hit tune since?" When he heard most of Kern's hit tunes had been written after his illness, Ernst started planning his next picture. He told me he never knew people could be as kind as his friends at Twentieth Century.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS are trying to keep it quiet, but there was a hot blow-up over the 1944 campaign at a private Administration luncheon on the Senate side of the Capitol the other day.

The principals were Democratic National Chairman Frank Walker, Food Administrator Marvin Jones and Senator Guy Gillette of Iowa, whom the President attempted to purge in 1938.

Gillette showed up late for the luncheon and was promptly challenged by Walker and Jones.

"What's this I hear about you not running for reelection to the Senate in 1944?" asked Walker.

"That's right," replied Gillette. "I've announced that I wouldn't run again for the Senate, and I intend to stick by it."

"But how about your party?" countered Walker. "We need men of your caliber to hold up the State tickets in 1944. Otherwise, we're going to have a very tough time."

"I've been waiting a long time for someone to say that," replied Gillette. "You gentlemen didn't seem to think that I belonged to the Democratic Party in 1938, when Tommy Corcoran and other members of the White House guard were trying to defeat me in the Iowa senatorial primary."

"How about in 1932?" countered Walker.

"Listen, Frank, don't try to kid me about that campaign," responded Gillette. "I admit I rode in on the President's coattails like a lot of others."

"And you still don't agree that you owe something to the party?" shot back Walker.

"Owe something to the party that tried to kick me out of office?" replied Gillette angrily. "I guess not! Far from it, Frank, and you can tell the President, if you want to, that I will not run for reelection as Senator from Iowa on the Democratic ticket under any circumstances."

With that, the Iowa anti-New Dealer turned on his heel and walked out. However, one thing Gillette still has to make clear to Capitol Hill observers is whether he will run for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1944, should Roosevelt eschew a fourth-term nomination. Former Democratic National Chairman Jim Farley has suggested that Gillette throw his hat in the ring.

SOME TIME AGO, this column revealed the manner in which American youngsters who had fought for the Spanish Loyalists during the civil war of 1936-39 were being kicked around inside the U. S. Army. They were flunked out of officer candidate schools even when they stood near the top of their class, and many were refused combat duty.

Since then, thanks to liberal Assistant Secretary of War Jack McCloy, this situation has changed. Spanish Loyalist veterans have been given a chance to get into combat. They have more than justified this reversal of discrimination. Here is the record of a few of them:

Sergt. Anthony Toney of Gloversville, N. Y., received the Distinguished Flying Cross for air operations in the Pacific; Sergt. Jerry Weinberg of Brooklyn was cited for the DFC for participating in the Ploesti air raid, in which he was forced down; Sergt. Robert Thompson of Long Island City, N. Y., received the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in the South Pacific; Capt. Herman Bottcher won the DSC and Purple Heart and is reputed to be one of the greatest jungle fighters of the war.

Also, Lieuts. Irving Goff of New York City and V. Lossowski of Rochester, N. Y., are teaching Italians guerilla warfare as they learned it in Spain.

Stalin Drinks to Victory

AT THE GRAND FINALE Moscow dinner which Josef Stalin gave for Cordell Hull and Anthony Eden, a significant event took place. Those present interpreted it as meaning that Stalin would stick with the Allies through thick and thin.

During the dinner, there was the usual round of toasts—about 20 in all—lasting until around 2 a. m. When it came to the toast of Maj. Gen. John R. Deane, Secretary Hull's chief adviser on military matters, he raised his glass and said:

"I drink to the day when the the British, American and Russian armies meet in the streets of Berlin."

Pandemonium broke loose. Everyone cheered. But the Russians cheered loudest.

During the hubbub, Stalin suddenly left his place at the head of the table, walked 30 feet to where General Deane was standing and clinkled his glass.

It was the toast which Stalin seemed to enjoy most.

Capital Chaff

WHILE THE UNITED STATES, for reasons of policy, is withdrawing from the Argentine market, John Bull is still plugging his old slogan in Argentina—"Buy British." This slogan is featured in British magazine advertisements in Argentina even in wartime . . . Ten days before the White House announced that Japan would be shorn of its empire, Newsman J. Kingsbury Smith wrote for American Mercury, "The American planners intend that she (Japan) shall give up control over all of north China, including Manchuria; that she shall withdraw from Korea and the island of Formosa." . . . The State Department frowns on Spanish Republicans in Mexico who want to form a Committee of Free Spain. That was one reason they kept the Loyalist Minister of Education cooling his heels in Seattle for so long. He wanted to cross the United States to Mexico.

'T. R.'s' Grandson

AT THE CLOSE of the Atlantic City Relief Conference, the head of an important foreign delegation remarked: "This is the first international conference in which the American delegation was hard to get along with."

Normally, United States delegates, especially when hosts of a conference, make themselves readily available to foreign delegates, especially to chief delegates.

This particular chief delegate of a powerful Latin American ally called the hotel room of United States Delegate Dean Acheson, got young Kermit Roosevelt on the phone. Roosevelt, grandson of "T. R.," is an assistant in the State Department.

"I would like an appointment to see Mr. Acheson," said the delegate.

"What do you want to see him about?" asked Roosevelt.

"I felt like saying," commented the Latin American delegate, "I want to see him about the weather.'"

SOCIAL NOTE: When Col. Louis Johnson returned from his mission to India, he was ill and went directly to his home in Clarksburg, W. Va., before reporting to Washington. T. V. Soong, the Chinese Finance Minister, was anxious to learn the results of the mission and so left Washington on the first train out to Clarksburg. Soong arrived at midnight, wearing a crumpled suit. He went to a hotel, and asked for a tailor to press his suit . . . "None around, at this hour," said the clerk. Soong offered a high reward, to no avail. He finally succeeded in borrowing an iron—and while the porter and clerk watched him, China's Finance Minister, brother of Madame Chiang Kai-shek, sponged and pressed the suit he wore.

BOB HOPE

SPORTS DEPT.: While Bob Hope was in Sicily he met an air force lieutenant who was determined to show his reciprocation for Hope's work. The lieutenant turned to his 32-year-old colonel and suggested: "Let's fire a rocket for him." The colonel was reluctant. Besides, it was late, and Hope was heading for his tent, to sleep. "Aw, come on, let's," the lieutenant insisted. The colonel reluctantly agreed. The rocket was set off, and illuminated the whole, silent area. And as it arched in the sky the lieutenant said: "Perfect, isn't it?" . . . "It will be," said the colonel, watching it slowly descending over one tent, "if you hurry for a bucket of water."

POLITICS: Mayor LaGuardia addressed the Radio Executives Club last week and told this story of the WNYC broadcasts made by the political leaders who had demanded the right to reply to LaGuardia's broadcast about the Aurelio election: When their broadcasts had been completed, Fiorello called Morris Novik, director of the municipal station WNYC, and said: "Morris, it was a great example of tolerance—these men, representing rival political parties, uniting in one program. That's tolerance, Morris." . . . "Maybe it was," Novik informed him, "but they made their broadcasts from different rooms."

DRAMA DEPT.: Last week Billy Rose presented Oscar Hammerstein's "Carmen Jones," a brilliant production such as Broadway hasn't seen in many years. This is Hammerstein's version of Bizet's opera "Carmen" . . . Deems Taylor said: "I like it better than 'Carmen'" . . . Jack Grumet, chief of the Homicide Bureau, who will prosecute Wayne Lonergan next month, watched the curtain descend as Joe plunges a knife into Carmen's heart. "Well, what do you think of it?" an excited first-nighter asked him. "She drove him insane, and there was no premeditation," the prosecutor replied, "so I'd say murder in the second degree.'"

FINANCE DEPT.: When Joe Lewis reports his gross income for 10 weeks at the Copacabana, it will be $30,005. Joe gets $3000 a week. He earned the extra $5 when, during his routine, he was interrupted by a ringsider. The customer was waving a $5 bill, and challenged: "For five bucks. Call it—odd or even?" . . . Lewis called "Odd!" won, collected, and continued his routine.

The Fledgling of "Pearl Harbor" Day, 1941...

...IS A FULL GROWN EAGLE NOW!

TODAY . . . AMERICA'S FAR-FLUNG FIGHTING FORCES ARE EXACTING FULL PAYMENT FOR THE TREACHERY OF PEARL HARBOR

In two years the U. S. Fighting forces have more than evened the score with Japan. In two years these Fighting Forces have grown from one of the smallest in the world to one of the mightiest the World has ever seen. The "Rising Sun" is beginning to set! The "Swastika" is being blown to bits! But the fight is only just begun. The Army, the Navy, the Marines, The Coast Guard are all in there "pitching." We too must pitch in with more and more War Bonds. We're all in this thing together. They're doing their duty. Can we do less?

Local Suffrage

Washingtonians will have an opportunity today to make their voices heard on what is unquestionably the most vital issue before the local community. For the first time in many years they can register their attitude on local suffrage bills that seem to have strong backing in the Senate. If out of this discussion there emerges a measure that can win approval of the Senate and House, the Capital City will be brought back within the circle of democracy after being excluded for nearly 70 years.

Of the three bills, we think that Senator McCarran's holds the greatest promise. It has the advantage of being sponsored by the chairman of the Senate District Committee. It proposes a definite plan for reorganization of the local government instead of merely creating machinery to devise such a plan. While the bill, in our opinion, needs rather extensive amendment, it is a sound foundation on which to build. It is progressive in outlook. In creating a city manager-council type of government for the District, it would in no way interfere with the granting of a District delegate in the House or full representation in Congress when it is practicable to pass a constitutional amendment.

In our opinion, therefore, civic organizations and local citizens may well concentrate their energy on improvement of the McCarran bill. Senator McCarran has given a good deal of time and thought to this proposal. He is genuinely interested in improving our horse-and-buggy government. Equally fortunate is the fact that he is not "wedded" to the provisions now in his bill. Helpful suggestions from local citizens will be welcomed and many of these may be embodied in the bill.

A good deal of criticism has been directed at the seven election districts that would be created by the McCarran bill. We doubt that Congress would consent to any plan providing for election of all the commissioners or councilmen at large, but there would be notable advantages in electing at least two such popular representatives by vote of the entire city. That could be accomplished by increasing the membership of the council from seven to nine. Perhaps, too, the councilmen should be given longer terms than two years. As the bill now stands a new slate would be elected each second year. That might deprive the council of continuity and discourage the more substantial citizens from seeking offices that would require such frequent electioneering. Certainly, too, these non-partisan elections ought to be conducted in the years when there is no presidential election.

We are concerned also about the grant of powers to the proposed new government. It would inherit all the powers of the District Commissioners, such as they are, and an ingenious device is included for the transfer of new powers to the proposed new governing body. Ordinances going beyond existing municipal powers would become effective when approved in writing by the chairmen of the Senate and House District Committees, or when approved by concurrent resolutions in both houses, or when concurrent resolutions seeking to invalidate such ordinances failed in both houses. This is a haphazard and cumbersome way of granting new powers. In some instances it might permit the local government to acquire powers that no municipality should have, merely by getting the consent of two legislators on Capitol Hill. We believe that Congress would do much better to set forth in a specific charter the municipal powers that the proposed government could exercise. If these were confined to purely municipal powers, eliminating the probably constitutional grant of legislative powers which the bill now contains, there would be no need for congressional ratification of new local ordinances. Of course, Congress would always retain the basic power to undo anything that the local government might undertake. But it could do this, if it should ever be necessary, by regular legislation.

What is most important is to set up a local government strong enough to govern this teeming city without constantly waiting for the slow wheels of Congress to operate. That can easily be done without relinquishing essential Federal control over the Capital. And it should be done for the sake of Congress as well as the District. Congress cannot possibly sit as a city council without neglecting its colossal responsibilities as a national legislature in this revolutionary era. A perfected McCarran bill ought to be welcomed as the first step toward congressional reform regardless of what overworked legislators may think of the disgraceful conditions resulting from the inadequacies of the present system.

The Task Ahead

The dramatic impact of the meeting at Teheran is only slightly diminished by the advance reports of it. The fact of the meeting rather than what came out of the meeting will rivet the attention of the waiting world. Most of the preliminary work in integrating our Allied strategy had already been done in Moscow. There was likewise little to add to planning for peace. What was needed in these respects must have been very simple. Some final matters had doubtless to be ironed out. But there was required a top level ratification of the grand coalition which had been built upon the foundation of our common struggle for survival. And the full value of that ratification, both in hastening the end of the war and in insuring a smooth peace, could be obtained only by a face-to-face meeting. The problem in a warring world was how to arrange it. Fortunately there was no boggling over prestige, no effort to arrive at a compromise location. Of all the Allies the site had to be chosen by Russia. For it so happens that of the three august conferees Stalin is the only one who is the active as well as the titular commander of his battling troops. It was economical from all standpoints, therefore, that the meeting should be held at Stalin's convenience. He chose Teheran because the Iranian capital is only a step across the Russian frontier.

Marshal Stalin had already met Mr. Churchill, but this was the first time he had seen Mr. Roosevelt. There could not be a more dissimilar pair. Stalin fought his way to his present eminence along the path of bloody revolution. He belongs more to Asia than to Europe. For he came from Georgia, the enclave north of Iran. Georgia, as the immured Shah must have pondered, once was part of Iran, when, as Persia, Iran was a mighty force in the ancient world. The frontiersman still lives in toughened Stalin. In Mr. Roosevelt, as in Mr. Churchill, he encountered a man of gentler upbringing, a patrician whose life has been devoted to the art of politics. But the triumvirate had one thing in common. They were armed with a mandate from their respective peoples to speed the day of the decisive grapple with Hitlerite Germany and to establish the peace. A sense of this urgency shines through the communique signed at Teheran. There seems little question that it will soon be translated into action "from the east, west, and south." Action cannot be soon enough. Already the free peoples everywhere seem to feel that our gamble with time needs to be wound up. As General Smuts said two weeks ago, "Time is short. The time factor in this fifth year of war has become all-important, and from now on every moment counts. If Europe is to be saved from immeasurable disaster we must look upon the earliest ending of the war as of first importance." That has always been Stalin's view. It now looks as if the President and the Prime Minister are in full agreement with him on the vital necessity of heaping enough hammer blows upon Hitlerite Germany to bring about a swift submission.

That Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill were able to journey to Iran in the midst of war is testimony to the miracle of modern organization and modern transportation. The entire earth has now become our abode. It follows that there must be a world system of law and order administered by a world organization in order to insure the common security. This is so obvious that agreement to this end had already been attained. It was promptly underwritten by Congress. With this undertaking the nations can now proceed to work out the details of the grand design upon which they are embarked. A renewed determination to make our acts live up to our words is the best possible way of marking the anniversary today of Pearl Harbor. It was the lack of agreement on the principle that the security of one is the security of all that allowed the Japanese aggressor to come within an ace of occupying our Pacific Coast. Surely the lesson has been learned, and in blood and sweat and tears. After casting out the demons which the lack of effective policing in the world has unleashed, we must see that those demons have no further chance to disturb world peace. If we keep this aim firmly in mind, if we shoulder our responsibilities for world peace and order without fear, we shall have penetrated to the heart of our plain duty to our own posterity. The declaration at Teheran comes as a light unto our feet in pursuing this prime obligation.

Demobilization

People generally are inclined to discuss the problems of labor demobilization as if they were exclusively postwar developments. An announcement shows that this is not the case. Some 150,000 warworkers will lose their jobs within the next three months. These coming dismissals are the result of cutbacks in production of certain types of war equipment. Under present conditions, the prime objective is to speed the shifting of these released workers to the industries and areas in which they can make a maximum contribution to the war effort. There is no problem of unemployment to be faced. On the contrary, about half a million new workers are said to be needed by the heavy industries. However, the placement of dismissed labor calls for most careful planning to relieve areas and industries suffering from acute shortages of labor.

An official spokesman points out that WMC's current placement activities afford opportunity for developing techniques to be applied after the war. The task will not be to find men to do essential jobs, but to find useful and suitable jobs for millions of demobilized warworkers and home-coming soldiers. That is a colossal task that a wartime agency such as the WMC cannot tackle single-handed. Still the experience that it is now gaining should prove immensely valuable in helping the Government to grapple with postwar placement problems.

However, almost everything connected with smooth and expeditious demobilization will require legislation as a guide to policy. In the Senate a special postwar subcommittee is doing good work under the chairmanship of Senator George. On the House side relatively little has been done. As we have already suggested, House and Senate should set up a joint committee to formulate a legislative program in concert with Mr. Baruch, who has been charged by Mr. Byrnes with responsibility for sponsoring postwar readjustment.

"Shocking Slur"

Even the most transparently political remarks create echoes when they are made on the floor of the United States Senate. Senator Butler's recent outburst about the Good Neighbor policy, for example, was promptly echoed (not unnaturally) by Radio Tokyo in joyous broadcasts to South America. For Tokyo's purposes it was even better to have such things said by a United States Senator than by a Japanese official spokesman.

Among the Latin Americans the echoes were vehement and indignant. It was fortunate that Vice President Wallace lost no time in expressing his regret for what he termed Senator Butler's "shocking slur." For newspaper and radio commentators in virtually every republic to the south regarded the Senator's speech as insulting and a reflection on their national good faith. The Mexican Senate issued an official protest. The Secretary of State of Cuba denounced Senator Butler in a statement to the press.

It is significant that nearly all of the comments by Latin-American spokesmen, official and unofficial, accepted the Vice President's apology as reflective of the real attitude of the United States. There could scarcely be a more eloquent tribute to the Good Neighbor policy than this general acceptance of its sincerity. The unfortunate and dangerous thing which Senator Butler has done is to lead our neighbors to identify this policy with the present Administration. Insofar as he has encouraged them to feel that the policy may be changed with a Republican victory at the polls, he has rendered a grave disservice to his own party as well as to the Nation.

Senator Butler's "report" on his trip through the countries of Latin America poses anew the same problem that was raised by the "report" of the five Senators who recently toured the battle fronts. Hastily conceived and unchecked public statements created serious diplomatic repercussions. They could easily have been avoided. Reports should have been made initially to appropriate committees. Then the questions raised by the reporting Senators should have been presented to the executive agencies concerned—in Senator Butler's case, the Department of State and the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs.

By such a procedure Senator Butler's astonishingly inaccurate facts and figures, if not his curious inferences, could have been corrected. As we have suggested before, it would be a good idea to have a responsible executive official present in the Senate to answer charges of this character. Nothing can be added to the Senate's prestige by making it a sounding board for irresponsible political attacks on the foreign policy of the Administration in wartime.

Turkey's Position

Like the conference at Moscow which preceded it, the conference at Teheran, with its promise of a completely coordinated Anglo-Russian-American military strategy, has focused a great deal of attention on Turkey. For Turkey occupies a pivotal position on the crossroads between Europe and Asia. On the one hand, she is wedged in between the German-dominated Balkans and Allied power in Syria, Iraq, Palestine and Egypt. On the other hand, Turkey controls the shortest water route between the Mediterranean, which the Allies now control, and Russia.

Up to now Turkey, though an ally of Great Britain, has been able to postpone a decision regarding her role in the war. Her neutrality has been satisfactory to both sides. But that is no longer the case. From being a buffer blocking a possible German drive toward the Mosul oil fields and the Persian Gulf, Turkey has become a barrier preventing a complete coordination of Russian and Anglo-American efforts in eastern and southeastern Europe. Certainly the time is fast approaching, if it has not come already, when, if given the use of Turkish bases from which to launch an offensive against the Balkans, the Allies could shorten the war by months.

So Turkey must make up her mind and the Turkish leaders, being hard-headed realists, know it. That is why they have manifested such intense interest in the Teheran conference and why they hastened to Cairo after that conference to confer with Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt. Given Turkish military unpreparedness, and the circumstance that the Dodecanese Islands are all once again in German hands, the Turkish inclination may still be to continue a policy of neutrality for a while longer. But the remarkable display of Anglo-Russian-American unity manifested at Teheran may lead them, this time, to move a step forward, if not the entire way, into the Allied camp.

Canadian Autonomy

By Janet R. Keith

New Diplomatic Status

CANADA'S LEGATION at Washington was recently raised to the status of an embassy, and Prime Minister King has announced that other Canadian diplomatic offices throughout the world will soon receive a similar elevation in rank.

This step has been hailed in some quarters as marking Canada's "coming-of-age" as a nation. Actually, it is not that significant. Canada has long regarded herself as a free and sovereign nation, in complete control of her foreign policy as well as her domestic affairs.

As far back as 1900 a Canadian Prime Minister, Sir Wilfred Laurier, made it clear that he did not consider Canada automatically obliged to take part in all the wars of Britain. He claimed for Canada the right "to look at each case upon its merits as it arises, to act or not to act, to interfere or not to interfere, to do just as she pleases . . ."

Magnificent Contribution

As a result of her magnificent contribution to the Allied cause in the war of 1914-18, Canada was given separate representation at the peace conference on the same basis as other small states. She and the other self-governing dominions of the British Commonwealth were also granted separate membership in the League of Nations and the International Labor Organization.

In the period between the wars Canada gained increasing control over her foreign policy.

The most important advance in Canadian autonomy was gained in 1931 by the passage of the Statute of Westminster, which stated that the United Kingdom and the self-governing dominions "are autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another in any respect of their domestic or external affairs, although united by a common allegiance to the Crown, and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

Even after the passage of this statute there was some debate as to whether Canada could legally remain neutral if Britain were at war. But the events of September, 1939, settled the question once and for all. When Britain declared war on Germany, Prime Minister King summoned the Canadian Parliament for consultation. Canada did not formally declare war until September 10, having remained neutral for one week while Britain was at war. (Eire's neutrality in the present struggle has demonstrated that Canada and the other dominions could legally have remained neutral if they had wished.)

Right to Declare War

Canada, then, has acquired during this century the right to declare war when and if she pleases, to open her own diplomatic offices abroad, to send her own separate delegation to international conferences, and to negotiate treaties without consulting Britain. The raising of her foreign ministers to the rank of ambassadors can therefore hardly be regarded as a sign that Canada has suddenly attained national maturity.

The significance of the diplomatic changes is probably just this: Canada is building up her prestige value a little with an eye to the coming peace conference.

Prime Minister King has already stated definitely that he and his government would favor the principle of "functional representation" in international affairs.

"Authority in international affairs must not be concentrated exclusively in the largest powers," he said recently in the House of Commons. "On the other hand, authority cannot be divided equally among all the 30 or more sovereign states that comprise the United Nations, or all effective authority will disappear.

There is no doubt that Canada as an important producer of food and strategic materials, will be expected to play an important role in postwar relief and rehabilitation. Already she is amongst the United Nations the fourth largest producer of war supplies and the fourth greatest military air power. This year alone Canada will distribute amongst her Allies, under her system of Mutual Aid, a billion dollars worth of war equipment, raw materials and foodstuffs on the basis of strategic need.

Looking to the day when she will make her voice heard at the peace table, Canada has already stated clearly what her postwar foreign policy will be.

According to a prominent member of the government, the purposes of Canadian foreign policy (after winning the war) may be defined as:

Promotion of the friendship of Great Britain and the United States and their association with the Soviet Union and China in leading the United Nations. Establishment of the organization of the United Nations as soon as possible. Meanwhile, granting nations representation on administrative boards on a functional basis. Close cooperation in the defense of Britain and of North America. Cooperation in measures to promote trade by removing restrictions and by a coordinated domestic policy to promote maximum employment and fair prices. And (most important of all) support of the organization of force against aggression, making necessary commitments.

Fruits Of Teheran

By Barnet Nover

Shaping A Common Policy

THE MEANING and significance of the Teheran Conference are only dimly indicated in the Declaration jointly signed by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin on December 1 and now made public.

The Declaration is full of resounding generalities which reveal little and conceal much. The immediate popular reaction to it may, therefore, be one of disappointment. For the winds of rumor regarding the Teheran parley blew so lustily and so long as to create hopes impossible of immediate fulfillment.

The Declaration is in and of itself no political "block-buster" capable of dividing the enemy's forces, destroying his will to fight, hastening the day of surrender. Yet the consequences of Teheran are likely to be precisely that.

THE POINT is that the more precise and specific the agreements reached at Teheran the more essential it is, and that holds particularly true of the military agreements, that they be revealed in action rather than words.

"We have concerted our plans for the destruction of the German forces," says the Declaration. "We have reached complete agreement as to the scope and timing of the operations to be undertaken from the east, west and south . . . No power on earth can prevent our destroying the German armies by land, their U-boats by sea, and their war plants from the air. Our attack will be relentless and increasing."

This will not make pleasant reading in Berlin. For by this time both the Nazi leaders and the German people must be fully aware of the lethal power which the Allies command.

The Germans are now under notice that this power will henceforth be employed jointly, and on the basis of a coherent plan. Less now than ever can the Herrenvolk look forward to the future with any measure of anticipation. That future the Teheran conferees painted for them in the darkest colors.

BUT TEHERAN was more than a military conference, although tremendously important as such. It was also a political conference of three extremely powerful states. And above all it was a meeting between three great leaders.

Let us examine the last point first. Over a period of many months President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill had sought a meeting with Marshal Stalin. Until last week no such meeting had occurred although, in the meantime, the President and the Prime Minister had met no fewer than six times.

The very fact that Stalin agreed to leave Russia for a meeting place abroad is eloquent both of the urgency of the situation and of the new spirit of harmony which now exists between Russia, Britain and America. And there is every reason to believe that Teheran marked a further stage in Anglo-Russian-American cooperation. As the Declaration says:

"We came here with hope and determination. We leave here, friends in fact, in spirit and in purpose."

ON THE POLITICAL side Teheran provides us with some important clews as to the lines of action agreed on by the three powers.

In the first place, the special declaration regarding Iran should destroy the suspicion that Russia was planning to transform that nation or part of that nation into a Russian buffer state. In line with the tacit acceptance by the Soviet Union of the Cairo Declaration it provides eloquent proof that Russia has foresworn imperialistic ambitions everywhere in Asia.

Secondly, the Declaration of Teheran reinforces the Declaration of Moscow regarding the determination of the three powers to work amicably together for the establishment of a postwar order, "to make a peace which will command the good will of the overwhelming mass of the people of the world and banish the scourge and terror of war for many generations."

Thirdly, at Teheran, Russia underlined anew its acceptance of the Four Freedoms, the three powers pledging themselves "to the elimination of tyranny and slavery, oppression and intolerance."

And, lastly, the Declaration of Teheran made it clear that the three powers do not intend to act as an exclusive combination but welcome to their midst "all nations, large and small," who accept the Four Freedoms and are prepared to come into "a world family of democratic nations."

Nothing was said in the Declaration regarding the future of Germany, or Russia's western boundaries or the organization of Europe. Nothing was said about a great many other problems of world concern. This does not mean that no agreement was reached on such matters. Like an iceberg what lies beneath the surface is far bigger than what is above the surface. But even what we can see of this mass is impressive.

Letters To The Editor

Communications must carry the writer's name and address though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters should be held to not more than 200 words. They are subject to condensation.

Give, But Give Wisely

Between now and Christmas, many of your readers will be asked to contribute to certain national and local charitable organizations. These contribution appeals may come to them by letter, telephone or personal call.

A slogan of the National Better Business Bureau is: "Give—But Give Wisely." This slogan is an important safeguard to contributors who follow its advice because not all so-called "charities" are honest and sound; on the contrary, some of them are merely fronts for unscrupulous racketeers, created to collect money for themselves rather than for the needy they publicize. No one likes to be a sucker, but some generous citizens are just that because they do not know how to give wisely. This is proved by the fact that the intake of racketeers and unsound "charities" each year is in the hundreds of thousands, and they particularly specialize on uninformed contributors.

If all contributors followed certain simple rules, the racketeers and unsound "charities" would automatically be run out of business. Here are the rules:

1. Refuse with a blunt "No" all telephone requests from strangers for contributions, even if the telephone stranger uses the names of prominent local citizens.

2. Refuse to buy books or merchandise which a strange salesman assures you will benefit a national veteran or charitable organization. In almost every case the salesman is paid a high commission and full expenses (his pious denial notwithstanding), and little if any of your "gift" reaches those for whom it was intended.

3. Never automatically assume that letterhead names assure an organization's honesty or soundness. Reketeers use names without permission as a routine practice, because many people put excessive trust in letterhead names.

4. Check up on each solicitation with which you are not well acquainted before you give, as follows:

Telephone or write the Council of Social Agencies, 1101 M st. nw., Zone 5; phone Metropolitan 2284, or the Better Business Bureau, Star Building, Zone 4; phone National 8164, and ask whether the organization is honest and sound. These advisory and reporting services are free and are constantly used by careful contributors.

Christmas is a time of generous giving. If your readers follow these simple rules, they can give with the heart-warming assurance that their gifts will do what they intend. Disregard of these rules at any time during the year involves the very grave chance of a person being a sucker rather than wisely generous.

Subsidies—Inflation

To prevent a cracking up of the line against inflation and keeping the cost of living from skyrocketing, President Roosevelt is waging a determined fight against such lobbying forces, as the farm bloc, John L. Lewis and others who are placing their selfish interests ahead of the national welfare.

The subsidy plan has been requested, to pay the farmer for extra labor performed in increasing farm commodities. More foods are required to feed our ever increasing armed forces overseas, and in assisting starving peoples in Hitler's controlled countries, now being wrested from the Hitler armed forces.

Congress has been requested to vote 900 million dollars as a subsidy to hold present food prices and prevent our social economy being plunged headlong into sudden catastrophe.

It has been estimated that subsidies to hold the line may reach two billion. To offset this expenditure subsidies can save six billion in the cost of living.

Subsidies to farmers will hold prices, will hold wages at high living standards, will keep down the cost of the war, will keep down the national debt, thus, holding taxes in the lower brackets.

This condition is desirable to 12 per cent of our people, whose incomes are under $1000, and to 50 per cent whose incomes are between $1000 and $3000. Thus, 62 per cent of our people will be directly benefited and the Nation at large, by withholding undesirable expenditures.

As a matter of fact, the cash income for farm marketings of crops and livestock has risen 171 per cent since June 1940, and 61 per cent since last August. This would indicate that the farmers have fared very well, much better than the consumer has generally understood. Then why all this opposition of the farm bloc? To serve their selfish interests by not understanding the operation of our national economy.

Congress should wholeheartedly support President Roosevelt in his efforts to stave off inflation, which could lead to national ruin.

When talking about inflationary, it is merely stating that prices have gone, up whereas, when talking about inflation, we are referring to a national evil, which spell ruin to millions of our people.

Petain's Record

By Paul Winkler

Points To Treason

THE FRENCH underground is taking with considerable salt the flood of rumors concerning the likelihood of a resignation by Marshal Petain. The resistance groups (a) doubt very much that there will be any resignation, and (b) consider it will be unimportant if there is. Their theory is that such an act would be no proof of Petain's sincerity, but simply a belated attempt to whiten his record with the Allies, and to eliminate the Committee of Liberation as an important factor for liberated France.

Petain has the best of all reasons for desiring to get rid of the Committee of Liberation: the Committee of Liberation is very likely, whenever it extends its power to France, to get rid of Petain.

Two factors precipitated the maneuvers by which Petain was represented as attempting to return France to republican government, but as having been frustrated by Laval and the Germans.

The first was the expressed intention of the French committee to make Petain stand trial for treason.

The second was the opportunity Petain saw to slip out of power under the Germans and into power under the Allies (whenever they get into France) as a result of the Lebanese troubles. Petain was assured by a number of advisers, in particular French Ambassador to Ankara Gaston Bergery, that the Near East question was on the verge of causing a rupture between the French committee and the other Allied powers, and that if he could provide a substitute "free" government, the chances were good of getting Allied recognition for it as a "cobelligerent."

Getting the Credit

So Petain put over the slick trick of getting credit for an intention to make France republican again, without ever actually taking any act to that end, by getting out of France the text of a decree restoring parliament to its functions, which he was represented as having intended to announce—except that he didn't. The explanation was that Laval and the Germans had blocked the announcement, but Petain's own belief that this might sound a trifle thin is indicated by the care taken to deposit the text of the decree in a safe place in Switzerland, along with what is alleged to be documentary evidence that the marshal actually did try to issue the decree, but was prevented from doing so by Laval.

This action might provide an alibi not only for Petain but for the group which stood behind him, which, even if the marshal himself should die in the meantime, could utilize it as evidence that the Petainists were animated by good intentions.

The indictment for treason which Petain hoped to escape by this strategy would give a much more forthright meaning to that word than in the application given it in the marshal's case earlier in the war. The underground has taken some three years to form its present opinion concerning Petain's role in France's defeat, and in the course of its collecting of evidence on the Petain case, its definition of the word "treason" has undergone three main variations.

(1) Up to the end of 1941 the criticism of Petain in the underground press, though it used the word "treason," gave it only the meaning of negligence in carrying out his duties so grave as to be treasonable. His laxity in organizing adequate French armaments before the war and his published assertion that the invasion of France by Germany was an utter impossibility were attributed only to error, not design.

(2) Overlapping the first definition in the period of time during which it was given, a second use of the word "treason" applied not to Petain's mistakes in preparing for the war but to his actions at the time of the armistice—his announcement of the truce before he was sure of obtaining it, for instance, which resulted in the capture of nearly two million French soldiers who laid down their arms when they heard Petain's broadcast, only to be imprisoned by German soldiers who didn't stop fighting that soon. But there was still no implication that Petain had been more than stupid. He was not considered a traitor in the sense of having deliberately betrayed his country.

(3) Today, Petain is being described in the underground press as a man who has committed treason in the fullest meaning of that term—that is, as a man who intentionally accepted complicity in bringing about the downfall of France. This charge is based on a number of pieces of evidence assembled by the underground.

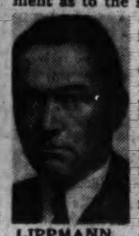
Circumstantial Evidence

Such bits of circumstantial evidence began to convince the underground that Petain's "errors" had been more than instances of stupidity, had, indeed, been designed expressly to cause the loss of France. Slowly the reasons why Petain might have been expected to accept the idea of a French defeat in advance began to unfold, until finally they took on the aspect of a fantastic conspiracy centering about a certain financial group, first of all the Banque Worms.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Teheran



LIPPMANN

WE MAY take it as certain that the Allied leaders could not "have reached complete agreement as to the scope and timing of operations" if in Europe as well as in Asia they did not have the initiative and superior reserves. When a coalition of Allies is on the defensive in many scattered theaters and is not strong enough in any of the theaters, a unified strategy is an almost unattainable ideal.

WE HAVE come a long way from the days when each country and each theater of war was the competitor of every other—when Madam Chiang Kai-shek was pleading for a Chinese front, Stalin for a European front, when some were for the Mediterranean front, others for the bombing offensive, some for an attack by MacArthur from Australia, others for a naval offensive from Hawaii. The clamor and the conflicting claims were so vehement that many, who are defeatists in spirit, felt like so many of the coalitions of history, this alliance would dissolve, perhaps before we had won the war and certainly before a good peace could be established. The clamor of the conflict aroused so much feeling that men came to argue that the reason why the United Nations were not united in their strategical plans was that the vital interests of Britain, Russia, China and America were irreconcilable.

But it is now evident that the lack of unity was the direct consequence of the lack of adequate military power. The clamor has subsided, the big conflicts have been resolved at Moscow, Cairo, and Teheran, into agreements because in the final analysis the Allies are now the masters of the war. Unity of plan has at long last been reached because the Allies now have ample and ever-growing resources of power: They are no longer quarreling about how to divide inadequate forces.

NO AMOUNT of pleading and conferring could in itself have produced this agreement. It is the product of the victories which turned the tide of war at Stalingrad, El Alamein, Tunisia and Sicily, and of the triumphantly successful mobilization of Allied and, not least among them, American power.

And therefore, though it is true to say that "the common understanding which we have here reached guaranties that victory will be ours" it is equally true that because the guaranties of victory were in their hands, Messrs. Roosevelt, Stalin, Churchill, and Chiang Kai-shek could in these two conferences reach a common understanding. Nations which are faced with defeat will separate and quarrel, as we can see in the case of Germany and Italy and the satellites of Axis.

Though the Allied leaders made no specific declarations at Teheran, like those at Cairo, except the pledge to Iran, the atmosphere of confidence in the postwar settlement was unmistakable. They may not have reached, and probably did not reach, specific agreements on all the difficult questions of the settlement. But there can be little doubt that when they left Teheran, they felt certain that they could be able to agree.

This confidence, which could not be a diplomatic pretense, undoubtedly rests upon the conviction of each of the leaders that the vital interests of his country are now secure, and that, therefore, they have no reason to divide and quarrel over issues which, however important, are not vitally important.

THUS THE tone of their declaration is infused with the moderation and magnanimity which come from the confidence of strength. Their tone is quite different from the nervous anxiety which has pervaded Allied diplomacy in the Mediterranean and in regard to central and eastern Europe. We are at the end of the interlude of improvised expedients, of little deals, of amateur Machiavellism, which—however much it may have been justified by our weakness—was corroding the moral force of the United Nations.

We are leading again from strength rather than from weakness, from confidence rather than from fear. For it was made evident first at Cairo and then at Teheran that we intend to rely again not upon supposedly clever manipulation but upon the broadly national and popular forces of the world which look to us for leadership.

World Flow Of Information

PUSEY

THE MISHANDLING of the news of the Roosevelt-Churchill–Stalin conference gives us a rough idea of how important the flow of information between countries has become. All the world waited eagerly to learn what the "big three" had agreed upon. There was a furor when news from Teheran was released in Russia while still being officially withheld in Great Britain and the United States. The people as well as the press are impatient with any system, or lack of system, that deprives them of information so vital to their future welfare and happiness.

Conferences such as that held at Teheran may well become commonplace when the war is over, for colossal problems of interest to the victor nations will remain to be solved. Obviously news from those meetings should flow freely throughout the world. With the end of hostilities, censorship will probably cease to botch up this service. But the exchange of information between world capitals will still be greatly handicapped by the lack of a world communication system.

It is interesting to recall that President Wilson was much concerned about freedom of communications when he went to the peace conference in Paris in 1919. He saw that an exchange of information between nations is essential to understanding among them as well as to commerce. He knew that the best antidote to narrow nationalism is a free flow of news throughout the world. So he was eager to avoid any extensive control over communications by one power.

THE FAILURE to achieve any world communications system at Paris was undoubtedly a factor in the growth of isolationism in the United States and other countries. It left one nation—Great Britain—with a virtual monopoly over the transmission of messages across the great oceans of the world. And that one nation has been able to dictate the terms and conditions on which the flow of news and business communications may continue.

This monopoly succeeded in breaking a contract negotiated in 1931 for a direct radio circuit between the United States and Australia. It forced the transmission of massages between these two countries by way of Montreal or Vancouver. The war necessitated a change in this indirect routing. But the direct circuit now in operation is authorized only for the duration and it preserves the old discriminatory rate of 58 cents a word compared to 30 cents between Australia and Canada.

There is still no direct press circuit between this country and Australia. American correspondents assigned to General MacArthur can get messages through only at a cost of 12 to 14½ cents a word. Stories from the same area to Canadian papers are carried at less than two cents a word.

These facts have been brought to light by Chairman Fly of the FCC. Even the war, he points out, has not broken down the ban on direct communications between the United States and India or between the United States and South Africa. Messages to those countries have to pass through the bottleneck of London. Messages between this country and our neighbors to the south cost 30 cents a word. To talk of a free flow of information in these circumstances would be meaningless hyperbole.

IT IS very encouraging to note that official Washington is wrestling with this problem in advance of the peace conference. There seems to be general agreement that the first step should be the merger of American companies operating in this field. "At present our American carriers must compete with foreign monopolies, either government owned or government backed and controlled," said Mr. Fly recently. "These foreign monopolies play one American carrier off against the other," with resulting high rates to the American public. This problem has been laid before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

Cooperation among the United Nations in working out a world communications system is no less important than any other aspect of postwar collaboration. Good will and understanding must be constantly fed by an exchange of ideas and give-and-take discussion of programs. We would be building on a very shaky foundation indeed if we set out to create a world-wide peace system without the means of communicating directly and inexpensively with all our Allies.

House Unit Reported Working On Stronger Soldier Vote Bill

Representative Eugene Worley (Democrat) of Texas, chairman of the House Elections Committee, last night predicted his group will work out a soldier vote bill "that will be more than the gesture the Senate approved."

Worley is House author of a Federal war ballot bill similar to the Green-Lucas measure, which the Senate scrapped last week in favor of an invitation to the States to enact liberalized absentee vote laws for soldiers.

The Texas Democrat said: "I'm a States' rights man, and have voted against antipoll tax legislation, but that certainly isn't the issue on this bill. Soldier poll tax payments, as a voting prerequisite, were waived in the 1942 law.

"There was never any question of invading States' rights in this legislation—the idea was to assure the soldiers the vote by State-Federal cooperation. Obviously both the State and National Governments have to work together if this legislation is to be more than a gesture."

Worley was reported working on a compromise to be subcommitted to his committee shortly after it received the Senate-passed Eastland-McClellan-McKellar bill.

Several inadvertent errors in the hastily passed Senate substitute meanwhile came to light, including one reference to the controversial War Ballot Commission, which the Senate thought it had stricken from the bill.

These may be corrected by the Senate before the bill is formally sent to the House, or may be ironed out in the House committee.

The War Ballot Commission still appears in an amendment by Senator Taft (Republican) of Ohio, designed to prohibit distribution of political propaganda to soldiers by Government agencies. It would clear any "communication, order, magazine, newspaper or other literature," which was first "submitted to the United States War Ballot Commission, and found by such commission not to be in violation of this section, but it shall not be compulsory to make such submission."

The Congressional Record also shows that authors of the substitute agreed to a suggestion by Senator Tydings (Democrat) of Maryland that some provision be made to qualify absentee soldiers, who obviously cannot get home to register under State law. But no language covering the suggestion was included in the bill.

Worley pointed out that the substitute was "not clear" on a vital point—whether it modified the 1942 law, which specifically waived registration and poll tax requirements for soldiers.

Truman Rail Pay Resolution Will Be Before Senate Today

The Truman resolution, overriding Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson, to grant a flat 8-cent-an-hour pay increase to nonoperating railroad employes, will automatically come before the Senate today during consideration of the Senate unanimous consent calendar.

Sponsors said Senate action was problematic, as a single objection could block immediate passage of the bill.

Senator Harry S. Truman (Democrat) of Missouri, author of the resolution, said he would serve notice of a motion to call up the bill if the measure was passed over on the calendar.

Next scheduled Senate order of business is consideration of the last deficiency bill reported by the Appropriations Committee over the weekend. Truman said he would defer his motion until Senate disposal of the deficiency bill if Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee requests it. In that event, he said he would ask consideration of the rail pay measure as the next order of business.

The Truman resolution would validate the August 7 agreement between railway labor and management on the flat 8-cent increase, recommended by a presidential emergency board. This was set aside by Vinson in favor of a 4 to 10 cent sliding scale pay recommendation of a second emergency board, which the unions refused.

Security Bank Capital Boost Is Approved

By S. Oliver Goodman

Stockholders of the Security Savings & Commercial Bank at a special meeting yesterday approved a plan to increase the bank's capital stock from $300,000 to $500,000, President F. G. Addison, jr., reported last night.

The plan provides for issuing of rights to buy one share of new stock at $150 for each three shares now owned. The rights will expire December 22, after which a stock dividend of one share for each four shares then owned will be declared payable to stockholders of record on that date.

President Addison stated that when the plan is completed the bank will have $500,000 capital, $400,000 surplus and about $100,000 undivided profits. The outstanding capital debenture notes of $160,000 will be retired.

Resources of Security Savings & Commercial Bank, 9th and G sts. nw., were $19,964,634 as of October 18, 1943.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Gas Net Dips in Month

Although gross revenues increased, net income of the Washington Gas Light Co. declined slightly in October.

The company's monthly statement on file with the Public Utilities Commission disclosed yesterday that October gross was $833,567, a gain of $79,687 as compared with last year. Operating expenses, including depreciation and taxes, totaled $768,452 or a gain of $78,678 as compared wth the same 1942 month.

Net income of $12,419 compared with $18,762 in October, 1942.

The report also showed total gas sales of 1,261,821 mcf (thousand cubic feet) in October, compared with 1,120,403 mcf last year. Meters in service at the end of the month totaled 186,777, compared with 183,512 a year ago.

Net income of the gas company for the first ten months this year totaled $931,256, an increase of $177,717 over the same period last year. Operating revenues were $842,253 higher, while expenses gained $619,087.

30 Receive Bonus Checks

Christmas bonus checks were presented to 30 employes of the W. & J. Sloane Co., furniture store, by Henry J. Zillix, assistant vice president. Zilliox read a letter of commendation from W. E. S. Griswold, jr., president of the company.

No Refunds Necessary

A new departure in giving stockholders greater knowledge of a corporation's work in wartime was taken yesterday by the American Can Co. in distributing a report which showed that the firm had cleared all Government renegotiation without the necessity for making refunds on its contracts.

Copies of the report were mailed to approximately 34,000 shareholders together with a letter in which M. J. Sullivan, president, disclosed that the Price Adjustment Section of the War Department had notified the company that, after reviewing all of its war contracts and orders for 1942, no unreasonable profits were realized by the company and that no refunds will be required under renegotiation.

Factory Building Gains

The Manufacturers Record reported yesterday that higher industrial construction figures had boosted Southern States contracts to $138,396,000 in November for the highest level of construction below the Mason and Dixon line in five months.

The total represented a 64 per cent increase over construction in October.

"Industrial awards amounted to $67,209,000, the strongest total for this type of construction in the South since the March peak of $80,102,000," the report said.

Whisky Dividend Allowed by Court

Detroit, Dec. 6 (AP).—Circuit Judge James E. Chenot today dissolved an injunction restraining the Tom Moore Distillery Co. from paying a Christmas dividend of whisky to its stockholders.

Company officials announced immediately that the distribution—27 gallons of whisky for each share of stock—would be made on December 21.

Erpi Films Acquired By Encyclopedia Firm

Chicago, Dec. 6 (AP).—Acquisition by the Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc., of Erpi Films from Western Electric Co., was announced today by William Benton, chairman of the board of the Britannica.

Benton said the Britannica had formed the Encyclopedia Britannica Films, Inc., to act as owner of Erpi. Benton will be chairman of the board of Erpi in addition to his present duties.

Southern Pacific Net Gains

The Southern Pacific Transportation Co. and affiliated companies excluding the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico, reported net income of $64,510,624, equal to $17.10 a share for 10 months ended October 31, compared with $63,040,614 or $16.71 a share for the 1942 period.

War Shipments Of Auto Plants Near 13 Billion

Detroit, Dec. 6 (AP).—The Automotive Council for War Production reported today that in the two years since Pearl Harbor the factories that formerly made automobiles and automotive parts have delivered nearly 13 billion dollars' worth of war products and currently are operating at a level of more than 10 billion dollars annually.

At the same time, C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors Corp., said that 116 General Motors plants throughout the Nation have turned out five billion dollars' worth of war materials in the last two years and now are producing at a rate of $12,500,000 a day.

The council statement said that since Pearl Harbor the dollar value of war goods has increased several times over in all categories. Aircraft production currently exceeds four billion dollars annually, 11 times the pre-Pearl Harbor rate; output of military vehicles has been tripled, exceeding $2,500,000,000 annually, and eight tanks now leave assembly lines for every one produced before Pearl Harbor.

Production of guns is valued at 675 million dollars annually, 10 times higher than the late 1941 rate; ammunition output is at the rate of 400 million dollars and marine equipment at 600 million dollars annually, the council reported.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Dec. 6 (AP).—All grain futures prices were swept sharply higher today by general buying resulting fro mconfusion over the effects of the upward adjustment in corn ceilings and temporary freezing of oats and barley at the highest prices prevailing between November 29 and December 3.

All deliveries of wheat, except September, and of oats pushed into new seasonal high levels, with oats and barley at times showing gains of 4 cents or more a bushel.

Wheat finished the day 1⅝ to 2¾ cents higher than Saturday's close, December 1.68¾, May 1.64⅝@1.63½; rye closed 2¾ to 2¾ cents up, December 1.18⅝@1.18¼; oats ended the day with gains of 1⅞ to 3⅛ cents, December 81⅛@80⅞, and barley was up 3 to 3¾ cents, December 1.21¾.

Range follows:

Wheat—	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
December	1.66⅞	1.68¾	1.66⅝	1.68¾
May	1.62⅜	1.64⅝	1.62⅛	1.64½

Area WMC Acts to Aid Labor Market

Facing dwindling manpower supplies due to the father draft and increasing difficulties of recruiting additional labor, the area office of the War Manpower Commission yesterday began a "public education" campaign to assure stabilization of the Washington labor market through enforcement of its program.

Designed to cut down labor turnover, the plan has been in operation since May and was tightened October 15.

"We find that most of our difficulty in obtaining compliance with WMC regulations," Fred Z. Hetzel, area manpower director, said, "is a result of lack of information on the part of employers and workers." Expressing his belief that those who know "are only too willing to abide by the regulations," Hetzel authorized issuance of a simplified copy of the area employment stabilization program as the first step in an intensified "publicity campaign."

The campaign has been developed in cooperation with the area labor-management committee, officials said, and distribution of the pamphlet "How the Employment Stabilization Program of the War Manpower Commission Affects Workers and Employers" has begun.

Jack A. Serber, labor analyst, said that plans have been drawn up to print "several hundred thousand copies" and have them distributed through various trade and civic associations.

In short, "job freezing regulations" are as follows:

1. Workers can be hired only upon showing a referral card from the United States Employment Service if in "critical" or "restricted" occupations, or if changing from agriculture to non-agriculture and coming from "essential" or "locally needed" activities.

2. Statements of availability are necessary for all workers changing jobs in "essential or locally needed activities."

3. In-migrant or out-migrant workers have to get an "inter-area release" from their local USES office.

There are a number of exclusions and special cases and full information is available at the area USES offices; District of Columbia, 501 K st. nw., DI 7000; Hyattsville, Md., 5404 Rhode Island ave., WA 3570; Silver Spring, Md., 8511 Colesville rd., SH 6064, and Alexandria, Va., 301 King st., AL. 4224.

This area includes the District, Prince Georges, Montgomery, Arlington and Fairfax Counties, and Alexandria, Va.

Arthur J. Dodge

A committee of National Press Club members was appointed yesterday to honor their second president, Arthur J. Dodge, 83, at funeral services for the late editor tomorrow at 11 a. m. in Hysong's funeral home. Private interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

R. M. Calloway Dies; Reading Clerk of House

Roger M. Calloway, reading clerk in the House of Representatives, died Sunday morning after a prolonged illness at his home, 2120 16th st. nw.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. today at the Lee funeral home, 4th and Massachusetts ave. ne. The Rev. James S. Montgomery, chaplain of the House, will officiate and interment will be at Arlington Cemetery with military honors, Calloway having served in World War I. The Benjamin B. French Lodge, F. and A. M., will conduct the rites at the grave.

Mr. Calloway, who was 47 years old, was born in Sheridan, Wyo., where he engaged in the banking business up to 1929 when he became an examiner with the Farm Loan Board, now part of the Farm Credit Administration. He resigned in 1937 to accept the job of House reading clerk. In 1940 he was assistant reading clerk of the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

The surviving relatives are: his wife, Mrs. Louise Calloway; a son, Roger M. Calloway, jr.; a daughter, Miss Patricia Calloway; his mother, Mrs. Clara Calloway, all of the District, a sister, Mrs. J. R. MacGregor of Pittsburgh, and a brother, Sidney Calloway of Los Angeles.

Paul Kuhnel

Funeral services for Paul Kuhnel, the oldest member of Trinity Lutheran Church, 4th and E sts. nw., will be held at the church today at 2:30 p. m. Kuhnel, who would have been 99 on February 12, died Saturday at his residence, 625 Massachusetts ave. ne. Interment will be in the family plot at Rock Creek Cemetery.

A native of Germany, Mr. Kuhnel came to this country at the age of 14 and moved from New York City to Washington in 1881 to become a typographer in the Postoffice Department. He was a member of the United States Postoffice Department Immediate Relief Association.

Surviving are one son, George D. Kuhnel, auditor in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and two daughters, Miss Martha M. Kuhnel, who was living with her father, and Mrs. Howard R. Thatcher, of Baltimore, Md.

Maj. Amos Tyree

Maj. Amos Tyree, 74, of Seabring, Fla., who died there Sunday, will be interred in Arlington tomorrow at 2 p. m. with military honors.

Major Tyree, who up to 12 years ago when he retired, was in the Quartermaster General's office of the War Department. Since that time he had made his home at Seabring.

The surviving relatives are three sons, Maj. Victor Tyree, Air Corps, Washington; Darwin G. Tyree, an attorney in Portland, Oreg., and Comdr. David M. Tyree, USN, now on duty in the South Pacific.

Sinatra, a Father, Called in Draft

Boston, Dec. 6 (AP).—Frank Sinatra, crooner, currently appearing in a Boston theater, said today that he had been ordered by his Selective Service Board to report for examination preliminary to induction in Jersey City next Saturday, at 9 a. m.

Now classed 1-A, the singer is 26, married, has a 3-year-old daughter, and expects to become a father for a second time soon.

Herter Hits 'Inequalities' Of Rationing

Describing the present ration system as "an unholy mess," Representative Christian A. Herter (Republican) of Massachusetts asserted yesterday that the populace will resent inequalities of rationing even more as increasing shortages "make them pull in their belts a few more notches."

In an address before the League of Republican Women of the District at 1612 Rhode Island ave. nw., Representative Herter advocated that sugar rationing be discontinued for the consumer "because there is no real justification for it in view of existing and prospective supplies."

He qualified his recommendation by adding that "something should be done to curb bootleggers from hoarding sugar for alcoholic drinks."

The speaker, a member of the Republican Food Supply Committee of the House, reminded that the United States has been blessed with seven years of bountiful crops, particularly the last two, which were far above normal in yields per acre. But he warned of the possibility of crop shortages, pointed toward the scarcity of farm labor, and said the dairy and poultry farmers are being forced out of business.

Referring to the fishermen's strike along the Eastern Atlantic shore, Representative Herter said: "The fishermen do not resent the recently imposed OPA ceiling prices too much, but they are kicking because the average 35 per cent cut in their prices is not reflected in the consumer price. Approximately 75 per cent of the present fish sales, beginning with the wholesalers, is a black market."

Among inequalities cited in the present rationing he said were couples eating mostly at home are penalized in ration points for the benefit of others who eat in hotels and restaurants; a baby 1 day old receives as many points as a coal miner, and a person who lives in the city receives as many points as the farmer who can supplement his food supply. Representative Thomas L. Jenkins (Republican), of Ohio, introduced the speaker and predicted in his brief remarks that "the worst will come in the spring when this year's harvests have been consumed."

Sterling James Gardner

Funeral services for Sterling James Gardner, 75, a member of the Society of Oldest Inhabitants, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Hines funeral home, with burial in Congressional Cemetery. Mr. Gardner, who for many years made his home at 3667 18th st. nw., died Saturday after a long illness.

A native of the District, he was manager of the Parkway Stables, which became in later years the Parkway Motor Co. In addition to being an active member of the Society of Oldest Inhabitants, he belonged to the Odd Fellows.

Surviving are his wife, the former Katie Jane Houck, whom he married 53 years ago; a son, Sterling James Gardner, jr., of Dundalk, Md.; a daughter, Mrs. Louise Donk of Hamilton, Canada, and a granddaughter, Miss Nancy Gardner of Washington.

Lieut. Comdr. John Orin Speer, whose wife, Mrs. Edith Bower Speer, lives at Annapolis, Md., was listed as dead yesterday by the Navy Department.

Children's Hospital Plans Extra Student Nurse Space

A move to provide extra quarters for student nurses at Children's Hospital was begun yesterday when members of the hospital board, at their annual meeting, voted to seek $76,000 in Lanham Act funds from the FWA for partial financing of the project.

A special committee recently was appointed to consider the proposed additions to present facilities, made necessary as more young women are recruited into the Cadet Nurse Corps.

Charles D. Drayton, president of the board of directors, pointed out that the proposed wing would house about 30 nurses, approximately the same number now living outside the hospital. Recruits are needed to combat the current nurse shortage, and still more allocations will be sought, he said.

Many Progressive Steps

In his report yesterday, Drayton indicated that during the past year, 6263 patients were treated on 47,946 hospital days. About 48,300 received treatment in the dispensary, in addition to 8303 in the Child Welfare Department.

"Many progressive steps" in Children's Hospital services this year were reported by Assistant Superintendent John J. Anderson, as he detailed installation of time-saving business machines, a dispensary addition through an FWA grant, a public address system and the new project, instituted last month, of microfilming medical records.

Personnel Riddled

Commented Superintendent Mattie M. Gibson: "Due to the steady decline in personnel, only essential work can be undertaken with such large numbers of our medical, nursing and professional staffs already in the armed forces and many others . . . gone into the Government or to war plants where higher salaries are obtained."

The superintendent commended the present staff for "valiantly working long hours with loyalty and understanding in planning the work of nurses, students and personnel so that all essential service may be rendered." She paid special tribute to volunteers, including the Red Cross Nurses Aides, Gray Ladies and Motor Corps, and the Junior League of Washington.

Miss Lucy J. Breubaker

Funeral services for Miss Lucy Jane Breubaker, 83, who died on Saturday at the home of her niece, Miss Susie Cronise, Woodmont, Md., will be held at 2 p. m. today at the funeral home of W. Reuben Pumphrey, Bethesda. The Rev. Herbert O. Cooper, pastor of the Rockville Baptist Church, will officiate, and burial will be in Rockville Union Cemetery.

Miss Breubaker was a native of Botetourt County, Va., and had lived in the Bethesda and Rockville neighborhoods for the past 50 years. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. George Dupree of Buchanan, Va., and a number of nieces and nephews. She belonged for many years to the Rockville Baptist Church.

Mrs. W. Austin Wadsworth

Mrs. W. Austin Wadsworth, 74, New York socialite and related by marriage to Representative Wadsworth (Republican) of New York, died yesterday at Genesco, N. Y.

A successful breeder and racer of horses, she was the owner of Hotspur, one-time winner of the Maryland Hunt Cup. She also owned Which Mate, believed one of the few stallions to be both hunter and racer.

Mrs. Wadsworth, (nee Elizabeth Green Perkins) of Boston, Mass., is survived by a son, Capt. William P. Wadsworth, USA, and four grandchildren.

With Shirley Povich

Steve Owen, the coach of the New York Giants, is a stout gentleman with a genius for producing teams that can beat the Redskins. At least it would seem to be more than a coincidence that the Redskins have been taking it on the chin from Owen's Giant teams for seven years now.

POVICH

The figures are very illuminating. Thirteen games between the two clubs have been played since the 1937 season. The Redskins have won exactly four. They tied one. The Giants won the rest. Apparently there isn't must reason to be startled any time the Giants beat the Redskins.

Owen's secret is no secret at all. It's obvious that he sets up the league's best pass defense against Sammy Baugh. Down through the years, Baugh has found it tough going against the Giants. He completes passes, sure; he completed 16 of 'em Sunday, but he doesn't throw touchdown passes against Owen's Giants. Certainly Baugh hasn't been beating the Giants' brains out with touchdown throws.

Again the figures on that score are pretty interesting. In his seven years in the league, Baugh has completed 78 passes for touchdowns. How many of them against the Giants? Exactly four. Off hand, that sound incredible, but that's all it adds up to. And without Baugh throwing touchdown passes, the Redskins are never very awe-inspiring.

The amazing feature of the Giants' victory over the Redskins Sunday was the fact that the Giants ran the Redskins ragged without even the threat of a passing attack. The Redskins never had to split their defenses, yet a team that was committed to running kept pounding the ball down their throats. And the Giants never had been acclaimed for their running attack.

It's pretty apparent that the Redskins were done in. They are hurt, battered and weary. They're victims of the not-quite-bright idea to call them to training in July. They're plenty tired. They no more resemble the team that was winning five in a row earlier in the season than this reporter resembles Gable. They could blow the Eastern title that they couldn't lose two weeks ago.

In the first seven games of the season, there wasn't a touchdown scored through the Redskin line. It was a good one, as long as the players weren't hurt and weary. Their season has been too long. In the last two games, the Redskins have given up six touchdowns. All of them through the line that couldn't be scored on.

If the Redskins blow the Eastern championship, it won't be the players' fault. Their schedule was messed up when the Redskins' front office tried to move in on Clark Griffith's baseball team in its own ball park before the baseball season was completed. The Redskins' first game of the season was to be with the Giants on the blithe presumption that Griffith would give up his final Sunday baseball date in deference to the great game of pro football. Griffith didn't do it.

And so, the Redskins, instead of meeting the Giants in the season's opener when they were in top condition, were forced to play their two games with the Giants on consecutive Sundays at the close of the schedule, with half of the results already known. If the Giants had been played in the season's opener on a date that wasn't an attempt to jump the gun on the baseball season's close, the Redskins would probably have the Eastern title locked up at this time, despite their traditional tough going against Owen's teams.

As it is, the Redskins are in an unanticipated spot. A dozen of them are ailing and all of them are tired. The Giants are now hot on the scent of the play-off dough that, a week ago, seemed far out of reach. Most of the pressure will be on the Redskins Sunday. To beat the Giants, they'll need more than that extra coach they acquired last Sunday at the Polo Grounds.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis hides a sense of humor beneath his deep scowls and forbidding countenance. He demonstrated it the other day when he had William D. Cox, banished president of the Phillies, on the witness stand during Cox's rehearing after he was ousted by Landis.

"I'll try to recall some of the circumstances when you came to my hotel room in New York," Landis told Cox. "I'm an old man, and my memory isn't as good as it used to be. You correct me if I'm wrong. You came into my office at 1:57 with your hat in your left hand. I offered you a chair on my right. On my left was Mr. O'Connor. I took notes on a small pad. At the finish, you initialed them 'W.D.C.' I told you I had to make a 4:55 train to the suburbs. I'm sorry I'm an old man and can't remember things as well as I could."

Pro League Has Biggest Season in '43

Chicago, Dec. 6 (AP).—The National Football League will close one of its most successful seasons Sunday with attendance for the 40-game schedule reaching the 1,072,469 mark—an increase of 36.7 per cent over last year for each game.

The turnstile figure, announced today by league officials, is based in advance of the Redskins-New York Giants game at Washington Sunday, which already is a sellout with a crowd of some 35,500 expected.

Last year's 55-game chart attracted 1,079,148 fans, an average of 19,620 per game. This season's average is 26,811.

One reason for the increase, officials said, is that fans were attracted to pro football when some colleges in the East suspended the sport for the duration of the war. Another reason is that the league is more evenly balanced, resulting in a tigher championship race and increasing the chances of upsets.

New York drew the greatest crowds, 245,398 for six games, 56,691 for the Chicago Bears-Giants contest being the largest gathering of the season.

Washington will have drawn 213,650 for six games, all of them sellouts. Following in order were Detroit with 160,360 for five games, Philadelphia, 129,347 for six and Chicago, 124,614 for seven.

Charlie Hall, Former Red Sox Pitcher Dies

Ventura, Calif., Dec. 6 (AP).—Charlie Hall, 58, former major league baseball pitcher, died at his home today following a long illness.

Hall was a member of the Boston Red Sox team that won the 1912 World Series from the New York Giants.

One of Hall's favorite baseball stories was how he fanned Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford and Jim Delahanty of the Detroit Tigers in succession to save an important game.

Cox Will Drop Exoneration Plea

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—William D. Cox, former president of the National League Phillies who was banned from baseball on charges he bet on games, said tonight he had decide to "drop the matter."

After his plea for exoneration was denied by Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis at a hearing here Saturday, Cox had indicated he might send further evidence to Landis and ask for another hearing.

Alsab Given 122 Impost In Rich 'Cap

New Orleans, Dec. 6 (AP).—Marriage, winner of the $25,000 New Orleans Handicap last winter, was assigned top weight of 124 pounds today for the $15,000 added Louisiana Handicap to be run at the Fair Grounds here Saturday, December 18.

The race will be over a mile and an eighth with Marriage, competing among entries from 18 nominations, carrying the silks of Coward & Dupuy, Texas owners.

Alsab, Mrs. Albert Sabath's "Cinderalla" horse who was rested up in 1943, was weighted next to Marriage at 122 pounds. The little money-maker won $345,165 in stakes in 1941 and 1942 and is expected to add much color to the Fair Grounds. It is his first trip here and George Woolf is slated to ride him.

William Helis' Salto is expected to be another strong candidate from among the crop of best handicappers in the race which the great Whirlaway won last year.

Salto made an impressive showing Saturday by winning the Mississippi Handicap, a 6 furlong sprint, in 1:13, best time of the winter meet to date.

Others who have been working well at the Fair Grounds are Mrs. B. Whitaker's Requested and Pop's Pick.

The nominations, announced by Racing Secretary Julius Reeder, with weights, follow:

Marriage, 124 pounds; Alsab, 122; Requested, 115; First Fiddle, 115; Pop's Pick, 113; Reaping Glory, 110; Salto, 110; Bushwacker, 108; Samborombon, 106; Sickle's Choice, 106; Blue Serge, 106; Shotput, 106; He Rolls, 104; Latent, 104; Incoming, 102; War Master, 102; O. K. Sugar, 102, and War Gleam, 100.

Regatta on Severn to Replace Poughkeepsie During War

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—A new rowing race, designed to replace the Poughkeepsie Regatta that has been suspended for the duration, has been tentatively scheduled for May 20 on the Severn River at Annapolis, Md.

Harrison Sanford of Cornell, president of the Rowing Coaches of America, announced the new regatta after the annual meeting of the association at the Hotel Lexington.

"We realize," he said, "that war and the wartime study and training of the men come first in modern college life, but we are anxious to keep rowing alive and make it contribute its part to that wartime training of students."

It is understood that the Naval Academy, located at Annapolis, is prepared to boat all visiting crews at the new regatta since, because of travel restrictions, they will bring only their oars. All college rowing will be invited to compete since the Severn is large enough to handle six crews without difficulty over a mile and three-quarters course.

On the Line

Turnstiles Still Whirl Despite War's Heavy Toll of Sports

By Bob Considine

New York Dec. 6 (INS).—The mob still comes, the turnstiles continue to whirl as if nothing had happened. But even a casual checkup on the second anniversary of Pearl Harbor shows the breath-taking toll that the war has exacted on sports.

A vast number of the most colorful men in athletics are gone, some of them forever.

Baseball has lost its finest names and box office attractions—Bob Feller, Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams, Hank Greenberg, Charlie Ruffing, Johnny Mize, Ted Lyons, Terry Moore, Johnny Beazley, Enos Slaughter and so many more that you could pick nine of them at random and beat the current champion Yankees until said champs were groggy. Perhaps the game's greatest news-producer, Larry MacPhail, is a lieutenant colonel. Minor leagues have died like flies.

Boxing has been bled even less colorful, what with nearly every champion and leading challenger in uniform. These include Joe Louis, Billy Conn, Gus Lesnevich, Tony Zale, Billy Soose, Fred Apostoli, Ken Overlin, Georgie Abrams, Ray Robinson, Red Cochrane and Marty Servo. Out of the saga of Guadalcanal came boxing's chief contribution to World War II heroes—Sergt. Barney Ross, USMC. The game's two champions-emeriti, Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, and its greatest living former Lightweight Champion, Benny Leonard, serve their country as naval officers. The Baer brothers and another guy who could always pack them in, Tony Galento, are noncoms in the Army.

DIMAGGIO ROSS

College football exists mainly by Government subsidy, and many fine old foundries of learning have closed up their football departments for the duration. Pro football retains a nucleus of prewar strength, but it is a rapidy drying well. It can no longer "draft" the leading college seniors of the season because those seniors are answering a sterner draft. The tip-off to how far the game has gone back is the return this year of Bronko Nagurski. The Hutsons, Baughs and Leemans give the game a deceptive flavor of its prewar culture, but they're not being pushed by hordes of incoming pass-receivers, throwers and runners, which is why they continue to look good. The Redskin team that had Baugh and Cliff Battles was barely able to win the title that season, but it would have been able to beat the current Redskins by almost any score which pleased its fancy, and so would three or four other teams of that 1937 vintage.

Golf is washed up, one of the victims of gas rationing, though it will hold its franchise in the winter sports pages by attempting a string of resort tournaments this cold spell, featuring some of the game's outstanding cases of hardened arteries. Tennis' best players—Budge, Riggs, Perry, Kovacs and Hunt—are in uniform, and the international flavor which kept the sport in the forefront is gone. Hockey has lost enough Patricks alone to bleed it white.

The one sport which has not suffered is horse-racing, naturally. Three of that game's post-Pearl Harbor babies—Whilaway, Alsab and Count Fleet—made enduring racing history.

Racing had its greatest season not despite the war but because of it. The war produces jobs; jobs produce money; money leads to gambling, and the race horse people decently enough take enough time out from improving the breed to provide the means by which the financially saturated citizens can bet. Racing is only one sport which has stimulated the greatest gambling wave in the history of the country. Probably more money was bet on baseball, college and pro football this past year than during most of the 1930's combined.

GREENBERG DEMPSEY

But from a muscular standpoint the other sports go along timidly, manned mainly by fuzzy-cheeked lads, crachety gaffers and gentlemen with perforated eardrums. They wear the familiar colors, brandish their pantomime against familiar backgrounds, hauntingly recite as the masters did. But it's 90 per cent ersatz. They know it and most of the people know it.

"It's the only wheel in town," as the gambler shrugged and said when he was warned against the crooked roulette in a Red Dog Gulch saloon. The sports are there and the money is there, and the twain shall continue to meet. The things the people are paying to see are not the McCoy. In many cases they are not a distant cousin, by marriage, of McCoy.

But what the hell: McCoy's fighting a war to bring back—among other things—the sports we used to know.

Lee Oma Again Takes Decision From Parks

Local Boy Unable to Land Punch

By Al Costello

Georgie Parks, 188, Washington Negro, took a third strike last night at Turner's Arena before 1424 paid customers as Lee Oma, 187, Detroit, hung up his third straight triumph over the local boy with more or less ease.

Bouncing on and off the ropes with the grace that is credited to the "Man on the Flying Trapese," the sharpshooting Oma won fine of the 10 rounds and was hardly breathing deeply at the end.

He used a flashing left and a sharp right, the latter only on occasion. It could have been a right smart fuss had Oma been inclined to follow up several advantages, but the Detroiter was content to play patty-cake and work out his decision rather than risk leaving himself wide open for Parks to let fly with his ever-dangerous right.

Strictly Jabbing Game

The good looking Oma, who might not look bad in front of a Hollywood camera, disdained infighting, sticking strictly to a jabbing game for most of the evening. Once in a while he chucked the right, usually landing it but not with too much force. For eight rounds it was a case of Oma sticking with his left, bouncing off the ropes as Parks swung—and missed—and crossing with the right. Parks' potent right-hand package might just as well have been left home for he was given no chance to use it.

In the ninth, Parks in a somewhat strange setting, started hooking with his left to the head with good effect. Oma wasn't in trouble, but Parks continued to shoot that hook and did manage to win the round to save himself the ignominy of getting skunked on the scoresheet. In the tenth, Parks was trying hard to land his right in a desperate and futile bid for a knockout, but Oma wasn't having any. Oddly enough, neither fighter landed a blow of any worthy note in the tummy.

Menendez First Show

It was matchmaker Gabe Menendez' first show since again joining forces with Promoter Joe Turner after an Army hitch and it was the first fight the House of Turner hosted in five weeks, due to Turner's 30-day suspension which ended Friday. A gross gate of $2,197 was rung up on the cash register.

Charley Bennett, 144, Washington Negro, repeated his September victory over Eddie Kane, 146, United States Coast Guardsman, scoring a unanimous six-round decision in a clean-cut manner. Bennett punched sharper and more often and was in front from the opening bell to the finish.

The six-round preliminary that saw Young Sloan, 141, Washington, score a technical kayo over Charley Matthews, 140, also Washington, almost stole the show. First one then the other was in bad shape until, in the fifth, the lanky Sloan put Matthew down three times for nine counts before Referee Eddie LaFond stopped it in 1:48.

Another sizzling bout saw Walter Haefer, 200, Marine from Dayton, punch out a 6-round decision over Jimmy Bell, 184, Fayettsville, N. C., Negro, in a free swinging affair.

In a six-rounder after the main event, Bee Bee Washington, 154, of the District, and Gene Brown, 152, Washington, fought to a draw in another slugging match.

After Tough Game

Redskin Squad is Studded With Sprains, Leg Injuries

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Trainer Wilbur Bohm was the busiest man in the Redskin organization yesterday as he treated a steady succession of players who reported with injuries from head to toe, with most of the hurts centered around arm and leg points. Officially, the team had an off day.

Backs Bob Seymour and Frank Seno were additions to Bohm's list of patients, both with sprains and bruises from Sunday's New York Giant game. Linemen Willie Wilkin, Lou Rymkus and Joe Pasqua turned up for fresh wrappings.

Wilbur Moore, feared to have suffered a slight concussion in the New York game in addition to painful bruises to both legs, was scheduled to leave New York with Dr. Robert Moran last night and a report on his condition will be made today. Bob Masterson, handicapped by a severe cold and leg injuries, remained with friends in New Jersey.

The Price of Being Big Shot

The Redskins are paying the penalty of being the league's big shots. Every club the 'Skins have met has pointed for them in extra special fashion, and the poor physical condition of the team is attributed to a string of rough, tough ball games. The Redskins are no softies, either, and they've been getting a few of their rough tactics right back with interest.

The Redskin office sold the last 3000 tickets to the Giant game between 9 a. m. yesterday, when a line almost two blocks long greeted the office force, and 11:30 when the "sold out" sign was hung on the door. The sellout is the sixth straight for the 'Skins at home.

If the Giants win next Sunday's game and create a playoff for the Eastern Division title, the site of the playoff game will be decided by the flip of a coin immediately after the game. General Manager Sid Carroll ordered 35,540 tickets yesterday in event a playoff is necessary, while the Giant management ordered 58,000 per a league ruling that tickets must be ordered in advance in the possibility of a playoff. Meanwhile tickets are being sold in Chicago for the championship game, inscribed "Washington Redskins vs. Chicago Bears." They were ordered when the 'Skins looked to be a cinch to win.

Coach Dutch Bergman's biggest job this week will be plugging the gaps in the Redskin line which has given up 567 yards in the last two games to the Eagles and Giants, and six touchdowns. The 'Skins didn't vary from the five-man line Sunday against the Giants although the threat of a Giant passing attack was almost nonexistent, and

Lieut. Bob Savage, Staunton Athlete, Wounded in Italy

Philadelphia, Dec. 6 (AP).—Lieut. Bob Savage, former Philadelphia Athletics pitcher, was wounded in action in Italy November 5 and has been awarded the order of the Purple Heart, Connie Mack said today.

The Athletics' manager received the information in a letter from Savage's mother, who lives in Manchester, N. H.

Savage, 22, left Staunton Military Academy in May, 1942, to pitch for the Athletics. He returned to Staunton after one season.

Charlotte Hall Sets Cage Season

Charlotte Hall Military Academy will open its basketball season December 11, playing Congress Heights at home. Capt. S. W "Pop" Ehringer, academy mentor, has arranged an 18-game schedule for the last years Maryland Scholastic "B" Conference champions.

From the crack team of last year there are only two boys remaining. Jack Mister and Gerald Heatley. Among possible starters coming up from last year's Jay Vees are Bill Bryan, Walter Dorsey, Hartley Stevens, Modic Waldt and Jack Harding.

The schedule follows:

December 11—Congress Heights, home; 15—Fairfax, away; 16—Western, away.
January 12—Congress Heights, home; 15—Park, home; 18—National Training School, home; 19—Calvert Hall, home; 21—Boys Latin, away; 22—Montgomery Blair, home; 25—Fairfax, home; 26—Calvin Coolidge, away; 28—James Monroe, away.

Little Asks Free Forward Pass Rules

By Harold Claassen

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—Lou Little, football mentor at Columbia and chairman of the Coaches' Rules Committee, recommended today that forward passing be allowed anywhere behind the line of scrimmage by collegians and that the tee be returned as a rest for the ball at the kickoff.

Using a pad and pencil during the interview while his ailing vocal cords got another day of rest, Little said he made the two suggestions in the belief that they would increase the offense.

Unrestricted forward passing behind the line of scrimmage already is a part of the professional football code and is one of the reasons the T-formation clicks so successfully for the Chicago Bears and the Philadelphia - Pittsburgh Steagles. College passers must be five yards behind the line of scrimmage.

Would Aid All Attacks

Little penciled that this suggested rule change not only would benefit all the college T-formations—"and there are likely to be more of them next year than there were this"—but that it also would increase the effectiveness of the double and single wing attacks.

"It would mean the development of the quick forward pass to either end or the wingbacks which would cause the first line of secondary defense quite a bit of trouble," he wrote.

Little's plea that the use of the tee be permitted at the kickoff follows a season in which the out-of-bounds boot at the start of Eastern games was as prevalent as pennant-waving alumni in the stands. The ball then was put in play on the receiving team's 35-yard line.

Longer, Higher Kicks Seen

The voiceless mentor holds that the nonartificial tee would bring a higher, longer kick and would give the kicking team a chance to stop the ball carrier somewhere near the 20-yard line. The present, nontee booting results in fast, low ball which is liable to long runbacks because the defense does not have time to form.

"Seventy-five per cent of the time," he observed, "the kickoff is being kicked out of bounds so the unofficially we have no kickoff. That's unfortunate at the start of the game when everyone is keyed up.

"Unless use of the tee is permitted, as it was a decade ago and as the pros now do, why not drop the kickoff altogether and put the ball in play by a scrimmage?"

As an alternative, Little would have the ball go to the receiving team on the 50-yard line following an out-of-bounds kickoff.

A 'Regular Joe'

Ted Williams, Colors Flying, Passes Battle of Bunker Hill

Bunker Hill, Ind., Dec. 6 (AP)—Officers, fellow cadets and bluejackets crowded around Aviation Cadet Theodore Samuel Williams, USNR, called him a "regular Joe," and sorowfully bade him farewell today as he left the Bunker Hill Naval Air Station with a diploma in his hand.

He has been just "Ted" Williams to officers and crew alike since he landed here last September with a batch of graduates from the Navy's Preflight School at Chapel Hill, N. C.

TED WILLIAMS

The former Boston Red Sox left fielder, who entered the Navy with a brand new brace of American League records and leaving behind a five-figure salary, has established some local popularity records while receiving a flight trainee's pay of $75 a month.

"Williams has done a real job here," said Capt. D. D. Gurley, USNR, commanding officer of Bunker Hill. "You can tell from the way he acts around the training planes that he is a flying enthusiast. His flight instruction was completed more than two weeks ahead of schedule and he was right up with his class in ground school subjects. He has an inquiring mind and

Jockey C. Kirk Boots Home Four Winners

Silver Spring Rider High at Charles Town

By Walter Haight

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 6.—Jockey Carson Kirk of Silver Spring, Md., again carried off the saddle honors on a Charles Town program. Already the leading jockey at the meeting, Kirk added four today to bring his success for seven days of racing to 17.

He won the first with Mrs. M. E. (Liz) Whitney's Spikery and the second with Mrs. P. G. Simms' Silver Beam. Both were $4.60 shots and they teamed to produce a $10.60 daily double. Kirk came back to win the sixth event with Phantom Player, owned by Dr. G. T. Strothers of Brunswick, Md., and paying $3.

But that wasn't enough. Came the eighth race and he rode War Art in for another victory.

Two track records were equaled during the afternoon. E. B. Lee's Chop Sticks, paying $3.60, came home under wraps in the third event to register time of 1:18 3-5, matching the mark of Imperial Impy, set in the James Sager Purse two years ago. Wayne Kenrick's Honeymaid equaled the record for about 4½ furlongs by winning the fifth event at a $5.40 mutuel. Honeymaid was clocked in 0:49, duplicating the time set for this route by Irene's Bob.

The sixth race was the best offering on the Monday program, conducted over a fast track and before some 3500 customers. Phantom Player had some trouble shaking off Grey Days and Ecomint going to the first turn. Kirk finally booted the 4-year-old to the top and it was no contest from that point to the finish.

Notes—Fred Hannon, acting for C. W. Beckman of Pittsburgh, has purchased the horses of the late M. B. Goss. They are Black Magic, Seventeen Guns, My One, Pious Display, Hot Man and Bear Cat. Wesley McDonald, who recently became an owner and watched his Flying Duke win at Pimlico, has resigned as secretary to Senator Reynolds and will practice law. Racing Secretary Fred Burton is trying to line up a handicap for Saturday's program.

Cards Gander at Their Geese

Mort Cooper's pitching eye seems to be just as good behind gun sights, and so does the ball hawk eye of First Baseman Ray Sanders. The two St. Louis Cardinal stars look over the results of a day in the blinds near Cairo, Ill., and Cooper holds a goose he brought down in a nearby cornfield. Cooper probably is a gone goose as far as the Cards are concerned, for he will report for an Army physical December 13.

Cardoza High Harriers Win

Cardoza High's harriers won a closely contested 2-mile cross-country run sponsored by the South Atlantic High School Conference, over a course beginning at the 12th st. YMCA, through Howard University grounds, around the reservoir and ending at the starting point.

The Cardoza team had 40 points, while close behind were Dunbar with 41 and Armstrong with 42. Parker Gray High of Alexandria was fourth, with 95.

Top individual honors went to Stanley Anderson of Armstrong, who ran the course in 16:4. He won a similar race a week ago. Leonard Hansford of Cardoza was second, and Frank Brown of Dunbar third.

Roscoe Evans, president of the South Atlantic Association, announced another 2-mile meet Saturday open to club and unattached runners as well as students.

Hockey Managers Warned of Abuse

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 6 (AP). In an ultimatum, particularly directed, he said, at General Manager Eddie Shore of the Buffalo club, President Maurice Podoloff of the American Hockey League today asserted that the next manager who leaves the bench to abuse an official would be "automatically and indefinitely suspended."

Shore has been fined $500 and $100 so far this season for this, said Podoloff.

Three Jockeys Hurt in Spill

Mexico City, Dec. 6 (AP).—Three American jockeys, Willie Root of Kansas City, Danny Loop of Bellingham, Wash., and Albert Stuper of Cicero, Ill., were injured yesterday in a three-horse spill at the race track here. Root suffered a broken leg and collar bone and Stuper a slight concussion. Loop escaped with minor injuries.

The spill occurred in the third race. Rounding the first turn Parisetta, with Stuper up, stumbled. Chattnan, bearing Root, and Dark Play, with Loop up, were unable to stop and piled into the fallen horse. Ever Chin, a $42.60 for $2 long shot, went on to win.

Willie Speary To Meet Banks At Uline Arena

Willie Speary, 25-year-old Welsh-American lightweight from Nanticoke, Pa., last night signed to box Billy Banks, local Negro favorite, in a 10-round bout at Uline Arena Monday night.

In another 10-rounder, Maxie Berger, Canadian welterweight champion, previously had signed to meet Ernest (Cat) Robinson, hard-hitting Negro warrior from Jamaica, Long Island.

Despite his youth, Willie Speary has met and defated some of the world's outstanding fighters. He has won decisions over Harry Jeffra, Joey Archibald, Johnny Forte, Al Brown, Jimmy Gilligan, Mike Raffa, Johnny Marcelline, Georgie Pace and Paul Jackson; has boxed a draw with Jimmy Hatcher, and holds knockouts over Spider Armstrong, Paul Lee and Aurel Toma.

Banks, hero of a great stand against fast advancing Victor Creelman here recently, has been promised a return bout with Creelman if he makes a satisfactory showing against Speary, one of the topranking men among the 135-pounders since he fought his way out of the featherweight class.

Double Wind-up Mat Card at Arena Wednesday Night

The complete card for tomorrow night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena was closed out yesterday, with a flock of favorites suporting the double wind-up show.

George Macricostas, the Golden Greek, and Michele Leone, the Italian titleholder, will clash in one feature tussle, with the Yellow Mask, mysterious hooded grappler, opposing Tom Mahoney, former prize fighter, in the headliner.

Of particular interest is a 30-minute match in which the Blue Streak, better known as Billy Bartush, will engage Henri Piers, the Flying Dutchman. Bartush, favorite of the old Washington Auditorium days, unmasked last week, much to the delight of the crowd which cheered for him to defeat the Angel. Bartush lost a close bout.

Jimmy Britt, the former British Army champion, makes his third straight appearance, facing Chief Bamba Tabu, the Oklahoma Indian, while Cliff Olson, the Minnesota Swede, will meet Frank Brunowicz in the special 30-minute attraction.

Redskins Limp To Trainer For Patches

Bill Paschal and Ward Cuff were plunging at will through the leaks in the five-man setup. "We've got to have a six and maybe a seven man line against them next week," one of the players said on the train.

The New York line played with only two substitutions, veterans Vic Carroll, a gift from the Redskins to the Giants, and Bull Karcis, the coach of the Detroit Lions last year, both experienced men Coach Steve Owen could depend on.

The Giants' play showed the result of an excellent scouting job in the Redskin-Eagle game, as the shifting and cross blocking of the Giant line-up and mouse trapping of the Redskins was similar to the way the Eagles opened up the Redskin forward wall for 300 yards and four touchdowns the previous week.

Notes—The fourth down pass play the Redskins attempted in the last three minutes against the Giants was conceived in the Loyola University gym in Chicago in August and had not been used until Sunday . . . If Bill Paschal gains 92 yards rushing against the Redskins Sunday and scores one touchdown he will lead the league in yards gained rushing and touchdowns scored in his rookie year. He must be only half as good as he was last Sunday to top those departments . . . When asked the secret of his running ability, Paschal said, "I put my head down and run straight ahead." And that's what he does . . . The Redskins can't complain of being understaffed in the coaching department last Sunday what with Dutch Bergman and Turk Edwards on the bench, plus Doctor Spears, and Vince McNally and Dudley DeGroot on the upstairs phones. . . . In four consecutive ball-carrying assignments Bob Seymour picked up 4, 6, and 7 yards, but his 7-yard gain was nullified when Andy Farkas was detected holding . . . Don Hutson finished the season as the leader in scoring, pass receiving and field goals while Baugh is tops in passing, kicking and interceptions, which is another headache for the most valuable player committee.

$1,250,000 Set As Maryland's Racing 'Take'

Annapolis, Dec. 6 (AP).—The State income from racing during the past season may exceed $1,250,000, or more than two and one-half times the sum expected.

Governor O'Conor made this estimate following a conference with Chairman Frank Small of the State Racing Commission.

The Governor said that Maryland racing—despite war conditions—had attained an all-time peak this fall.

"While complete financial returns are not ready," O'Conor said, "the income of the State for the year will be in excess of two and one-half times the expected $500,000, as it seems certain that the total will be above $1,250,000 and may possibly exceed that by an appreciable figure."

The major Maryland tracks—Pimlico, Bowie, Havre de Grace and Laurel—combined in a 30-day meeting at Pimlico this fall.

DeCorrevont and Pearce Are Touchdowners' Guests

Chief Petty Officer Bill DeCorrevont and Lieut. (j.g.) Hardy L. Pearce of the Branbridge (Md.) Naval Training Station, will address the weekly luncheon of The Touchdown Club today at 12:30 p. m.

DeCorrevont, a member of the untied, undefeated Bainbridge football Commodores this past season, formerly was nationally famous as a great running back at Austin High School, Chicago, and later at Northwestern University.

Pearce, now athletic officer at Bainbridge, played football for George Washington University, later coached sports at Central High School, and was acting director of physical education in District public schools before enlisting.

DeCorrevont first gained fame as a schoolboy player, and on one occasion was the box office smash when Austin High School attracted 105,000 persons to Soldiers Field, Chicago, for one of its games.

Both C. P. O. DeCorrevont and Lieut. Pearce will discuss the value of athletics to the war effort and the popularity of football among men in the armed services.

Whiskey shortage explained

Hiram Walker brands are supplied regularly, yet due to wartime demands your dealer often will be unable to furnish the brand you request

There is a nation-wide shortage of whiskey.

The whiskey now on hand is in no sense a "reserve."

Whiskey is aged for years before it is bottled and marketed and the present supply was intended for sale in '43, '44, '45, '46 and later. And now this supply must be stretched through 1947 and 1948 . . . because distilleries are now making alcohol for war.

That's why there isn't enough whiskey available to meet the public demand.

Yet since our plants stopped distilling whiskey last year there has been no change in the official prices of Hiram Walker brands except for the new federal excise tax in 1942 and the OPA adjustments in 1943.

The official OPA prices in this state are as follows:

Canadian Club
Blended Canadian Whiskey 90 proof. 6 years old
$4.50 4/5 QUART $2.83 PINT
OFFICIAL OPA PRICES

Signet
Bottled-in-Bond Rye Whiskey. 100 proof
$3.27 4/5 QUART $2.07 PINT

IMPERIAL
Blended Whiskey. 86 proof The straight whiskies in this product are 4 years or more old. 30% straight whiskey 70% grain neutral spirits
$2.75 4/5 QUART $1.73 PINT
OFFICIAL OPA PRICES

A substantial quantity of Hiram Walker brands is supplied regularly to this area. Yet the wartime demand is so great that your dealer often cannot furnish the brand you request. In fairness to him, please be patient and remember that the whiskey shortage is real . . . due to the war work of the distilleries. The best way to obtain your favorite brand is to ask for it every time!

THIS IS IT

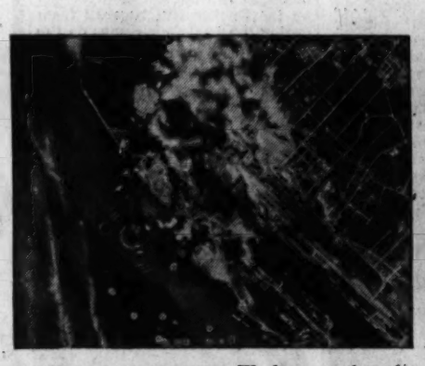
The authorized history, told by the men who made it, of our Eighth Bomber Command's first year over Europe

1. MISSION 95 The complete story of a typical late-stage attack on Germany by the VIII Bomber Command, from the first decision to send out the mission until the last strike photo is pulled that night. The story of the Tar Baby.

2. FROM FIVE MILES UP The history, told in terms any layman can understand, of the conception and development of American high-altitude precision bombing. Why we tried to do what we tried to do.

3. ACT 1, SCENE 1 The story of the early days. The arrival of General Eaker as Bomber Commander in England. The "symbolic" raid of July 4th. "Arrival of aircraft: 1 B 17-E. Total: 1." The first "kindergarten" missions.

4. LUFTWAFFE OVER LILLE The official and eyewitness accounts of our first major air battle, as the American spearhead and the massed strength of the Luftwaffe collide over Lille. Working out the claims problem. The amazing durability of the Forts. An Air-Sea rescue.



5. TWELVE FEET OF CONCRETE We hammer the submarine pens. Formation of "Junior"—the 12th Air Force. How we kept changing our tactics, modifying our plans. "You always get good trouble over St. Nazaire." Operational anecdotes.

6. PARLOUS DAYS Station life from November '42 to the Casablanca conference in January. Restricted operations and why. The problem of "the full breakfast table." Casablanca and the questions on which the future of the VIII Bomber Command depended.

7. TARGET: GERMANY We join the RAF in the Battle of Germany. First attacks against port installations and marshaling yards. Rennes. Vegesack. Bremen. Story of the Southern Comfort. The first deep penetration attack. Jack Mathis' last flight.

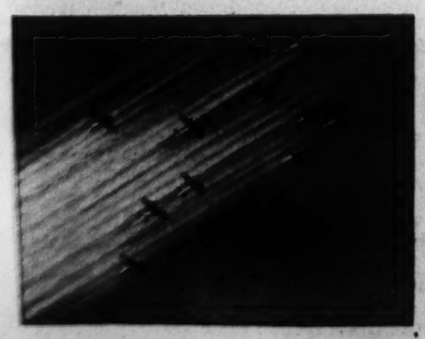
8. BATTLES IN THE SKY The attack on the Renault factories. A Wing Commander's informal notes on one sortie. Bremen. One navigator's story. How a ball-turret gunner won the Congressional Medal of Honor.

9. MEN, MUD, AND MACHINES One enemy the engineers can't arm themselves against. Why it takes some 75,000 men to put 500 heavy bombers over an enemy target. The job of the A.S.F. and the A.S.C. Believe-it-or-not figures that are facts.

10. THE OLD ONE-TWO The German defense network. Air-to-air bombing and rocket guns. Destruction of the Focke-Wulf plant at Bremen. We triple our size and expand our tactics almost overnight. A Sergeant Gunner's diary.

11. THE LOG OF THE LIBERATORS The story of the VIIIth Bomber Command Liberators in the European theater. A Lib pilot describes Kiel. Attack on Ploesti oil fields. "Those German fighters used non-habit-forming tactics!" Summing up of the attack.

12. FULL STRIDE Operations from July 1 to the time this manuscript went to press. The cyclonic air battles of July. "Blitz week." The men of the Happy Daze. The Thunderbolts. Regensburg—when "Each second of time had a cannon shell in it."



13. THE SUMMING UP What the year over Europe has proved. What the immediate future holds; the continued destruction of Germany, her war potential, her will to fight. The future: forging a weapon that will play its part in the shattering of Japan.

TARGET: GERMANY is the official Army Air Forces' story, assembled for the first time, of the VIII Bomber Command's first year over Europe.

It is a comprehensive history of the development of the VIII Bomber Command—literally from the ground up. It is studded with first-person combat stories and tales of individual heroism and endurance. It is the story of Sergeant Arizona Harris, top turret gunner of a Flying Fortress, whose guns were still spitting at six Focke-Wulfs as the waves closed over his stricken ship; it is the story of the radio gunner of a Fortress called the Jersey Bounce, who, after filing a report describing his work on a single flight in which he functioned as gunner, radio operator, physician, electrician, and mortician, closed with the words "That is all there was to it." It is the story of Hell's Angels, Rationed Passion, Pregnant Portia, Southern Comfort, and scores of other Flying Fortresses with adventures as astounding as their names. It is the story of air battles in which enemy fighters and our own planes were falling all around "like dirty drops of rain."

But most of all, TARGET: GERMANY is the epic story of how our European air armada came into being and how it really works. It is the factual account of an audacious experiment in a new kind of warfare, an experiment calling for the highest order of moral as well as physical courage, an experiment to determine whether high-altitude daylight precision bombing could smash key German targets against the fiercest opposition in existence.

In these pages, information is given about the intricate network of the German defense system against our bombers; on the tactical details of our attacks on Europe; on the complete appraisal of damage wreaked on German industry; about the new German methods of defense, such as rocket guns, air mines, and intruder planes, which are our own repaired Flying Fortresses sent up to join our formations and report upon their movements. It gives the reader an opportunity to sit in with the staff while a giant bombing attack is planned. He sees these plans translated into action. He watches a briefing. He observes a great attack both as a participant and from the standpoint of those who stay behind and sweat out the interminable hours before the return.

TARGET: GERMANY is an authorized history, but one of a new type—its emphasis is on human beings and it is told by the men who made it. And when the reader has finished its last page he will have a clear idea of the life of our Air Force men in England—of what it is like to lunch at a Mayfair hotel one day and be a human clay pigeon five miles up over Target Germany next morning—of how a mighty instrument of warfare has been forged for America. All royalties from TARGET: GERMANY go to the Army Air Forces' Aid Society.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Bureaucrats Lose In Economy Attempt

Damn the red tape, economize. That slogan, or words to that effect, has been shouted from all quarters of Capitol Hill for months. The words are aimed at the bureaucrats. Well, some of the "damned" bureaucrats decided to do something about it. It was decided to centralize personnel and retirement records of the more than three million Federal employes in the Civil Service Commission. Each Federal agency now keeps its own records and it takes 1800 employes to do the job. The commission estimates it can do the job with 400 people and the 1400 others can either be given other work or cut from the payroll. The saving in salaries would be $2,300,000. You'd think that Congress would jump at the proposition and give the bureaucrats a pat on the back for coming up with an idea to cut the Federal payroll.

Well, what they got was a kick in the pants. The Senate Appropriations Committee knocked out the project and simply said it wasn't in sympathy with it. But to keep the record straight, the House committee and the Byrd committee do approve of the plan. The real reason the Senate committee killed the plan is its desire to protect the Civil Service retirement system. Now that's a commendable and worthwhile position but it's a bit ridiculous to kill the whole project. All witnesses agreed that centralization of records would result in economy and efficiency. What they did not agree on was the numbers to be used on the records.

The Administration proposed that Social Security numbers be used on the records for identification purposes. It took this position because it meant greater economies and these facts were cited to prove it: (1) The War Department's 1,200,000 employes have Social Security numbers and it would cost $100,000 to shift over to any other numbering system. (2) An estimated 2,675,000 employes already have Social Security numbers from having worked in private industry and this means that only about 500,000 new numbers would have to be assigned. (3) The cost of operating the Social Security number system would be $60,000 annually less than any other system. However, the installation of the Social Security system would cost $39,000 compared to $27,500 for any other system. It's obvious that sound administration and economy is heavily in favor of Social Security numbers.

But before the Senate Committee went Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, and he said the use of Social Security numbers by the commission was the first step toward dumping the Civil Service retirement system into Social Security. The plan, he said, would arouse the universal horror and resentment of permanent Federal workers. He pictured Social Security Board officials as eager to grab the billion dollars in the Civil Service fund. Senator McKellar chimed in to say that he thought the plan was "guileless and insidious." The economies of the plan—the savings in personnel and money—were soon forgotten.

To repeat, I don't know of anyone who wants to see the two pension system merged and Federal workers given the meager Social Security benefits after they have contributed 5 per cent of their salaries to the Civil Service fund. Now that the issue has been raised and the Civil Service system so vigorously protected only a fool would try to consolidate them. Any merger would have to be approved by Congress and it's evident to all that it wouldn't do it. But why kill the whole record plan and its economies? To salve Steward and other employe groups that oppose any part of Social Security a provision could be added reaffirming the faith of Congress in the Civil Service system and its independence. That should settle the issue. But if the plan is killed it'll squelch future plans of the bureaucrats to economize. What's the use, they'll say? We'll be damned if we do and damned if we don't.

Cy Smith will be appointed deputy in Food Distribution in charge of prices and rationing. . . . Former Governor Townsend of Indiana will be the next top official to leave War Foods Administration. . . . The resignation of Dillon Myer, chief of War Relocation Authority, is expected by Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill . . . The Byrd Committee is now getting out its own statistical report on the number of Federal workers. On November 1, it reports, there were 2,921,068 full-time Government employes in this country, a decrease of 10,115 over the previous month. War Department was commended for cutting it's staff 15,000. Civil Service hasn't put out a statistical report in months.

The Ramspeck Civil Service Investigating Committee will hold a hearing tomorrow. It's expected to hire Col. Edward McCormack of Smaller War Plants Corporation as its chief investigator . . . Representative Charley Halleck of Indiana, is a good bet to be appointed chairman of the Republican National Congressional Committee to succeed the late Representative Ditter . . . Honesty note: Capitol Hill policemen are now guarding the newspaper cash box on the House side of the Capitol. Newspapers are purchased from the stand via the "honor" system.

McCarran Asks Firings At Gallinger

A "complete change in administration" yesterday was described by Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee as the lone method by which Gallinger Municipal Hospital could render the greatest service to Washington.

Commenting on the failure of a $15,750 appropriation providing for the addition of nine Gallinger employes to pass the Senate Appropriations Committee, the Nevada Senator said: "I am not going to support or sponsor further expenditure for supervisory offices which do not promise to afford relief from the deplorable conditions that prevail there."

He emphasized that he believed that the recommendations of the Gallinger Investigating Subcommittee should be carried out. The full District Committee will meet in executive session next Monday for consideration of the report, submitted by Senators Holman of Oregon, Bushfield of South Dakota and Buck of Delaware, all Republicans.

Recommendations made at the conclusion of hearings in October included dismissal of Commissioner Guy Mason, District Health Officer George C. Ruhland, Superintendent Edgar A. Bocock, and two other Gallinger physicians, Dr. Joseph L. Gilbert, chief psychiatrist, and Dr. Charles P. Cake, head of the tuberculosis ward. The subcommittee also urged removal of old frame buildings used as part of the T. B. ward, modernization of the psychopathic ward, and appointment of a board of visitors to make regular inspections of all District hospitals and jails.

Better Conditions Needed

McCarran's statement yesterday added: "It is not additional administrators the hospital needs, but improvement of conditions for the unfortunate people who are patients. All the additional supervision in the world won't relieve that."

Conditions at Gallinger, he said, were made known to the public "definitely and very freely" by the subcommittee. "Everything and anything that could be done to relieve those unfortunate and unhappy conditions, I would gladly sponsor," he declared.

"The place to relieve the hospital and bring its standards to a point where it may render the greatest service is a complete change in the administrative staff. That has been established by our subcommittee, and I am certain that those hearings were conducted conscientiously."

Holman Supported Request

Senator Holman who, like McCarran, is a member of the Appropriations Committee, asserted that he had supported the addition of a deputy superintendent, an assistant superintendent and administrative assistant to the Gallinger staff both in his subcommittee report concerning the hospital and in the Appropriations Committee.

Meanwhile the District Commissioners said last night that requests for appropriations to increase the Gallinger Hospital administrative staff to standard requirements must wait until hearings of the 1945 budget next April, following a conference with Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler.

Commissioner Mason said that although certain "lapse funds" of the District are available for certain uses, the Commissioners would not consider employing them to create jobs not approved by Congress.

He added that by no conceivable stretch of the imagination could the needs for additional staff at Gallinger be considered war emergency needs eligible for financing by Federal war emergency funds.

Discouraged

Tree Fete's Fate Up to White House

A suggestion that community Christmas tree ceremonies be dispensed with in or near the White House grounds has been forwarded to the White House by Commissioner John Russell Young, it was announced following approval by the District Board of Commissioners yesterday.

The suggestion was offered by Commissioner Guy Mason who said such a ceremony would be inconsistent with requests to commercial establishments and others to conserve electricity and would add to overcrowding of streetcars and streets at a time when the city is already overcrowded in the normal course of affairs.

No lights were used on the White House tree last year, and ornaments were hand-me-downs from the year before and contributions by school children.

The decision is up to the White House, it was said, but Commissioners anticipate approval of the suggestion.

It was understood, however, that neighborhood Christmas tree celebrations, without lights, will go on as usual.

Forest Hills Citizens Protest Dance Hall

Protests against the proposed establishment of a dance hall in the Chevy Chase Ice Palace, Connecticut ave. and Albemarle st. nw., were voiced in a neighborhood mass meeting conducted in the Ben W. Murch School last night by the Forest Hills Citizens Association. A committee is to be named to carry the protests to the Commissioners.

Dr. George Ward of the U. S. Bureau of Standards and deputy air raid warden of the Forest Hills section, warned that enemy air raids are still not an impossibility.

Hearings on D. C. Vote Slated to Open Today

By Anne Hagner

Representatives of six civic organizations will testify today in the first of three Senate District Subcommittee hearings that will decide the fate of a trio of measures aimed at Washington home rule.

Chairman McCarran declared yesterday that a third session was added to the two originally planned because of the increased number of persons who wished to be heard. Hence the hearings will be today, tomorrow and Thursday, beginning at 10 a. m. and continuing through the afternoon whenever McCarran's schedule will permit.

The three measures to be discussed are:

A bill introduced by the chairman himself to grant Washingtonians the right to vote for a seven-man Board of Commissioners who would appoint a city manager.

A resolution introduced by Senator Holmes (Republican) of Oregon to set up machinery whereby District citizens would choose their own form of administration.

A substitute resolution introduced by Holman to simplify the first, providing that the President and the chairmen of the Senate House District Committees each would name one members of a charter commission which would consider various types of administration and submit its final choice to the Congress.

Those who are scheduled to testify today, in the order of their appearance, are: Dr. Meyer Jacobstein, Brookings Institution; Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, District League of Women Voters; Wilbur S. Finch, chairman, local suffrage committee, Federation of Citizens Associations; Kenneth P. Armstrong, Burroughs Citizens Association; Sparrel A. Wood, Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights, and Samuel Levine, National Lawyers Guild.

'Baby Broker' Bill to Have Early Hearing

A subcommittee to conduct hearings on the so-called "baby broker" bill at an early date was appointed yesterday by Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee.

The Nevada Senator himself heads the subcommittee, with Senators Tydings (Democrat) of Maryland and Bridges (Republican) of New Hampshire as members.

The measure, which would require licensing of all child-placing persons and agencies to halt buying and selling of babies in the District, already has received approval in the House and was submitted to the Senate just before it recessed last summer.

McCarran set no date for hearings because he is confronted, this week with a full schedule of discussions on three District home-rule measures and several meetings of the Appropriations Committee, of which he is a member. However, he declared that the bill will be considered "at an early date."

The baby broker bill, discussed intermittently for several years both on Capitol Hill and among social workers, already has received the stamp of approval from child welfare agencies.

Boy Scouts To Intensify Paper Drive

To bring in the 40 per cent of waste paper estimated as unreclaimed from District homes and offices under current salvage drives, Boy Scouts yesterday were urged to set up depots for the proposed campaign to enlist new sources of supply.

Scout Commissioners led by John Long, who set up a similar paper gap-filling drive in New York City, will meet today in offices of The Washington Post, which is sponsoring the drive in cooperation with the D. C. Salvage Committee. They will lay plans for the campaign to pring in salvage from untapped sources, and their report will be relayed to Washingtonl Scouts.

Stressing that responsibility for success of the all-out campaign lies with Washington's thousands of Boy Scouts, Horace Walker of the Salvage Committee pointed out that they must begin designating accumulation points immediately. The Scouts will concentrate on homes which have not participated in previous drives for waste paper for essential war uses.

Wanted are newspapers, magazines, wrapping paper and cartons, which Scouts will collect for pick-up by D. C. Salvage Committee trucks. Receipts of sales will go to Scout troops.

Dates of collection will be announced within a few days.

Hearing Planned in 10 Days On Liquor Problems in District

ABC Board recommendations that liquor rationing not be imposed in the District; that retailers keep more records, and that more help be afforded the board in checking them will be given public hearing within the next 10 days, it was learned yesterday.

District Commissioners made the announcement following a conference with the ABC Board and John O'Dea and Vernon West of the Corporation Counsel's office.

At the same time the Commissioners agreed to attempt temporarily to assign a limited number of police officers to help with general inspection and to recommend an increase in the number of permit inspectors. The ABC Board has been directed to confer with Budget Officer Walter Fowler on this point.

Legal Power Questioned

Thomas E. Lodge, chairman of the ABC Board, said OPA would have the power to ration, but that it was questionable if the ABC Board legally had that power and that in any case it did not have the force to do it. In some States rationing is handled by the State boards, and if Congress directed the board to ration, members had no objection to doing it, he said.

The decision to recommend that rationing not be considered at this time came after the board talked to representatives of the distilleries, wholesalers, public, and all classes of licensees, Mr. Lodge said.

Recommendations made yesterday followed public complaints of quality, price and nonavailability of liquors—a decrease of 50 to 60 per cent has been noted, it was said.

Other Recommendations

Other recommendations of the board were:

1. Regulation, if necessary, requiring a certain percentage of liquor owned by a retailer to be displayed on his shelves with the understanding that he still retains the right to sell to whom he pleases.

2. Continuance of curtailing of permits where merchandise is of questionable quality or seemingly intended for improper use.

3. Retail hours not be shortened.

4. Wholesalers be required to report existing inventories and whiskies received as of a certain date.

5. Retailers be required to report what they receive from wholesalers and to send to the board copies of memoranda given to purchasers of more than 12 quarts of spirits or 48 quarts of beer.

6. Suggestion that wholesalers continue present practice of not selling to dealers in other States. Wholesalers are allowed by law to do so, it was said.

Reasons for Shortage

Lodge said that in a general discussion between the Commissioners and the board it was brought out the local shortage might be accounted for in several ways. Decrease in the amount of liquor brought here by wholesalers, increased population, buying in excess of needs, purchases for improper uses, buying by transients.

Sergt. Harry Hier Is Wounded In Italian Action

Sergt. Harry Hier, 26, who fought at the initial landings in North Africa, Sicily, and Italy, has been wounded in action on the Italian mainland, his parents learned from the War Department yesterday.

SERGT. HIER

Hier is in a hospital in North Africa now, according to a letter his family received recently. He wrote that he broke his leg "while dodging a Messerschmidt." In the Army for more than two years, Sergeant Hier has been overseas for 14 months.

He is a native of Trenton, N. J., and was graduated from McKinley Tech. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hier, live at 63 Q st. ne. He has a brother, Thomas, in the Coast Artillery, and two sisters, Mrs. Ann Kalill of Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss Frances Hier.

Jury Indicts 3 for Draft Violations

Three men were indicted by the District Grand Jury yesterday on charges of violating the Selective Service Act, as a result of the recent drive against alleged draft delinquents.

The indictments were among 31 returned before Justice Edward C. Eicher in District Court. The grand jury was under the charge of Assistant United States Attorney Sylvan Schwartz.

Those charged as draft delinquents were George T. Mitchell, 40, of 404 I st. nw., Sidney D. Foster and James A. Banks, no addresses given. All are Negroes.

Elizabeth M. Haight, 40, of 3509 14th st. nw., was charged with larceny from the United States Government in the theft of $150 in $5 bills from the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, where she was employed as a money checker.

Theft of Furs Charged

An indictment against Theodore R. Roebuck, 22, Negro of Laurel, Md., charged him with stealing more than $1700 worth of furs and dresses from a railway express truck.

Henry Dukes, jr., 40 Negro of 3733 Foote pl. ne., was charged with changing the date by three months on three $18.75 war savings bonds so that he could redeem them.

In two white-slave indictments, Daniel A. McDonnel, 38, no local address, was charged with transporting two teen-age school girls he met in a barbecue shop to nearby Maryland and inducing them to engage in prostitution with him.

First Degree Murder Charged

A first-degree murder charge was placed against Aaron Robinson, 31, and Horace W. Bell, 26, both Negroes, charged with stabbing Alexander Walker, 48, Negro.

Andrew M. Sluss, 66, was charged with the manslaughter of William Harrison Johnston, 59, of Arlington, Va.

Other indictments were:

Assault with dangerous weapon: Frances W. Welton, 25, Negro, of 104 E st. se., and Austin Everett, 33, Negro, of 517 New Jersey ave. nw.

Housebreaking and larceny: Milton J. Taylor, 32, of 323 E st. ne. (Two cases.)

Grand larceny: Marvin Williams, 36, Negro, of 932 O st. nw.

Unauthorized use of automobile: Frederick E. Simmons, 27; Willie Coleman, 23, Negro, of 1604 P st. nw.; Francis D. Thompson, 25, Negro, of 816 17th st. nw.; Roy H. Nicely, jr., 19, and Charles E. Sesler, 19.

Robbery: John F. Diggs, 24, Negro, of 727 14th st. ne.

Receiving stolen property: Gladys Jones, 25, Negro, of 72 O st. nw. (Two cases.)

Forgery and uttering: Julia N. Turner, Negro, of 1912 Temperance court nw. (Four cases.)

—Violating national Motor Vehicle Theft Act: Frederick O. White, jr., 20, of Vienna, Va.

Violating national Stolen Property Act: Stuart S. Montague, 25, no local address.

City News In Brief

Two policemen, wondering what thief would be so brash as to steal from District Court, answered a burglar alarm there yesterday morning. Court attaches explained very courteously that the alarm was tripped off accidentally. The police got back in their scout car and drove away.

YMCA Signs 1300

More than 1300 new members were signed by the YMCA during a month-long membership drive which ended last night. The goal in the drive was 1000.

Lieut. William Knott, USN, chairman of the Navy team in the drive, was awarded a $25 war bond for turning in 537 new members. A similar award was made to Arthur Pearson, captain of the second best team.

Parking Lot Trash Rule

To conserve District tires, District Commissioners yesterday approved a police regulation requiring parking lots to be kept free of glass and other "debris which would cut or injure the tires on vehicles parked on such lots."

Marine Denies Guilt

Private Thomas William Moroney, 20, of the Marines, pleaded not guilty yesterday when arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a charge of stealing a Government truck.

Moroney waived preliminary hearing and bond was set at $300 for removal to New York, where it was said he was absent without leave.

Yule Seal Exhibit

The Christmas seal collection of Jean Hersholt, radio and screen star, will be exhibited at a meeting of the Collectors Club, Branch 5, S. P. A., tonight in the Thomson Community Center, 12th and L sts. nw. Staff members of the Danish Embassy will attend in connection with a special program devoted to the new Denmark stamp.

Four Prewar Fathers Inducted From Area

Of the first four pre-Pearl Harbor fathers inducted in Washington, only one's "in the Army now." Two of the others took the Navy and the third went to the Marines. But here's the Army dad, William O. Buckingham, 32, of 2522 3d st. S. Arlington, Va., shown as he was sworn in at Fort Myer, Va., yesterday. Buckingham has a 4-year-old son, Tommy

William O. Buckingham, of 2522 3rd st. So. Arlington, Va., who was registered in the District, yesterday became the first pre-Pearl Harbor father to be inducted in the Army in the order of his official draft number. Others have been inducted but were taken out of their turn because they held non-deferrable occupations. He has a son, Tommy, 4½.

Inducted with him at Fort Myer, Va., were Chester M. Graves, 35, 4010 21st st ne.; Harold Hatch, 27, 909 Evart st. ne., and Charles C. McConkey, 22, 2522 Quincy st. ne., also pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

These men comprise the first contingent of fathers to be officially classed as pre-Pearl Harbor parents to go from District Selective Service headquarters, 21st and M sts. nw. Six fathers were called for physical examinations preliminary to induction, but only five reported and one of these, Joseph J. Caruso, 35, father of five children, 1437 Otis st. ne. was rejected. Robert C. Martin, 1923 18th st. se. was to have been the sixth in the group, but he obtained a last-minute stay of induction and did not report.

All of the men inducted yesterday came from Draft Board 20 and District Selective Service headquarters reported last night that men from others of the 25 boards in the District would report daily..

Of yesterday's inductees Graves and McConkey elected to go into the Navy. Hatch is a former Marine and couldn't get it out of his system, he told doctors, so he went with the Leathernecks.

"My wife and I decided—Tommy helped a little by way of showing the burden my going into service would place on his mother—that when the call came I would go and she would get employment as a stenographer," Buckingham said. "She is training herself for that now. The $80 monthly dependent benefit will not be sufficient to maintain the home."

Buckingham is field manager for a brush company. He was graduated by the University of Maryland in 1936. He said he hopes to enter officer candidate school.

Dependency Benefits For Wife, Children

Monthly benefits that are to be paid wives and children of all inducted personnel of the armed forces under the act which became effective November 1, 1943, follow:

Wife alone	$50
Wife and one child	$80
Wife and two children	$100
Each additional child	$20
Divorced wife (if otherwise entitled)	$42
Divorced wife and one child	$72
Divorced wife and two children	$92
Each additional child	$20
Child alone, whether mothers alive or dead	$42

1942 Hostess Urges Sharing Of Homes With Servicemen

By Robert Tate Allan

Hope that Washingtonians will give full support to the "Share Your Home at Christmas" project came yesterday from Mrs. G. H. Collingwood, 1234 Crittenden st. nw., who was among the hostesses for last year's "share" program.

Mrs. Collingwood said that the project would be a means of exchanging the hospitality that persons across the seas have shown to our men and women in the service, since there are many men and women from England and other countries temporarily stationed in Washington who would welcome the opportunity to sit down to a real, home-cooked Christmas dinner.

Mrs. Collingwood and her family had such fun being hostesses last Christmas Day that they plan to again take part this Christmas. Charles Collingwood, a radio correspondent, and one of Mrs. Collingwood's two sons in the service, expects to be home for Christmas, she said. Last Christmas he was in North Africa. Another son, Thomas P. Collingwood, Navy electricians' mate, first class, may get home for the holidays, she said.

The Federation of Churches' defense commission, with the cooperation of The Washington Post and Government and service agencies, is sponsoring the "Share Your Home at Christmas" idea for the second year.

"Share Your Home at Christmas"

I will gladly share my home with those away from home Christmas Day.

'Snootiness' of Cab Drivers Protested by Those Passed Up

Washington's war bonanza for cab drivers has made a snooty lot of the "haul for hire" guys.

The turnabout of today—more riders than cabs—has driven tip-hungry hackers to passing up unimpressive prospects in favor of the "moneyed interests."

Thus compain scores of citizens daily—in verbal and written protests to the District Hack Inspector's office.

"I hailed several empty cabs yesterday and none of them would stop . . . " say the irate public "standup."

Assistant Hack Inspector T. V. Andrick, for the public good, explained yesterday that the hacker's office acts only in cases of formal protests—those received in writing.

He promised prompt action on all such complaints, providing they contain the cab's license number. He pointed out that many drivers recently have received suspensions of from 50 to 30 days for the practice.

Complaints, he said, are passed on to the Hackers' Board of Revocation and Review for appropriate action. Dispositions of cases are forwarded to the Commissioners for approval and final action.

The hack inspector's office refuses to accept complaints from intoxicated persons, he said, and also those who were refused transportation because of intoxication.

Park Slayer Convicted In 2d Degree

A District Court jury deliberated less than 40 minutes yesterday in finding a verdict of second-degree murder in the case of John Walter Morton, 39, in the bludgeon death in Rock Creek Park of Mrs. Grace G. Groome, 57, a stenographer.

Morton, a radio mechanic, appeared pale and chewed gum rapidly as W. H. Gifford, the jury foreman, announced the verdict.

In his closing argument, Assistant United States Attorney John J. Burke asked the jury to weigh the brutality of the case. Mrs. Groome suffered a fractured skull and cerebral hemorrhage. She was found on August 29, the day after the slaying, under a park bench by a geologist taking a Sunday morning walk.

Burke admitted that no one had seen the crime, but said that the evidence, all circumstantial, pointed directly at Morton.

Defense Attorney Charles F. Hailer, said it was just as possible that some other person than Morton could have committed the crime. He declared Morton never had been in trouble before and said he made a sincere effort to tell what he did the day of the slaying.

Morton faces a maximum sentence of from 15 years to life. The jury was composed of eight women and four men. Justice Edward C. Eicher presided.

Bench Speaks

2 Lawyers Praised for Free Service

The United States Court of Appeals complimented two attorneys here for "skilled and conscientious professional service" they performed free of charge in defending a 22-year-old Negro, who was convicted of housebreaking and larceny.

The two attorneys are Hugh Obear, who represented James B. Edwards on appeal, and William Martin who represented Edwards at the trial.

The appeal was based in part, paradoxically, on the challenge of the propriety of the two lawyers to appear in the case, and settled a constitutional question of how closely the courts must adhere to the right of an accused person to have counsel "through every stage" of his case.

After Edwards was sentenced to 5 to 15 years' imprisonment and his appeal was noted, Martin was allowed to withdraw from the case. For six days after that Edwards was not represented by an attorney. Then Obear was appointed.

Obear contended that Edwards was deprived of his constitutional rights during those six days. The court found, however, that since the case was quiescent during that period none of Edwards' constitutional guarantees were lost, and therefore upheld his conviction.

Mrs. Pinchot Heads New D. C. War Service

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot yesterday was appointed chairman of the block organization of Civilian War Services Division for the District.

She was nominated for the post by H. P. Somerville, chairman of the division, and approved by District Commissioners.

Under her direction the block organization will continue work on five projects: locating homes for children of working mothers where day care centers are not available; urging women not now employed to take full or part-time positions; victory garden planning; car sharing; and WAC enlistment.

Somerville said yesterday that Mrs. Pinchot has been interested in block organization as a means of bringing neighborhoods together to solve their own problems, since the beginning of the war, and that he expects the organization to attack problems with new vigor under her leadership.

Mrs. Pinchot said last night she was glad to help the work of the organization and that she believed it a vital work "not duplicating the service of any other organization. "If it were, I would not be interested," she said.

In taking the new job, Mrs. Pinchot will continue her present emergency food and housing duties in the air raid warden's office.

Prettyman To Head OPA Advisory Board

E. Barrett Prettyman will head the newly formed advisory committee of the OPA, it was announced yesterday by that agency.

Prettyman, long identified with the legal profession in Washington, was corporation counsel of the District from 1934 to 1936, and was general counsel for the Bureau of Internal Revenue from 1933 to 1934. He is a veteran of the last war.

Serving with him on the committee will be Richard H. Field, Weston, Mass., who since 1942 has been regional attorney for OPA in Boston. He was named legal adviser and acting counsel.

Chester Bowles, OPA administrator, said the legal advisory committee will review OPA legal procedures in the rent, price and rationing departments, and will make suggestions for simplicity, efficiency and prompt execution. The OPA's legal department also will be studied by the new committee and suggestions as to its adequacy transmitted to Bowles.

THIS IS IT

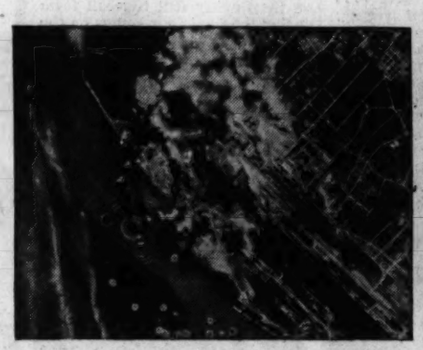
The authorized history, told by the men who made it, of our Eighth Bomber Command's first year over Europe

1. MISSION 95 The complete story of a typical late-stage attack on Germany by the VIII Bomber Command, from the first decision to send out the mission until the last strike photo is pulled that night. The story of the Tar Baby.

2. FROM FIVE MILES UP The history, told in terms any layman can understand, of the conception and development of American high-altitude precision bombing. Why we tried to do what we tried to do.

3. ACT 1, SCENE 1 The story of the early days. The arrival of General Eaker as Bomber Commander in England. The "symbolic" raid of July 4th. "Arrival of aircraft: 1 B 17-E. Total: 1." The first "kindergarten" missions.

4. LUFTWAFFE OVER LILLE The official and eyewitness accounts of our first major air battle, as the American spearhead and the massed strength of the Luftwaffe collide over Lille. Working out the claims problem. The amazing durability of the Forts. An Air-Sea rescue.



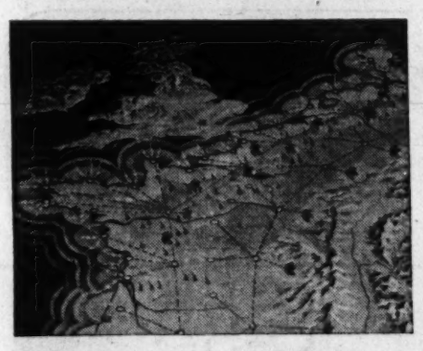
5. TWELVE FEET OF CONCRETE We hammer the submarine pens. Formation of "Junior"—the 12th Air Force. How we kept changing our tactics, modifying our plans. "You always get good trouble over St. Nazaire." Operational anecdotes.

6. PARLOUS DAYS Station life from November '42 to the Casablanca conference in January. Restricted operations and why. The problem of "the full breakfast table." Casablanca and the questions on which the future of the VIII Bomber Command depended.

7. TARGET: GERMANY We join the RAF in the Battle of Germany. First attacks against port installations and marshaling yards. Rennes. Vegesack. Bremen. Story of the Southern Comfort. The first deep penetration attack. Jack Mathis' last flight.

8. BATTLES IN THE SKY The attack on the Renault factories. A Wing Commander's informal notes on one sortie. Bremen. One navigator's story. How a ball-turret gunner won the Congressional Medal of Honor.

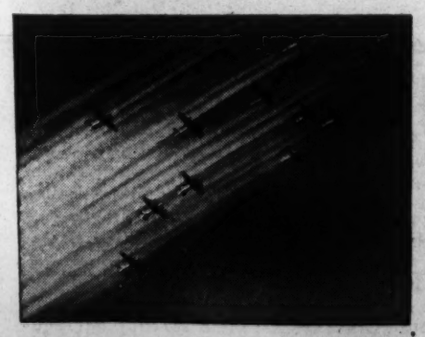
9. MEN, MUD, AND MACHINES One enemy the engineers can't arm themselves against. Why it takes some 75,000 men to put 500 heavy bombers over an enemy target. The job of the A.S.F. and the A.S.C. Believe-it-or-not figures that are facts.



10. THE OLD ONE-TWO The German defense network. Air-to-air bombing and rocket guns. Destruction of the Focke-Wulf plant at Bremen. We triple our size and expand our tactics almost overnight. A Sergeant Gunner's diary.

11. THE LOG OF THE LIBERATORS The story of the VIIIth Bomber Command Liberators in the European theater. A Lib pilot describes Kiel. Attack on Ploesti oil fields. "Those German fighters used non-habit-forming tactics!" Summing up of the attack.

12. FULL STRIDE Operations from July 1 to the time this manuscript went to press. The cyclonic air battles of July. "Blitz week." The men of the Happy Days. The Thunderbolts. Regensburg—when "Each second of time had a cannon shell in it."



13. THE SUMMING UP What the year over Europe has proved. What the immediate future holds; the continued destruction of Germany, her war potential, her will to fight. The future: forging a weapon that will play its part in the shattering of Japan.

TARGET: GERMANY is the official Army Air Forces' story, assembled for the first time, of the VIII Bomber Command's first year over Europe.

It is a comprehensive history of the development of the VIII Bomber Command—literally from the ground up. It is studded with first-person combat stories and tales of individual heroism and endurance. It is the story of Sergeant Arizona Harris, top turret gunner of a Flying Fortress, whose guns were still spitting at six Focke-Wulfs as the waves closed over his stricken ship; it is the story of the radio gunner of a Fortress called the Jersey Bounce, who, after filing a report describing his work on a single flight in which he functioned as gunner, radio operator, physician, electrician, and mortician, closed with the words "That is all there was to it." It is the story of Hell's Angels, Rationed Passion, Pregnant Portia, Southern Comfort, and scores of other Flying Fortresses with adventures as astounding as their names. It is the story of air battles in which enemy fighters and our own planes were falling all around "like dirty drops of rain."

But most of all, TARGET: GERMANY is the epic story of how our European air armada came into being and how it really works. It is the factual account of an audacious experiment in a new kind of warfare, an experiment calling for the highest order of moral as well as physical courage, an experiment to determine whether high-altitude daylight precision bombing could smash key German targets against the fiercest opposition in existence.

In these pages, information is given about the intricate network of the German defense system against our bombers; on the tactical details of our attacks on Europe; on the complete appraisal of damage wreaked on German industry; about the new German methods of defense, such as rocket guns, air mines, and intruder planes, which are our own repaired Flying Fortresses sent up to join our formations and report upon their movements. It gives the reader an opportunity to sit in with the staff while a giant bombing attack is planned. He sees these plans translated into action. He watches a briefing. He observes a great attack both as a participant and from the standpoint of those who stay behind and sweat out the interminable hours before the return.

TARGET: GERMANY is an authorized history, but one of a new type—its emphasis is on human beings and it is told by the men who made it. And when the reader has finished its last page he will have a clear idea of the life of our Air Force men in England—of what it is like to lunch at a Mayfair hotel one day and be a human clay pigeon five miles up over Target Germany next morning—of how a mighty instrument of warfare has been forged for America. All royalties from TARGET: GERMANY go to the Army Air Forces' Aid Society.

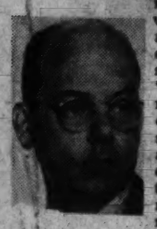
The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Bureaucrats Lose In Economy Attempt

Damn the red tape, economize. That slogan, or words to that effect, has been shouted from all quarters of Capitol Hill for months. The words are aimed at the bureaucrats. Well, some of the "damned" bureaucrats decided to do something about it. It was decided to centralize personnel and retirement records of the more than three million Federal employes in the Civil Service Commission. Each Federal agency now keeps its own records and it takes 1800 employes to do the job. The commission estimates it can do the job with 400 people and the 1400 others can either be given other work or cut from the payroll. The saving in salaries would be $2,300,000. You'd think that Congress would jump at the proposition and give the bureaucrats a pat on the back for coming up with an idea to cut the Federal payroll.



Well, what they got was a kick in the pants. The Senate Appropriations Committee knocked out the project and simply said it wasn't in sympathy with it. But to keep the record straight, the House committee and the Byrd committee do approve of the plan. The real reason the Senate committee killed the plan is its desire to protect the Civil Service retirement system. Now that's a commendable and worthwhile position but it's a bit ridiculous to kill the whole project. All witnesses agreed that centralization of records would result in economy and efficiency. What they did not agree on was the numbers to be used on the records.

The Administration proposed that Social Security numbers be used on the records for identification purposes. It took this position because it meant greater economies and these facts were cited to prove it: (1) The War Department's 1,200,000 employes have Social Security numbers and it would cost $100,000 to shift over to any other numbering system. (2) An estimated 2,675,000 employes already have Social Security numbers from having worked in private industry and this means that only about 500,000 new numbers would have to be assigned. (3) The cost of operating the Social Security number system would be $60,000 annually less than any other system. However, the installation of the Social Security system would cost $39,000 compared to $27,500 for any other system. It's obvious that sound administration and economy is heavily in favor of Social Security numbers.

But before the Senate Committee went Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, and he said the use of Social Security numbers by the commission was the first step toward dumping the Civil Service retirement system into Social Security. The plan, he said, would arouse the universal horror and resentment of permanent Federal workers. He pictured Social Security Board officials as eager to grab the billion dollars in the Civil Service fund. Senator McKellar chimed in to say that he thought the plan was "gulleless and insidious." The economies of the plan—the savings in personnel and money—were soon forgotten.

To repeat, I don't know of anyone who wants to see the two pension system merged and Federal workers given the meager Social Security benefits after they have contributed 5 per cent of their salaries to the Civil Service fund. Now that the issue has been raised and the Civil Service system so vigorously protected only a fool would try to consolidate them. Any merger would have to be approved by Congress and it's evident to all that it wouldn't do it. But why kill the whole record plan and its economies? To salve Steward and other employe groups that oppose any part of Social Security a provision could be added reaffirming the faith of Congress in the Civil Service system and its independence. That should settle the issue. But if the plan is killed it'll squelch future plans of the bureaucrats to economize. What's the use, they'll say? We'll be damned if we do and damned if we don't.

Cy Smith will be appointed deputy in Food Distribution in charge of prices and rationing. . . . Former Governor Townsend of Indiana will be the next top official to leave War Foods Administration. . . . The resignation of Dillon Myer, chief of War Relocation Authority, is expected by Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill . . . The Byrd Committee is now getting out its own statistical report on the number of Federal workers. On November 1, it reports, there were 2,921,068 full-time Government employes in this country, a decrease of 10,115 over the previous month. War Department was commended for cutting it's staff 15,000. Civil Service hasn't put out a statistical report in months.

The Ramspeck Civil Service Investigating Committee will hold a hearing tomorrow. It's expected to hire Col. Edward McCormack of Smaller War Plants Corporation as its chief investigator . . . Representative Charley Halleck of Indiana, is a good bet to be appointed chairman of the Republican National Congressional Committee to succeed the late Representative Ditter . . . Honesty note: Capitol Hill policemen are now guarding the newspaper cash box on the House side of the Capitol. Newspapers are purchased from the stand via the "honor" system.

McCarran Asks Firings At Gallinger

A "complete change in administration" yesterday was described by Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee as the lone method by which Gallinger Municipal Hospital could render the greatest service to Washington.

Commenting on the failure of a $15,750 appropriation providing for the addition of nine Gallinger employes to pass the Senate Appropriations Committee, the Nevada Senator said: "I am not going to support or sponsor further expenditure for supervisory offices which do not promise to afford relief from the deplorable conditions that prevail there."

He emphasized that he believed that the recommendations of the Gallinger Investigating Subcommittee should be carried out. The full District Committee will meet in executive session next Monday for consideration of the report, submitted by Senators Holman of Oregon, Bushfield of South Dakota and Buck of Delaware, all Republicans.

Recommendations made at the conclusion of hearings in October included dismissal of Commissioner Guy Mason, District Health Officer George C. Ruhland, Superintendent Edgar A. Bocock, and two other Gallinger physicians, Dr. Joseph L. Gilbert, chief psychiatrist, and Dr. Charles P. Cake, head of the tuberculosis ward. The subcommittee also urged removal of old frame buildings used as part of the T. B. ward, modernization of the psychopathic ward, and appointment of a board of visitors to make regular inspections of all District hospitals and jails.

Better Conditions Needed

McCarran's statement yesterday added: "It is not additional administrators the hospital needs, but improvement of conditions for the unfortunate people who are patients. All the additional supervision in the world won't relieve that."

Conditions at Gallinger, he said, were made known to the public "definitely and very freely" by the subcommittee. "Everything and anything that could be done to relieve those unfortunate and unhappy conditions, I would gladly sponsor," he declared.

"The place to relieve the hospital and bring its standards to a point where it may render the greatest service is a complete change in the administrative staff. That has been established by our subcommittee, and I am certain that those hearings were conducted conscientiously."

Holman Supported Request

Senator Holman who, like McCarran, is a member of the Appropriations Committee, asserted that he had supported the addition of a deputy superintendent, an assistant superintendent and administrative assistant to the Gallinger staff both in his subcommittee report concerning the hospital and in the Appropriations Committee.

Meanwhile the District Commissioners said last night that requests for appropriations to increase the Gallinger Hospital administrative staff to standard requirements must wait until hearings of the 1945 budget next April, following a conference with Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler.

Commissioner Mason said that although certain "lapse funds" of the District are available for certain uses, the Commissioners would not consider employing them to create jobs not approved by Congress.

He added that by no conceivable stretch of the imagination could the needs for additional staff at Gallinger be considered war emergency needs eligible for financing by Federal war emergency funds.

Discouraged

Tree Fete's Fate Up to White House

A suggestion that community Christmas tree ceremonies be dispensed with in or near the White House grounds has been forwarded to the White House by Commissioner John Russell Young, it was announced following approval by the District Board of Commissioners yesterday.

The suggestion was offered by Commissioner Guy Mason who said such a ceremony would be inconsistent with requests to commercial establishments and others to conserve electricity and would add to overcrowding of streetcars and streets at a time when the city is already overcrowded in the normal course of affairs.

No lights were used on the White House tree last year, and ornaments were hand-me-downs from the year before and contributions by school children.

The decision is up to the White House, it was said, but Commissioners anticipate approval of the suggestion.

It was understood, however, that neighborhood Christmas tree celebrations, without lights, will go on as usual.

Forest Hills Citizens Protest Dance Hall

Protests against the proposed establishment of a dance hall in the Chevy Chase Ice Palace, Connecticut ave. and Albemarle st. nw., were voiced in a neighborhood mass meeting conducted in the Ben W. Murch School last night by the Forest Hills Citizens Association. A committee is to be named to carry the protests to the Commissioners.

Dr. George Ward of the U. S. Bureau of Standards and deputy air raid warden of the Forest Hills section, warned that enemy air raids are still not an impossibility.

Hearings on D. C. Vote Slated to Open Today

By Anne Hagner

Representatives of six civic organizations will testify today in the first of three Senate District Subcommittee hearings that will decide the fate of a trio of measures aimed at Washington home rule.

Chairman McCarran declared yesterday that a third session was added to the two originally planned because of the increased number of persons who wished to be heard. Hence the hearings will be today, tomorrow and Thursday, beginning at 10 a. m. and continuing through the afternoon whenever McCarran's schedule will permit.

The three measures to be discussed are:

A bill introduced by the chairman himself to grant Washingtonians the right to vote for a seven-man Board of Commissioners who would appoint a city manager.

A resolution introduced by Senator Holmes (Republican) of Oregon to set up machinery whereby District citizens would choose their own form of administration.

A substitute resolution introduced by Holman to simplify the first, providing that the President and the chairmen of the Senate House District Committees each would name one members of a charter commission which would consider various types of administration and submit its final choice to the Congress.

Those who are scheduled to testify today, in the order of their appearance, are: Dr. Meyer Jacobstein, Brookings Institution; Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, District League of Women Voters; Wilbur S. Finch, chairman, local suffrage committee, Federation of Citizens Associations; Kenneth P. Armstrong, Burroughs Citizens Association; Sparrel A. Wood, Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights, and Samuel Levine, National Lawyers Guild.

'Baby Broker' Bill to Have Early Hearing

A subcommittee to conduct hearings on the so-called "baby broker" bill at an early date was appointed yesterday by Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee.

The Nevada Senator himself heads the subcommittee, with Senators Tydings (Democrat) of Maryland and Bridges (Republican) of New Hampshire as members.

The measure, which would require licensing of all child-placing persons and agencies to halt buying and selling of babies in the District, already has received approval in the House and was submitted to the Senate just before it recessed last summer.

McCarran set no date for hearings because he is confronted, this week with a full schedule of discussions on three District home-rule measures and several meetings of the Appropriations Committee, of which he is a member. However, he declared that the bill will be considered "at an early date."

The baby broker bill, discussed intermittently for several years both on Capitol Hill and among social workers, already has received the stamp of approval from child welfare agencies.

Boy Scouts To Intensify Paper Drive

To bring in the 40 per cent of waste paper estimated as unreclaimed from District homes and offices under current salvage drives, Boy Scouts yesterday were urged to set up depots for the proposed campaign to enlist new sources of supply.

Scout Commissioners led by John Long, who set up a similar paper gap-filling drive in New York City, will meet today in offices of The Washington Post, which is sponsoring the drive in cooperation with the D. C. Salvage Committee. They will lay plans for the campaign to pring in salvage from untapped sources, and their report will be relayed to Washingtonl Scouts.

Stressing that responsibility for success of the all-out campaign lies with Washington's thousands of Bby Scouts, Horace Walker of the Salvage Committee pointed out that they must begin designating accumulation points immediately. The Scouts will concentrate on homes which have not participated in previous drives for waste paper for essential war uses.

Wanted are newspapers, magazines, wrapping paper and cartons, which Scouts will collect for pick-up by D. C. Salvage Committee trucks. Receipts of sales will go to Scout troops.

Dates of collection will be announced within a few days.

Hearing Planned in 10 Days On Liquor Problems in District

ABC Board recommendations that liquor rationing not be imposed in the District; that retailers keep more records, and that more help be afforded the board in checking them will be given public hearing within the next 10 days, it was learned yesterday.

District Commissioners made the announcement following a conference with the ABC Board and John O'Dea and Vernon West of the Corporation Counsel's office.

At the same time the Commissioners agreed to attempt temporarily to assign a limited number of police officers to help with general inspection and to recommend an increase in the number of permit inspectors. The ABC Board has been directed to confer with Budget Officer Walter Fowler on this point.

Legal Power Questioned

Thomas E. Lodge, chairman of the ABC Board, said OPA would have the power to ration, but that it was questionable if the ABC Board legally had that power and that in any case it did not have the force to do it. In some States rationing is handled by the State boards, and if Congress directed the board to ration, members had no objection to doing it, he said.

The decision to recommend that rationing not be considered at this time came after the board talked to representatives of the distilleries, wholesalers, public, and all classes of licensees, Mr. Lodge said.

Recommendations made yesterday followed public complaints of quality, price and nonavailability of liquors—a decrease of 50 to 60 per cent has been noted, it was said.

Other Recommendations

Other recommendations of the board were:

1. Regulation, if necessary, requiring a certain percentage of liquor owned by a retailer to be displayed on his shelves with the understanding that he still retains the right to sell to whom he pleases.

2. Continuance of curtailing of permits where merchandise is of questionable quality or seemingly intended for improper use.

3. Retail hours not be shortened.

4. Wholesalers be required to report existing inventories and whiskies received as of a certain date.

5. Retailers be required to report what they receive from wholesalers and to send to the board copies of memoranda given to purchasers of more than 12 quarts of spirits or 48 quarts of beer.

6. Suggestion that wholesalers continue present practice of not selling to dealers in other States. Wholesalers are allowed by law to do so, it was said.

Reasons for Shortage

Lodge said that in a general discussion between the Commissioners and the board it was brought out the local shortage might be accounted for in several ways. Decrease in the amount of liquor brought here by wholesalers, increased population, buying in excess of needs, purchases for improper uses, buying by transients.

Sergt. Harry Hier Is Wounded In Italian Action

Sergt. Harry Hier, 26, who fought at the initial landings in North Africa, Sicily, and Italy, has been wounded in action on the Italian mainland, his parents learned from the War Department yesterday.

SERGT. HIER

Hier is in a hospital in North Africa now, according to a letter his family received recently. He wrote that he broke his leg "while dodging a Messerschmidt." In the Army for more than two years, Sergeant Hier has been overseas for 14 months.

He is a native of Trenton, N. J., and was graduated from McKinley Tech. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hier, live at 63 Q st. ne. He has a brother, Thomas, in the Coast Artillery, and two sisters, Mrs. Ann Kalill of Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss Frances Hier.

Jury Indicts 3 for Draft Violations

Three men were indicted by the District Grand Jury yesterday on charges of violating the Selective Service Act, as a result of the recent drive against alleged draft delinquents.

The indictments were among 31 returned before Justice Edward C. Eicher in District Court. The grand jury was under the charge of Assistant United States Attorney Sylvan Schwartz.

Those charged as draft delinquents were George T. Mitchell, 40, of 404 I st. nw., Sidney D. Foster and James A. Banks, no addresses given. All are Negroes.

Elizabeth M. Haight, 40, of 3509 14th st. nw., was charged with larceny from the United States Government in the theft of $150 in $5 bills from the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, where she was employed as a money checker.

Theft of Furs Charged

An indictment against Theodore R. Roebuck, 22, Negro of Laurel, Md., charged him with stealing more than $1700 worth of furs and dresses from a railway express truck.

Henry Dukes, jr., 40 Negro of 3733 Foote pl. ne., was charged with changing the date by three months on three $18.75 war savings bonds so that he could redeem them.

In two white-slave indictments, Daniel A. McDonnel, 38, no local address, was charged with transporting two teen-age school girls he met in a barbecue shop to nearby Maryland and inducing them to engage in prostitution with him.

First Degree Murder Charged

A first-degree murder charge was placed against Aaron Robinson, 31, and Horace W. Bell, 26, both Negroes, charged with stabbing Alexander Walker, 48, Negro.

Andrew M. Sluss, 66, was charged with the manslaughter of William Harrison Johnston, 59, of Arlington, Va.

Other indictments were:

Assault with dangerous weapon: Frances W. Weldon, 25, Negro, of 104 E st. se., and Austin Everett, 33, Negro, of 517 New Jersey ave. nw.

Housebreaking and larceny: Milton J. Taylor, 32, of 323 E st. ne. (Two cases.)

Grand larceny: Marvin Williams, 36, Negro, of 932 O st. nw.

Unauthorized use of automobile: Frederick E. Simmons, 27; Willie Coleman, 25, Negro, of 1604 F st. nw.; Francis D. Thompson, 25, Negro, of 816 17th st. nw.; Roy H. Nicely, jr., 19, and Charles E. Besler, 19.

Robbery: John F. Diggs, 24, Negro, of 727 14th st. ne.

Receiving stolen property: Gladys Jones, 25, Negro, of 72 G st. nw. (Two cases.)

Forgery and uttering: Julia N. Turner, Negro, of 1912 Temperance court nw. (Four cases.)

Violating national Motor Vehicle Theft Act: Frederick O. White, jr., 20, of Vienna, Va.

Violating national Stolen Property Act: Stuart S. Montague, 28, no local address. Carnal knowledge: Joshua M. Denmark, 52, Negro, of 1616 New Jersey ave. nw.

City News In Brief

Two policemen, wondering what thief would be so brash as to steal from District Court, answered a burglar alarm there yesterday morning. Court attaches explained very courteously that the alarm was tripped off accidentally. The police got back in their scout car and drove away.

YMCA Signs 1300

More than 1300 new members were signed by the YMCA during a month-long membership drive which ended last night. The goal in the drive was 1000.

Lieut. William Knott, USN, chairman of the Navy team in the drive, was awarded a $25 war bond for turning in 537 new members. A similar award was made to Arthur Pearson, captain of the second best team.

Parking Lot Trash Rule

To conserve District tires, District Commissioners yesterday approved a police regulation requiring parking lots to be kept free of glass and other "debris which would cut or injure the tires on vehicles parked on such lots."

Marine Denies Guilt

Private Thomas William Moroney, 20, of the Marines, pleaded not guilty yesterday when arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a charge of stealing a Government truck.

Moroney waived preliminary hearing and bond was set at $300 for removal to New York, where it was said he was absent without leave.

Yule Seal Exhibit

The Christmas seal collection of Jean Hersholt, radio and screen star, will be exhibited at a meeting of the Collectors Club, Branch 5, S. P. A., tonight in the Thomson Community Center, 12th and L sts. nw. Staff members of the Danish Embassy will attend in connection with a special program devoted to the new Denmark stamp.

Four Prewar Fathers Inducted From Area

William O. Buckingham, of 2522 3rd st. So. Arlington, Va., who was registered in the District, yesterday became the first pre-Pearl Harbor father to be inducted in the Army in the order of his official draft number. Others have been inducted but were taken out of their turn because they held non-deferrable occupations. He has a son, Tommy, 4½.

Inducted with him at Fort Myer, Va., were Chester M. Graves, 35, 4010 21st st ne.; Harold Hatch, 27, 909 Evart st. ne., and Charles C. McConkey, 22, 2522 Quincy st. ne., also pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

These men comprise the first contingent of fathers to be officially classed as pre-Pearl Harbor parents to go from District Selective Service headquarters, 21st and M sts. nw. Six fathers were called for physical examinations preliminary to induction, but only five reported and one of these, Joseph J. Caruso, 35, father of five children, 1437 Otis st. ne. was rejected. Robert C. Martin, 1923 18th st. se. was to have been the sixth in the group, but he obtained a last-minute stay of induction and did not report.

All of the men inducted yesterday came from Draft Board 20 and District Selective Service headquarters reported last night that men from others of the 25 boards in the District would report daily.

Of yesterday's inductees Graves and McConkey elected to go into the Navy. Hatch is a former Marine and couldn't get it out of his system, he told doctors, so he went with the Leathernecks.

"My wife and I decided—Tommy helped a little by way of showing the burden my going into service would place on his mother—that when the call came I would go and she would get employment as a stenographer," Buckingham said. "She is training herself for that now. The $80 monthly dependent benefit will not be sufficient to maintain the home."

Buckingham is field manager for a brush company. He was graduated by the University of Maryland in 1936. He said he hopes to enter officer candidate school.

Of the first four pre-Pearl Harbor fathers inducted in Washington, only one's "in the Army now." Two of the others took the Navy and the third went to the Marines. But here's the Army dad, William O. Buckingham, 32, of 2522 3d st. S. Arlington, Va., shown as he was sworn in at Fort Myer, Va., yesterday. Buckingham has a 4-year-old son, Tommy

By Robert Tate Allan

Hope that Washingtonians will give full support to the "Share Your Home at Christmas" project came yesterday from Mrs. G. H. Collingwood, 1234 Crittenden st. nw., who was among the hostesses for last year's "share" program.

Mrs. Collingwood said that the project would be a means of exchanging the hospitality that persons across the seas have shown to our men and women in the service, since there are many men and women from England and other countries temporarily stationed in Washington who would welcome the opportunity to sit down to a real, home-cooked Christmas dinner.

Mrs. Collingwood and her family had such fun being hostesses last Christmas Day that they plan to again take part this Christmas. Charles Collingwood, a radio correspondent, and one of Mrs. Collingwood's two sons in the service, expects to be home for Christmas, she said. Last Christmas he was in North Africa. Another son, Thomas P. Collingwood, Navy electricians' mate, first class, may get home for the holidays, she said.

The Federation of Churches' defense commission, with the cooperation of The Washington Post and Government and service agencies, is sponsoring the "Share Your Home at Christmas" idea for the second year.

'Snootiness' of Cab Drivers Protested by Those Passed Up

Washington's war bonanza for cab drivers has made a snooty lot of the "haul for hire" guys.

The turnabout of today—more riders than cabs—has driven tip-hungry hackers to passing up unimpressive prospects in favor of the "moneyed interests."

Thus compain scores of citizens daily—in verbal and written protests to the District Hack Inspector's office.

"I hailed several empty cabs yesterday and none of them would stop . . . " say the irate public "standup."

Assistant Hack Inspector T. V. Andrick, for the public good, explained yesterday that the hacker's office acts only in cases of formal protests—those received in writing.

He promised prompt action on all such complaints, providing they contain the cab's license number. He pointed out that many drivers recently have received suspensions of from 30 to 30 days for the practice.

Complaints, he said, are passed on to the Hackers' Board of Revocation and Review for appropriate action. Dispositions of cases are forwarded to the Commissioners for approval and final action.

The hack inspector's office refuses to accept complaints from intoxicated persons, he said, and also those who were refused transportation because of intoxication.

Park Slayer Convicted In 2d Degree

A District Court jury deliberated less than 40 minutes yesterday in finding a verdict of second-degree murder in the case of John Walter Morton, 39, in the bludgeon death in Rock Creek Park of Mrs. Grace G. Groome, 57, a stenographer.

Morton, a radio mechanic, appeared pale and chewed gum rapidly as W. H. Gifford, the jury foreman, announced the verdict.

In his closing argument, Assistant United States Attorney John J. Burke asked the jury to weigh the brutality of the case. Mrs. Groome suffered a fractured skull and cerebral hemorrhage. She was found on August 29, the day after the slaying, under a park bench by a geologist taking a Sunday morning walk.

Burke admitted that no one had seen the crime, but said that the evidence, all circumstantial, pointed directly at Morton.

Defense Attorney Charles F. Hailer, said it was just as possible that some other person than Morton could have committed the crime. He declared Morton never had been in trouble before and said he made a sincere effort to tell what he did the day of the slaying.

Morton faces a maximum sentence of from 15 years to life. The jury was composed of eight women and four men. Justice Edward C. Eicher presided.

Bench Speaks

2 Lawyers Praised for Free Service

The United States Court of Appeals complimented two attorneys here for "skilled and conscientious professional service" they performed free of charge in defending a 22-year-old Negro, who was convicted of housebreaking and larceny.

The two attorneys are Hugh Obear, who represented James B. Edwards on appeal, and William Martin who represented Edwards at the trial.

The appeal was based in part, paradoxically, on the challenge of the propriety of the two lawyers to appear in the case, and settled a constitutional question of how closely the courts must adhere to the right of an accused person to have counsel "through every stage" of his case.

After Edwards was sentenced to 5 to 15 years' imprisonment and his appeal was noted, Martin was allowed to withdraw from the case. For six days after that Edwards was not represented by an attorney. Then Obear was appointed.

Obear contended that Edwards was deprived of his constitutional rights during those six days. The court found, however, that since the case was quiescent during that period none of Edwards' constitutional guarantees were lost, and therefore upheld his conviction.

Mrs. Pinchot Heads New D. C. War Service

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot yesterday was appointed chairman of the block organization of Civilian War Services Division for the District.

She was nominated for the post by H. P. Somerville, chairman of the division, and approved by District Commissioners.

Under her direction the block organization will continue work on five projects: locating homes for children of working mothers where day care centers are not available; urging women not now employed to take full or part-time positions; victory garden planning; car sharing; and WAC enlistment.

Somerville said yesterday that Mrs. Pinchot has been interested in block organization as a means of bringing neighborhoods together to solve their own problems, since the beginning of the war, and that he expects the organization to attack problems with new vigor under her leadership.

Mrs. Pinchot said last night she was glad to help the work of the organization and that she believed it a vital work "not duplicating the service of any other organization. "If it were, I would not be interested," she said.

Prettyman To Head OPA Advisory Board

E. Barrett Prettyman will head the newly formed advisory committee of the OPA, it was announced yesterday by that agency.

Prettyman, long identified with the legal profession in Washington, was corporation counsel of the District from 1934 to 1936, and was general counsel for the Bureau of Internal Revenue from 1933 to 1934. He is a veteran of the last war.

Serving with him on the committee will be Richard H. Field, Weston, Mass., who since 1942 has been regional attorney for OPA in Boston. He was named legal adviser and acting counsel.

Chester Bowles, OPA administrator, said the legal advisory committee will review OPA legal procedures in the rent, price and rationing departments, and will make suggestions for simplicity, efficiency and prompt execution. The OPA's legal department also will be studied by the new committee and suggestions as to its adequacy transmitted to Bowles.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

All parents, as a matter of course, compare their children with others. First they ask, "How old is your girl?" then, "What is she doing, now?"

"What I should like to know," Mrs. V. S. writes, "is just what a 3-year-old can do. Sometimes I think my boy is very smart, sometimes I don't."

Here, very briefly, is about the way the average three-year old behaves.

He should have graduated from the disorganized, uncontrolled period that was two and one-half years. Even his parents notice how much more "grownup" he is. He can help and wants to. He can attend to his own toilet duties. He can dress himself, sometimes right down to the tying of the shoes—which someone else must do. He is neater about his toys and knows the places where they are to be kept.

His own play is more imaginative. "I'm on the curbing," he tells his mother, standing rigidly on the hearthstone, "and I can't step off—(onto the carpet) or I'll get wunned over, if I do."

He can turn himself into an animal, complete with appropriate body and accompanying animal noises, or he can manufacture a satisfying companion who goes with him throughout the day.

When he plays tea-party he can drink from an empty cup and nibble pretend sandwiches as satisfyingly as when he had to pour water or eat real cookies before it would seem to be a party.

At this age the child eats competently at the table but there are times when a little help or attention from the parents gets down those last bites which seem less appealing than the first ones.

Sleep may be more disturbed and the daytime nap merely a gesture toward "westing." His ability to climb in and out of bed makes it a chore to keep the child there. Gates on the doors will keep him in his room if not in bed until he is ready for it.

Children talk quite glibly, with some faltering over consonants, such as "r" and a blithe disregard of the proper pronouns and verb forms. "How big I are!" David says gaily as he climbs the big bed. But those who have been read to can read glibly when the pages of a beloved book are turned. Each picture sets him to reeling off the rhyme below.

It's a necessary interlude between cry-baby Two and pugnacious, rude Four. Enjoy Three while you can.

"How the Child Develops" suggests the usual behavior between one and five. It may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of The Washington Post.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Be Guest of Carolina Society

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be guest of honor at the annual Christmas party of the North Carolina Society, Saturday, at 9 p. m., at the Shoreham Hotel.

Mrs. Roosevelt will relate highlights of her recent trip to the battle fronts and in many incidents will bring direct messages to members of the society, most of whom have a husband, brother, son or sweetheart in the foreign service.

A short reception with Christmas features will be followed by dancing until 1 a. m. During the intermission gifts will be distributed to Tarheel servicemen in the armed forces who will again be special guests of the society.

Sharing honors of the evening will be some of the hospitalized heroes from the battlefields who are recuperating in and near Washington.

Congressman Cameron Morrison and Mrs. May Thompson Evans have been designated as cochairmen of the committee on arrangements by president of the society, John K. Slear. They will be assisted by officers of the society, Senator and Mrs. Joseph K. Bailey, former Governor Gardner and Mrs. Gardner, Assistant to the President Jonathan Daniels and Mrs. Daniels, Comptroller General Lindsay Warren and Mrs. Warren, and a number of other North Carolinians.

We've uncovered little bits of accessories that will make you feel festive because they're new and feminine and spirit-lifting and they can help you to continue to get by with the clothes you already own.

On Your Head—

You've probably yearned for a feather hat but felt it was not within reach of your pocketbook. Well, we found some that are really something and they're only around $4. You can get either calots or pillboxes completely covered with soft, tiny feathers in a variety of lovely colors—pale blue, green, white, dark green, rich red brown or dark brown. Each one comes with two matching feather-tipped hatpins.

And here's a hat that's exclusively for dress up. It's a black felt calot decorated with tiny sequins that outline bows around the edge of the crown and has a glamour-giving veil that looks graceful even when you lift it up. We like it because it adds a definite festive look to your costume and it's the kind of glitter you can add or subtract as you please; which is the only way glitter ought to be bought—in our opinion.

You can let glitter go to your head—this way!

Combs are a new fashion and functional, too. They look smart, on any hairdo—worn in pairs either up high in your pompadour, stuck in a chignon, or with an upsweep. The one sketched is made of a white plastic material in a decorative flower design set with rhinestones. You can also get it in a butterfly design.

Big sequin or jewel hatpins give an old hat a cheerful look. Some of the prettiest we've seen are made of black felt and are lavishly covered with a variety of sequins of different colors and sizes. You can get them in different shapes, too—scotties, hearts, etc. Around $2.

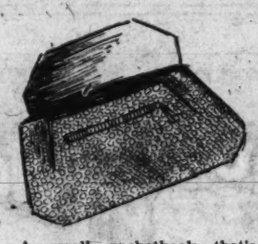
New Fronts—

The new decorated gilets add a dramatic note to a simple costume. One of the newest is made of wool and rayon boucle with a necklace of black beading outlining the round neckline, and buttons at the back of the neck. It's made in two subtle colors that add a smart contrast with a suit. Comes in green and black, black and white, and pink and black.

For Your Vanity—

Inexpensive vanity cases do exist, and they're so smart you'll be forgiven if you powder your nose in public. This one is a rectangular box type made in rayon taffeta with colorful pictures painted on the top. There's a good size mirror inside. You can also get it in Roman stripes. Around $2.

One for Your Money—



A small pocketbook that's made of genuine cobra is a refreshing relief from the huge carryalls you see so much. It has a zipper compartment on the outside for your pass, money or cigarettes, and the inside has sectioned spaces for your lipstick and mirror. It really holds quite a lot. Your favorite friend would be delighted to receive it for Christmas. It comes in almost any color you can think of—for around $5.

Mary Haworth's Mail

As Girl's Desire to Marry Fiance Grows More Urgent, Intensified by Loneliness Since He Joined Army, His Ardor Cools; She Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am engaged to a man in the armed forces. I have known him nearly six years and there has never been the slightest doubt in my mind about his being "my man,"—until the past six months. He has been in the service 14 months; and he gave me an engagement ring a year ago. The reason why we aren't married today may be a clue to his character. It is simply this: Although he has told me for nearly four years that he loves me, and although I know this is true, and although we are formally engaged, he says he cannot marry me now because his parents would never approve of me!

His parents are very old and not well; and he contributes to their support. They are of different intellect and background than I. They live in another part of the country, and are both too ill and too aged to travel, and see him only when he visits them. Indirectly, I have gained the impression that they have always objected to his way-of-life; and that he has learned from experience that the way to keep peace is not to oppose them, openly. Thus, I had rather taken for granted that it was best for us to postpone marriage until they weren't with us;—although I dislike building happiness on such a thought.

During his first six months in the army, I was terribly lonesome and wrote to him several times, intimating that I yearned to be married right away. Usually he called me on receipt of such letters and was so sweetly reassuring over the telephone that I realized it was harder on him than on me; and then I felt ashamed. However, in recent months the tone, content and length of his letters have changed completely. He writes about once every two weeks and then he says nothing,—just how hard he is working and what the weather is like; never a word about us or our future. Though still in this country, he is thousands of miles away, so I cannot go to him; and I am almost frantic, wondering what has happened . . .

Marriage Must Wait, He Tells Her Flatly

One night, after I had had a particularly trying week, I telephoned him and broke down and said I just couldn't wait on future events any longer; that I thought I should be first with him; and that I wanted to come and marry him now. To my amazement, he was quite annoyed and said he couldn't have a wife now; that he was working hard at camp and couldn't spend much time with me, etc.; but that if I wanted to come and visit him, he would buy the ticket. He concluded by saying I should remember his feelings and KNOW we HAD to wait; and that "that was final."

I dislike crying on his shoulder; but still, I certainly think I have a right (as his fiancee) to know why he has changed toward me. I have tried to find out, with indirect questions, if he has met another girl. It isn't improbable. But he doesn't say. If he is dating another girl whose company he enjoys,—and who helps to make time pass more quickly for him,—that is all right with me. But I don't think I should wait idly by if he is going to switch his affections to somebody else. I have always believed it is better to have your man than your pride; and I really do love him. But I don't want to lose him through foolish jealousy.

What should I do? Dismiss my anxiety and write him as usual? Or try to find out (1) if his feeling toward me has changed; or (2) whether he is simply working very hard, and I am just imagining things? MARY W.

Man Is Repelled By Her Hysteria

DEAR MARY W.: After studying your story, my inference is this: If your fiance's feeling for you has gradually cooled to surly tolerance since he entered the army, it is primarily due to your long-distance crying on his shoulder, a semi-hysterical performance that has been gathering vehemence with every successive month of his absence. To begin with, he isn't a very strong character,—as witness his evasively placating, and indeed tacitly deceptive management of his relationship with his parents, an ignominious operation that bespeaks a weakly childish dependence upon the good will and approbation of these two strong-minded (but antipathetic to him) authors of his being.

Such spineless behavior on the part of adults toward aging parents is definitely neurotic, and suggests, as much as anything else, an obscure though powerfully-felt sense of guilt in relation to them—a "complex" which, if analytically explored, doubtless would be found to have its roots in early childhood rebellious detestation of certain autocratic aspects of the parental personality, as exerted or the child: such aspects, for instance, as "Do as I say or incur my lasting displeasure"; and (by implication), "If you hurt my feelings now, you will be sorry after I am dead."

Man Is Neurotically Enslaved by Parents

AS A RESULT of such psychological treatment (which is covert emotional blackmail), the child may unconsciously figure that he can never be captain of his own soul until his parents are dead; and this unconscious calculation suffuses him subconsciously, in turn, with horrified self reproach at his theoretically "unnatural" reaction to these well-intentioned guardians. That child's social growth toward adulthood will be an experience in progressive psychic estrangement from his parents, regardless of the outward form of his relationship to them; and unless and until his neurosis is cured,—dissolved in the light of full and forgiving understanding of the reciprocal factors involved,—he will always be unstable and indecisive, to some degree, in every relationship and endeavor: because of that basic, unrealized sense of guilt, which continuously feeds his mind with fear that he just might feel suicidally remorseful himself, after their death, in the event he should act boldly to please himself, at the expense of displeasing them, during their life.

Prior to the last 14 months, your attitude of sympathy with his inarticulate neurotic deference toward his parents, and amiable disposition to follow his lead in overtly honoring their prejudices, had persuaded your fiance that he had found wonderfully consoling, ideally complementary, sanctuary alliance in relation to you. Thus, nothing could have been more surprising to him, nor less to his liking, nor more critically disturbing to his precariously-preserved semblance of normal psychological balance,—at a time when he was already being sorely tried by the nervous strains and physical vicissitudes of army life: which are excessively severe to one of his temperament,—than to have you suddenly go on the warpath for marriage, using woebegone weeping as your weapon, and hysterically urging a shown-down with his parents.

Four-Point Program For Healing Breach

AS FOR WHAT to do now: Since you "really do love him," and since, in my judgment, your siege of melancholia has produced the disturbing change in his attitude toward you, it appears that your only chance of healing the breach consists in (1) pulling yourself together; (2) firmly resolving to keep your chin up and your worries to yourself hereafter, while apart from him; (3) apologizing to him once, lightly, for your cry baby behavior of this past year; and assuring him cheerfully that he shall hear no more of that line; and (4) addressing yourself to the proposition of treating him to altogether sunny manifestations of interest, by letter and telephone, and perhaps by visit, for the duration.

Republicans Decry Food Bungling

The food situation in the United States is very serious. And what's more the worst is yet to come," Thomas A. Jenkins (Republican) of Ohio, declared in an address before the League of Republican Women yesterday.

"The worst will come in the spring," he went on, "when this year's harvests have been consumed. We have about consumed our reserves, and the demands for food are increasing greatly."

Christian A. Herter (Republican) of Massachusetts, who worked on European food relief in the first World War, continued the discussion by pointing out that "The problem of food has many sides. One side is production," he elaborated, "with its questions of manpower, machinery and of subsidies. Another side is the processing of food and its transportation. A third is distribution which, if it is to be maintained on an equitable basis in a wartime economy may involve the rationing of those foods of which there is not enough to go around. Finally, comes the question of prices which is interwoven with all phases of the problem."

"The Republican Food Study Committee of the House," Herter pointed out, "is now engaged in exploring all of these questions." The committee has recommended that butter and fats be rationed separately from meats and also that the rationing of sugar be discontinued as it can see no real justification for its continuance in view of existing and prospective supplies.

Jenkins stated that "While Government statistics indicate that the cost of living has not increased very much it is a matter of common knowledge by every housewife in the land that the cost of living has increased tremendously. The great increase in the cost of food," he said, "may be attributed to the inferior quality of food products and the unsatisfactory marketing conditions under which purchasers do their marketing."

Both speakers advocated a greater coordination in the handling of food problems in order to get a steadier flow to food in and out of markets.

Fort Belvoir Garrison Turns Out to Bid -Retiring Commandant and Family Farewell

The transfer of Brig. Gen. Roscoe Campbell Crawford from Fort Belvoir, Army engineer post in nearby Virginia, to Omaha, Nebr., means the departure of one of the post's first families. He and Mrs. Crawford completed the move last week and he assumed his duties yesterday as division engineer for the Missouri River Federal engineering division, covering 10 Middle Western States.

Before he left the post, where he had served for nearly six years, the general was honored with a military review, and the entire garrison was present to bid him and his family farewell. General and Mrs. Crawford's daughter, Mrs. William Jonreau Williams 2d, who was married to the late Lieutenant Williams in the summer of 1941, left the post earlier in the week to join his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Williams in Erie, Pa.

Mrs. Williams, the former Nancy Johnson Crawford, has been making her home with her parents since last winter, when her husband was killed in a bomber crash over England. She and her small daughter, Mary Williams, will visit in Erie until the Crawfords are settled in Omaha.

Has Been at Belvoir Before

General Crawford has had several assignments at the engineer school of which he was commandant from June, 1940, until his present transfer. A graduate of the United States Military Academy in the class of 1912, he was stationed at Fort Belvoir, then known as Camp Humphreys, from September 16, 1918, to October 4, 1918, and after an assignment in Texas, returned on March 8, 1919, to serve as an instructor at the engineer school.

An honor graduate of the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., General Crawford is also a graduate of the Army War College in Washington and served a tour of duty as senior instructor of engineering at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga. In the summer of 1935 he served for several months as a delegate to the Permanent International Commission of the Congresses of Navigation in Belgium and France.

The Crawfords came again to Fort Belvoir in 1938 when he reported for duty as a battalion commander in the Fifth Engineer Regiment, later assuming command of the entire unit. In 1940 he was appointed president of the engineer board at the post which is responsible under the chief of engineers for the development and research work of new and improved equipment for engineer troops.

Was in Charge Of Expanding Post

On June 28, 1940, General Crawford succeeded Brig. Gen. James O'Connor as commanding officer of the entire post and commandant of the Engineer School, and was in command of Fort Belvoir from the summer of 1940 until the fall of 1941. He directed the major part of the huge construction program of the Engineer Replacement Training Center which was built in preparation for increasing the strength of the post from an estimated 2000 military and civilian personnel to 20,000 men under arms.

He was promoted from colonel to brigadier general on July 10, 1941, and during that year he was sent on a special mission of several weeks as an observer in England. He retained the posts of commandant of the Engineer School and president of the Engineer Board when a new commanding general, Brig. Gen. Edwin Hall Marks, was named.

Mrs. Crawford is the daughter of former Representative Ban Johnson of Kentucky who served in Congress for 20 years. Now that Representative Johnson is retired and lives quietly near Louisville, Mrs. Crawford has been able to make only an occasional trip to see him, but on their trip to the West she and the general are making a brief stay with him a highlight of their itinerary.

The move to Omaha will also bring the Crawfords within two hours' flying time of Fort Leavenworth, where their son, Lieut. Col. Roscoe Campbell Crawford, jr., of the Air Corps, is stationed. A graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., he is a lieutenant colonel at 26 and is taking a three-months' course at the Command and General Staff School, which he began in November.

General Crawford, in assuming his new post, will be in charge of rivers and harbors work and other Army engineer projects as commanding officer of the district engineers in Montana, North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Colorado.

Mrs. Crawford Active In Garden Clubs

During their five years at the post Mrs. Crawford forwarded the Fort Belvoir Garden Club, which worked in cooperation with the Alexandria and Fairfax County Garden Clubs in various activities, including the prewar garden tours. She was on the committee of hosteses at Gunston Hall, historic home of George Mason, now owned by Louis Hertle, during the last of the Virginia garden tours, and assisted with the Alexandria Association's tour of old houses in the city.

Mrs. Crawford also directed the work of the Fort Belvoir Woman's Guild, which maintained a thrift shop to raise funds for supplying milk to Fairfax County children in the vicinity of the post, and cooperated with the post chaplain in Army relief work for families of enlisted men.

Mrs. J.M. Helm, Mrs. Macneil Give Tea

New members of the Society of Sponsors, an organization made up of women who have christened Untied States naval vessels, met a group of the older members of the society at a pleasant tea yesterday given by Mrs. James M. Helm and Mrs. Robert Lister Macneil, who entertained at Mrs. Macneil's home in Georgetown.

Mrs. Helm, the widow of Admiral Helm, has three times served as sponsor, first when the U. S. S. Benham, named for her father, slid down the ways; again when the U. S. S. Helm, named for her husband, was launched, and more recently, was the sponsor of a cruiser.

Member of a long line of naval officers, Mrs. Macneil sponsored the first Stevens in 1918, named for her great-grandfather, Commodore Thomas H. Stevens, who was in command of the Washington Navy Yard at the time of his death a century ago. Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frederick Stevens Hicks, whose husband is in the Navy, assisted at the party yesterday. She was sponsor of the new Stevens which was named for the commodore and his son, the late Admiral T. H. Stevens 2d.

It was 21 years ago that Mrs. Macneil, then Mrs. Frederick Hicks, wife of the late Representative Hicks, member of the Naval Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives, gave a party for Mrs. Edwin Denby, whose husband was Secretary of the Navy. Assisting her at that party was Mrs. Russell Langdon, new president of the society and its present president, and Mrs. Helm, who was secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Macneil was first vice president of the society at that time.

Yesterday Mr. Frank Knox, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Russell Langdon received with the two hostesses and sponsors. Taking their turn at the tea table were Mrs. Ralph Bard, wife of the Undersecretary of the Navy; Mrs. Royal Ingersoll, second vice president of the society; Mrs. Randall Jacobs, Mrs. Robert Dunlop, first vice president of the organization; Mrs. Stanton R. Norman, secretary; Mrs. Herbert S. Howard, Mrs. Donald Bingham, Mrs. Herbert Isherwood, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur.

Others who assisted were Mrs. James Spear Taylor, Miss Alice Ingersoll, Mme. Lombard and Mrs. Frederick Stevens Hicks, all sponsors.

Movies of First Lady's Trip to Be Shown White House Guards

Movies of her trip to the South Pacific battle zones will be shown to the military police and anti-aircraft detachments guarding the White House, Mrs. Roosevelt told members of her press conference yesterday, with a showing to be held Thursday evening at the White House and another on Saturday evening. The films were also shown last night.

"It will be the first time that many of our guardians have ever been in the White House," Mrs. Roosevelt said, and explained that the soldiers had asked to see the motion pictures through their commanding officer. Afterward, the boys will have a chance to tour the first floor of the mansion they guard.

Commenting on the part this country would be asked to take in the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Association program, Mrs. Roosevelt said she thought Americans should not look upon this Nation's contributions as "sacrifice."

"We are asked to do what must be done in order eventually to have a world in which we can prosper," she stated. "That is not a sacrifice, but, rather, a far-sighted, enlightened policy of self-interest."

She added that to give devastated countries "seeds and machinery to start both agricultural and industrial wheels turning again is the only way in which they can become again a consuming factor in the world."

On Brief Visit

Mrs. William Fahnestcok, jr., has come up from her country home Reedbourne at Centerville, Md., and is staying at The Mayflower for several days.

Mrs. Dean Taylor Honored at Tea

A group of Congressional wives, known as the war stamp corsage committee, surprised the chairman, Mrs. Dean Taylor with a small tea yesterday afternoon.

The party took place at Mrs. Taylor's apartment at the Dorchester. She was presented with eight 50-cent stamps tied to a Christmas candle. Those on the committee who were present included Mrs. F. A. Barrett of Wyoming, Mrs. John Taber, Mrs. Pat Kearney, and Mrs. Clarence E. Hancock of New York, Mrs. Henry Dworshak of Idaho, Mrs. Foster Stearns of New Hampshire and Mrs. Hal Holmes of Washington State.

Members of the committee have charge of the booth at the Statler Hotel, where they are selling children's toys and victory corsages.

Ellen Wood, Poet, Gives Lecture to Barnard Club

Ellen Wood, gifted poetess, is in New York for several days, the guest of Mrs. William C. Hesse at her home on East 51st st.

Miss Wood gave the first in her series of lectures at the Barnard Club on Saturday, with the twin topics, "Universality of Poetry" and "A Poet's Place at the Peace Table" as her subject. She illustrated her talk with the works of four poets: Ts'ao, ninth century Chinese poet; Friedrich von Schiller, eighteenth century German author; Phillip Frenau, eighteenth century American, and Gabriela Mistral, twentieth century Chilean poet.

While in New York Miss Wood expects to see Dr. Hu Shih, former Ambassador of China, and Mayor LaGuardia, to discuss with them her idea of the poet's place at the peace table. On the lighter side of her visit Miss Wood was guest of honor at a dinner and a tea given by Mrs. Hesse.

Introducing: 'The Father of Gliding and Soaring in America,' Whose Down-to-Earth Inventions and Products Are Important Contributions to the War Effort

"WHY ON EARTH didn't I think of that before?"

A 60-year-young international industrialist, whose inventions have revolutionized freight loading and shipping, was talking . . . and the question above was the one he said he asked himself every time he had a new idea. Incidentally, you have only to look at the record to see that since 1916, his "new ideas"—worked out on a practical basis and put to wide use—have been among the most important engineering developments in America, and are now among the outstanding contributions to the war effort.

He is Col. Edward S. Evans—adventurer on land, on sea, and in the air—and his plants in Michigan, Oregon, Mississippi and British Columbia are now devoting their entire output to war production. In Washington on business—wartime business of course—the other day, he took time out from a series of big-league conferences to tell me something of his inventions that are now history, and of his ideas on things to come.

"Of course, no matter what invention you may happen on—you always ask yourself, 'Why didn't I think of that before?'" he repeated, with a twinkle in his hazel eyes. "They're all so simple . . . once they come to you."

THEY—THOSE New Ideas that are now such an important part of the war program—have come to Mr. Evans fast and furiously in the past quarter of a century. The boy who early in life made up his mind to be a missionary has managed to put vastly important preachments to practice on the home territory; has found a fertile field for scores of his own "visions" and those of many other persons; and has learned how to put his ideas into business practice. Furthermore, he has proved that there is tangible treasury gold in the Golden Rule. . . . and also, that thrilling developments in peacetime become life-saving, time-saving, and money-saving devices in time of war.

Some of his products that are helping to win the war? Well, there's the autor-railer locomotive, operating with equal efficiency on either road or rail; saving time, distance and cost in cargo shipment. There are the wooden battery separators, silent servants of undersea craft, of which Mr. Evans' company is the largest single producer in the world. There are the Evans power ventilators bringing fresh air to wounded heroes as they are brought in by ambulance from the fighting front; and there are the Evans heaters for tanks, trucks and combat vehicles.

A CONVINCING talker, who puts across his ideas with a minimum of lung power and a maximum of inspiration, Mr. Evans looks every inch the successful businessman and "idea man" that he is. He is tall, silver-haired and handsome. He looks at you—now gravely, now with a smile in his eyes—through pince-nez . . . and while he obviously enjoys talking about his inventions and his business as a whole, he is not loathe to turn to other topics.

His range of interests is remarkable. "Probably because I've dabbled in so many things," he said. During the first World War, he was in charge of overseas loading for the Quartermaster Corps. He is a former president of the Detroit Aircraft Corp., of Lockheed, Eastman and Ryan companies and of the Aircraft Development Corp., which built the only metal-clad dirigible in the world. To demonstrate the practicability of the commercial transport plane in 1926, he established a world's record by circumnavigating the globe in 28 days. He has received congressional recognition as "the father of gliding and soaring in the United States."

COL. EDWARD S. EVANS

OTHER EVANS DATA: He is the son of a newspaperman; his father was publisher of the Lynchburg Advance, now owned by Senator Glass. He was assistant librarian in the Library of Congress for a time; was once given two weeks to live. He is an amateur palmist; an accomplished teller of Negro anecdotes, and he is convinced that a sense of humor is a prime requisite in the business of full living. He is a crossword puzzle and comic strip addict. He out-Burbanks Burbank by growing eight varieties of apples on one tree, and in peacetime, one of his favorite relaxations is shooting the rapids in a canoe.

In peace or war, he loves to "live dangerously;" to make the glorious present as much a part of the future as possible; and never to lose sight of that future. Right now, he's deep in postwar engineering developments . . . among them, he foresees the glider as the sleeping car of the future, with all the advantages of motorless flight.

"That is sure to come," he said. "And when it is all worked out, the man who is responsible will say—'Why on earth didn't I think of that before?'"

Vera Bloom Writes Lyrics For New Songs

You'll be humming the tuneful "I Wish I Could Write a Love Song," before long, or perhaps it will be "When You Come Back to Me," that will catch your ear. At any rate, copies of both will be on the music racks any day now, and the composers, Bloom and Fenstock are just a little bit proud.

Miss Vera Bloom, daughter of Representative Sol Bloom, and Miss Belle Fenstock, who is with the Mexican-American Mixed Claims Division, are off to New York with two more new songs to sell. It's all very much of a secret now, but there may be a big surprise for the authors' friends in the offing.

Th team of Bloom and Fenstock are in New York for another reason. They timed their visit to be able to attend a party in honor of Miss Fenstock's brother, a captain in the Adjutant General's Office here, and Miss Gertrude Isaacson, whose engagement was recently announced.

The daughter of Sol Bloom comes by her talents honestly. Her father had an early career in song writing, gave it up for politics. Miss Bloom has a charming soprano voice and plays the piano delightfully. Her first efforts at lyric writing came when she wrote words for the tango, "Jalousie." Since then she has gone on and one of her most recent is "Just Keep Loving Me," which you often hear floating from Sidney's violin during the luncheon hour at the Mayflower.

The other half of this musical team has been composing for a number of years with almost half a hundred numbers to her credit. Miss Fenstock's forte is modern instrumental writing.

Mrs. Worthington Here

Mrs. Ralph Worthington, who now makes her home in New York, spent yesterday and will be at the Mayflower today visiting her daughter, Mrs. Norman C. Keith and her two infant grandsons. Mrs. Worthington is en route to Cleveland to visit her son, Ralph Worthington 3d, and will return here to spend Christmas.

Couple Wed In Church Rites Here

At a 4:30 ceremony yesterday in the Metropolitan Memorial Church, Miss Mildred A. Heinemann became the bride of Lieut. Walter R. Wildnauer, jr., USA.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Heinemann, jr., and Lieutenant Wildnauer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wildnauer of East Orange, N. J. Officiating at the service was the Rev. Edward G. Latch.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in ivory slipper satin, cut with yoke of marquisette outlined in lace, and a fingertip length veil of matching net. Her veil was held in place by a heart-shaped headpiece of ivory net and she carried a colonial bouquet of white roses surrounding a white orchid. The matron of honor, Mrs. L. H. Pierce of Baltimore, wore silver blue taffeta and carried a bouquet of mixed fall flowers that matched her headpiece. Serving as best man was Charles B. Heinemann, jr., brother of the bride. Ushering were C. F. Mullaly and J. W. Thomas.

After a brief honeymono at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, the couple will reside in Zanesville, Ohio, where the bridegroom is stationed.

Mrs. Joseph C. Byron of Md. To Arrive for Brief Visit Here

Mrs. Katharine Edgar Byron Entertains For Her Mother and Mrs. Ralph Wooten

There is a great deal of coming and going among members of the Byron clan of Maryland this week.

Scheduled to arrive tomorrow at the Sulgrave Club is Mrs. Joseph C. Bryon of Hagerstown, wife of the late Col. Joseph C. Byron and mother of the late Representative William D. Byron. She plans to be in town for several days of Christmas shopping and will return home the end of the week. Her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson Byron are registered for the week at the Mayflower.

Former Maryland Representative Katharine Edgar Byron entertained at an informal buffet supper Sunday night for her mother, Mrs. C. Goodloe Edgar, who left yesterday for Florida to spend several months with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. James Edgar. Sharing honors at Sunday's party, was Mrs. Edgar's house guest, Mrs. Ralph Wooten, wife of Brigadier General Wooten who is at present on duty outside of the country. Mrs. Wooten has been honored at several small parties since her recent arrival in town. Among them was the dinner given for her last night by Mrs. William S. Culbertson.

Among Mrs. Byron's guests Sunday evening were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Leslie E. Bratton, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Albert W. Kenner, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Clayton Bissell, Mrs. Conger Pratt, Lieut. and Mrs. Luther Matthew Bolton, Lieut. Comdr. David H. Quinn, Comdr. and Mrs. Herbert Parker, Lieut. George Abell, Mrs. Randall H. Hagner, Capt. and Mrs. Clarence Lee Miller, Capt. Lyle Brookover, Mrs. George Kent, jr., Mrs. Edward Treglown, Pierre Bedard, Miss Henrietta Sherwood and Lieut. John Orr.

The evening's informal musical program centered around Senator A. B. ("Happy") Chandler, who sang a number of familiar tunes, to the piano accompaniment of talented Mrs. Eugene Villaret. The party was one in a series Mrs. Byron has given this season.

From Venezuela

Mrs. Marion Buford of Caracas, Venzuela, has arrived in Washington and is at the Mayflower. Mrs. Buford is connected with a government agency with field offices in Venezuela.

Bruces to Leave For South America After Christmas

"Won't you please tell all our American friends how very much we regret leaving this country?" said Mrs. J. E. Bruce, wife of the Attache of the South African Legation. For amid moving from their home at 3802 Alton pl. to the Wardman Park, where they will await their departure for his new post in Argentina, immediately after Christmas, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce and tiny Mary Elizabeth, aged 1, won't have much time to say reluctant farewells.

They will fly down the West Coast of South America, leaving from Miami, and will cross the Andes en route to Buenos Aires. There Mr. Bruce will be vice consul of the South African consulate.

Sarah Stewart Is Bride-Elect

David Burchard Stewart, jr., announces the engagement of his daughter, Sarah Lila, to Lieut. (j. g.) Clifford Howard Towne, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Towne of Dover, N. H.

Miss Stewart attended American University and was graduated from the University of Maryland. She is a member of Phi Mu Sorority. The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of the University of New Hampshire. Before entering the service he was engaged in architectural work. He has recently returned from the South Pacific.

The wedding will take place December 22 at the Church of the Epiphany.

Food Foibles Attributed to Sex, Habitat

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

"I remember it only too well," said my old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs. "Sunday noon. That was when my Uncle John used to come and have dinner with us. This goes back to about 1880.

"Well, Saturday must have been a terrible day every week for mother. When she went to market I could hear her murmuring under her shawl, 'John doesn't east fish, and they have such nice bass in the market now.'

"The list of things Uncle John did not eat would stretch from here to Moscow, and in later years of my life I wondered how he acquired those food habits..

Prejudices Unexplainable

"I can assess myself and I can see that I have any number of food habits that are simply nonsense. For instance, I cannot eat liver. Any kind of liver—chicken beef, lamb. Yet I know perfectly well that liver is a healthful food.

"Not only that, but my sister Clara yearns for liver. Every time I take her to a restaurant she selects liver. So it can't be a religious prejudice, nor one based on family remembrances or admonitions."

Dr. Gibbs couldn't recall his seeing sausage on the table at his father's house and until he got married he never ate it, to his knowledge. Now he can't get enough of it.

"The consequences are deeper than you would imagine, on first though. All prison riots begin with complaints about food. Admittedly the food itself is not the only cause for a riot, but when the atmosphere in any corrective institution becomes tense for other reasons, one bad meal is enough to bring about a violent situation.

"And when I think of the number of marriages that are wrecked on account of poorly prepared foods I am not surprised that the divorce courts are kept busy night and day

Men Prefer Meat

"I see by the medical papers that a gentleman by the name of Selling, in Detroit, has interviewed a number of people to determine their food likes and dislikes. It appears that sex has something to do with it. Sixty-seven per cent of the men he questioned preferred meat, but only 35 per cent of the women. The women were definitely in favor of cream, cheese and canned fruit.

"What part of the country or what part of the world you live in makes a difference. The Southerner likes his chitlins. Some people can't eat if the plate is too full and vice versa.

"I remember having saved a man's reputation once by giving him some dietary advice. It was Judge Summerwell. Some lawyers came to me and said I ought to speak to him. He invariably fell asleep on the bench after the noon recess. I gave him a food questionnaire and finally talked him into having a light lunch and his heavy meal at night. That way he bothered only his family by going to sleep."

Underground Schools Defy Nazis in Poland

By Genevieve Reynolds

Despite the fact that the Nazis have closed all educational institutions in Poland, 1700 high school diplomas and several hundred university degrees were given last year by the Polish underground schools, according to Count Antoni Tarnowski, formerly attached to the Polish Embassy staff here, who was guest speaker at the Woman's National Democratic Club's luncheon meeting yesterday.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

"Two universities are being run under the very nose of the Gestapo," he said. "Naturally, all our schools must be underground, but they are well organized and continue to function."

All this is the answer to the German's concentrated efforts to corrupt the youth of the country. In order to defile the youth, they sell cheap liquor, run gambling houses and distribute vulgar pornograph pictures the speaker declared. Hence, one of the main problems confronting the nation is to preserve the morals and integrity of its young people.

Refuting the rumors that the Polish underground is split, Count Tarnowski averred that it is completely united. He explained that the underground has a law abiding court. Before a German is killed for persecuting the Poles, the court must pass a verdict to that effect. Even then the victim is warned three times and given a chance to mend his ways before being bumped off.

Recalling the persecutions and hardships of his people, the persuasive speaker made it clear that Poland is fighting for its freedom and territorial integrity. All are united on those points. That it is neither pro-Russian or pro-German. And that its determination to fight is linked with the hope of freedom.

"Should that freedom be denied," he said, "no one can tell what the Polish people will do at the end of the war.

"In Europe America is President Wilson," he continued. "Everybody's mind and eyes are focused on the United States. For Wilson was the first to establish freedom legally for all peoples."

Count Tarnowski recalled that Poland gave freedom of religion in 1573 and established the first written democratic constitution in Europe in 1791.

Mrs. Hale T. Schenefield, vice president, presided at the meeting and Mrs. Paul Yoder introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Franklin Farrington of the American Red Cross Speakers' Bureau put in an urgent call for blood donors and for people to make surgical dressings. To date the Red Cross is 150,000 short of surgical dressings, she said.

Distinguished guests included Mrs. George Marye of California, wife of the last American Ambassador to old Imperial Russia, who came with Mrs. Emil Hurja; Mrs. Leo Crowley, Mrs. Edward B. Costigan and Judge Marion Herron.

Figures to Groan Over

During the month of July, women spent for coats and suits 65 per cent more than they spent in July, 1942; for dresses, 37 per cent more; for blouses, skirts and sportswear, 30 per cent; for underwear, slips and negligees, 31 per cent more. For corsets and brassieres, they spent 24 per cent more, and for gloves, 41 per cent more. These are Federal Reserve figures, and they point toward inflation.

Making Over Metal Does Not Daunt This Woman Worker

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

In these days of making over, it is interesting to learn about a woman who isn't even daunted by the idea of making over metal. She is Neill Dingledine, a skilled artist in metal craft in her spare time. Socially she is Mrs. William Dingledine, wife of a vice president and a vice president herself! (Her husband is vice president of a well-known advertising agency and she is vice president of her women's club with the special duty of bringing celebrities to lecture in her town.)

Mrs. Dingledine "took up" metal art some years ago—tackling it "cold," though she had had some training in design. Her first piece of work, the ubiquitous ash tray, is still a good-looking and useful thing. She soon progressed to trays, large platters and one of her most used pieces is a wide-shouldered deep dish into which a glass pie plate just fits for serving at the table.

She has also made some jewelry. Her designs have an urbane simplicity that is modern and yet fits pleasantly into her traditional home, furnished with eighteenth and nineteenth century antiques.

Pewter Is Easiest

With new sheet metal hard or impossible to get, Mrs. Dingledine is interested in making over old battered pieces of silver and pewter. She even reworks copper that is too good to scrap, yet not smart enough to use. Pewter is the easiest metal to work with—a child can handle it—and silver isn't very difficult. Copper and especially brass take more strength and patience and when you get into the really big stuff, the blacksmith touch becomes essential.

The tools Mrs. Dingledine uses most include a hammer, saw, file and various polishing tools (burnishers, emery cloths and steel wool).

The Family Collaborates

More ambitious hobbyists have their workshops fitted up with electrical buffers, with different sized brushes and polishers. Gas jets supply heat when needed and acids are used for etching out certain designs. Mrs. Dingledine learned all this in an industrial arts course given in an adult class in her town.

She and her husband are ardent amateur photographers. Some of their unusual pictures of Monticello were used to illustrate Bernard Mayo's book, "Jefferson Himself," published last year.

A few years ago the Dingledines collaborated on writing and illustrating a book of their own, poking gentle fun at themselves and the other member of the family (a handsome white Samoyed named Sneijok. This book was signed by Sneijok and entitled "How to Train Your Owner." In addition, Mrs. Dingledine is active in church circles and Red Cross work, having turned in as many as four sweaters a month!

"Guess My Age!"

New Kind of Face Powder Makes Her Look Years Younger!

ONCE this lovely girl looked quite a bit older. Some people actually thought she was rapidly approaching middle age . . .

For she was the innocent victim of an unflattering face powder! It was such an unkind powder—treacherous and sly. It showed up every tiny line in her face—accented every little skin fault—even seemed to exaggerate the size of her pores.

But look at her now! Can you guess her age? Would you say she is 20-30-35?

At last she has found a face powder that really flatters her skin—makes it look younger and more enchanting!

Why Lady Esther Face Powder Is So Flattering

Lady Esther Face Powder is extra flattering because it's made differently. It isn't just mixed, just sifted, in the usual way. It's blown by Twin Hurricanes—blended with the speed and power of hurricanes—to look clearer, smoother and more flattering on your skin!

Because of this patented, exclusive method of hurricane blending, the texture of Lady Esther Face Powder is much smoother and finer than ordinary powder. The first touch of your puff spreads a delicate film of beauty on your skin, hiding little lines, little blemishes. And Lady Esther Face Powder clings longer, too—clings four long hours!

But the most exciting difference is in the shades. Lady Esther shades have a subtle new quality—because the color is blown in by hurricanes. Many women say that the Lady Esther shades are so fresh and alive that ordinary powder shades seem dull and drab by comparison.

Living Proof—In Your Own Mirror!

Why choose a face powder because it is expensive, or because of a clever package? Judge it only by its appearance on your skin!

Try Lady Esther Face Powder! Get the smallest size box, if you like—but try it! When you see how much smoother and younger it makes your skin look—it's time enough to get the largest and most economical size. But to prove this is the most flattering powder you have ever used, get the small-size box today!

Major Kassan And Bride on Wedding Trip

After their wedding trip, Maj. and Mrs. Robert J. Kassan will make their home at West Point, N. Y., where the bridegroom is stationed.

The bride is the formed Miss Rosealind Suchin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Z. Suchin of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and Major Kassan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kassan of Washington. The couple were married recently at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, with Rabbi Benjamin Shultz officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ice blue satin and short veil held with a coronet. Her corsage was of orchids. Miss Sylvia Kassan was her sister's maid of honor and Sergt. Alvin M. Suchin served as best man.

The bride was graduated from Highland Manor School and Junior College at Tarrytown-on-Hudson. Major Kassan is a graduate of George Washington Medical School, where he served on the faculty. He is a member of Upsilon Lamba Phi, Phi Epsilon Pi and Phi Delta Epsilon fraternities.

Frank A. Caflisches Now on Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Stephenson announce the marriage of their daughter, Marion Louise, to Pvt. Frank A. Caflish of the Air-Borne Troops, AUS. The ceremony took place at the Second Baptist Church on November 30, with the Rev. James P. Rodgers officiating.

The bride was graduated from Eastern High School and attended George Washington University. She is now connected with the Postoffice Department. The bridegroom, son of Mrs. F. A. Caflisch of Baraboo, Wis., is stationed at Fort Benning. The couple is now en route to Wisconsin, where they will visit the bridegroom's family.

Mrs. Austin Noonan Leaves Washington

Mrs. Austin Noonan left Thursday for Philadelphia and will visit relatives in Mahanoy City, Pa., before leaving for Oklahoma after Christmas to join her husband, Lieut. Noonan. Mrs. Noonan has been spending several days with Mrs. Charles W. O. Bunker and was guest of honor at a tea at Mrs. Bunker's home on Wednesday given by Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, chairman of the Gray Lady Unit at the Naval Medical Center. Mrs. Noonan has been in charge of all Red Cross activities at the center.

Concert Pianist To Be Presented By Committee

The Recreation Department of the District, cooperating with the war hospitality committee, will present Corpl. Gyorgy Sandor of the Army, concert pianist, in the second of its "Entertainment Please" concerts for Government workers tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock. The concert will take place in the Central Auditorium at Thirteenth and Clifton sts.

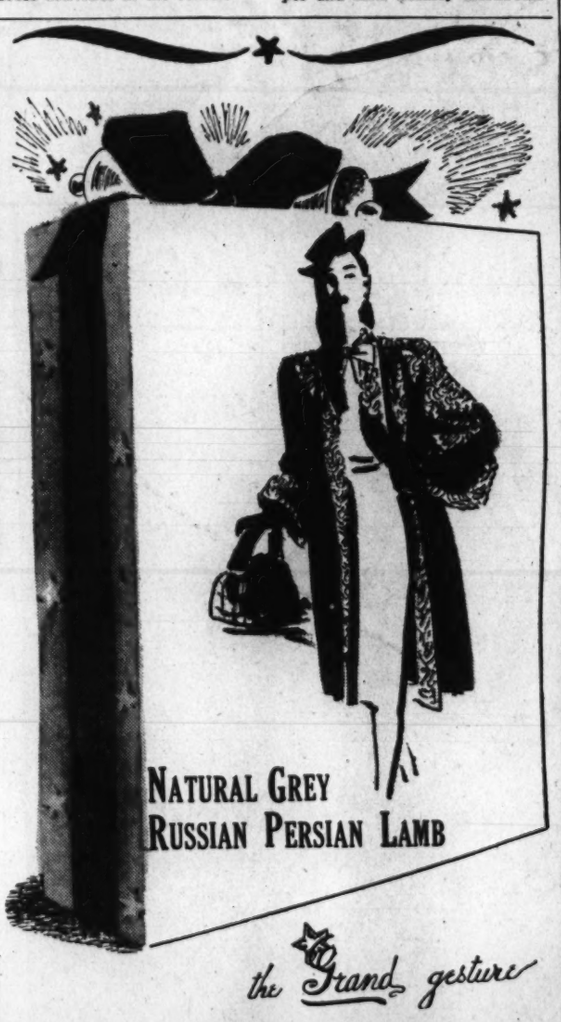
Corporal Sandor recently performed at a concert at the National Gallery of Art which was enthusiastically received, and before entering the Army performed at New York's Carnegie Hall. Other artists will be heard in future concerts in this series, the next to be on January 19. Tickets, which serve as reminders of date, time and place, can be obtained at the Recreation Department office, 3149 16th st., or from employe counselors and recreation workers with Government agencies. The series is directed by Mrs. Mary Davis, program organizer for the Recreation Department, assisted by a volunteer committee composed of Mrs. Stuart Godfrey, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. John H. Grace, jr., and Mrs. Jesse C. Johnson.

Get-Together of Washington Women Marks Gay Party

Bringing together an illustrious party of Washington women yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Oscar Chapman, wife of the Assistant Secretary of Interior, entertained at her home for Mrs. Edward Costigan, wife of the late Senator Costigan of Colorado.

Mrs. Costigan is in Washington to attend the Office of Price Administration consumers conference in reference to work with the organization that she is performing in Denver. Mrs. Chapman brought together a group of her Washington acquaintance for an old get-together.

Among the guests were Mrs. Henry Wallace, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Cordell Hull, Mrs. Claude Wickard, Mrs. Ellen Woodward, Mrs. Eugene Milliken, Mrs. Edward C. Johnson, Mrs. Emily Mills Blair, Mrs. Charles Brand, Mrs. Thomas Cajigas, Miss Ellis Meredith, Mrs. Harris Baldwin, Mrs. Ernest Lindley, Mrs. Leonie Crowley, Mrs. Henry Grady, Mrs. Samuel Herrick, Mrs. Lee Johnson, Mrs. Robert La Follette, Mrs. Aubrey Williams, Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Mrs. Joseph O'Mahoney, Miss Elizabeth Fackt, Miss Eleanor Dennison, Mrs. Raymond Clapper and Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck.



the Grand gesture

Certainly she's worth a few hundreds to you, to keep her warm and richly furred against intemperate weather. And certainly she's worthy of nothing less than Jandel's NATURAL GREY RUSSIAN PERSIAN LAMB, to last a long time, to enfold her in its smart, luxurious warmth. A royal fur for your queen. She deserves no less! Let her open the box and gasp with excited pleasure!

Mary E. Downey Addresses D. C. Alpha Xi Delta Alumnae

The District alumnae of Alpha Xi Delta, national women's fraternity, with chapters in 60 colleges and universities, met last night at 7:30 p. m. at 1851 Columbia rd. nw. Members of the District and Chevy Chase League of Penwomen were the guests.

The former president of the Chevy Chase League of Penwomen, Miss Mary Elizabeth Downey, spoke on "Character and Career as Affected by Reading."

Miss Downey is a distinguished lecturer, and her activities, publications and honors form the longest biographical sketch of any woman listed in Who's Who in the Nation's Capital. She has served as librarian of her own college, Denison University, at Granville, Ohio; has been assistant librarian at the Field Museum in Chicago, and for 30 summers directed the School for Librarians at Chautauqua, N. Y.

During the first World War Miss Downey collected 25,000 volumes for Fort Douglas and later organized the library three times to suit changing needs.

After traveling extensively, she came to Washington several years ago to retire, but her interests and activities continue to be so varied that she is affiliated and working with many national, State and local groups. She is a member of the Penwomen, District Federation of Clubs, Political Study Club, chairman of the District branch of National Woman's Party, and director of the first feminist library in the world, the Florence Bayard Hilles Library, located in the beautiful headquarters of the National Woman's Party, 144 B st. ne.

Arlington Women Have Yule Fete

The Women's Club of Arlington held a meeting and Christmas party yesterday in the Methodist parish hall.

The Christmas program was given by the department of fine arts, of which Mrs. H. M. Heiser is chairman.

Mrs. H. E. Head, program chairman, arranged a Christmas program of music and tableaux of Christmas scenes. Mrs. Mildred Echols opened the program with a piano solo, Gounod's "Ave Maria."

Others taking part in the program were Mrs. Paul Hines, Mrs. Walter Wolf, Mrs. John Gallagher, Mrs. Paul Robertson, Mrs. Ralph Lamar, Mrs. C. E. Ingling Miss Diane Tyson, Miss Gay Hume Green and Ralph Lamar and Mrs. Charles Shafer.

Mrs. Harry Schwalm was chairman of refreshments, Mrs. Paul Hines chairman of decorations.

There was a Santa Claus and Christmas grab bag.

Puerto Rican League to Meet

"Christmas Customs in Many Lands" will be the topic at the meeting of the Puerto Rican American Women's League, at 8 p. m. today at the home of the acting president, Mrs. V. J. O'Kelliher, 3825 Fulton st. nw.

Yuletide customs of the following countries will be presented: Spain, by Mrs. Carmen Quiones; England, by Mrs. Rene Jones Taylor; Puerto Rico, by Mrs. Delia Burns; Italy and Syria, by Mrs. O'Kelliher, and the United States, by Mrs. Walter Burke. Mrs. Elsa Morales Crandall and Mrs. Monsita Bomberger will have charge of the music, and Spanish and English Christmas carols will be sung.

Coughing COLDS

PENETRATES
to upper bronchial tubes with soothing medicinal vapors.
STIMULATES
chest and back surfaces like a warming poultice.
KEEPS WORKING FOR HOURS

MILLIONS OF MOTHERS relieve distress of colds this double-action way because it's so effective—so easy! Just rub throat, chest, and back with good old Vicks VapoRub at bedtime.

Instantly VapoRub goes to work—2 ways at once, as illustrated above—to relieve coughing spasms, help clear congestion in upper bronchial tubes, and invite comforting sleep. Often by morning most of the misery of the cold is gone. When a cold strikes, try time-tested Vicks VapoRub.

C. U. Child Leader Forms Club To Aid Parents

Dr. Dorothy E. Donley, Ph. D., M. D. of the Child Care Clinic of the Catholic University of America was guest speaker at the first meeting of the Study Circle of the St. Paul's Academy Guild Sunday, 8 p. m., at the Catholic Charities Building, 1441 Rhode Island ave. nw.

Dr. Donely helped organize the study circle. It is not to be a formal study club, rather it is to be a gathering place for the exchange of ideas and guides to help parents with adolescent children. At each meeting in the future there will be representatives from the Children's Bureau and Welfare Conferences in the city.

The mothers of the St. Paul's Academy Guild feel that they can in their way stamp out "juvenile" delinquency by obliterating "parental" delinquency.

Park Official Will Speak

Edward Freeland, superintendent of Shenandoah National Park, will be the principal speaker at the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club dinner tomorrow at Barker Hall, YWCA, at 6:30 p. m.

Assisted by Drew Chick, naturalist of the National Capital Parks, Freeland will present color slides on the Shenandoah National Park area. Plans for future development will also be discussed.

Congressman D. K. Hoch, from Berks County, Penn., who is president of the Blue Mountain Eagle Climbing Club, will talk on outdoor subjects.

Members of the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club and their guests are invited to attend. Members of outing or hiking clubs from other cities will be welcome.

Faculty Women's Club To Hold Tea at GWU

The Faculty Women's Club of the George Washington University will hold a meeting and tea at the home of Mrs. William C. Johnstone, jr., 3065 University terrace nw., Friday at 2:30 p. m.

Members will hear a review of Lloyd C. Douglas' book, "The Robe," by the Rev. Walter M. Lockett, jr., pastor of the Community Methodist Church, Arlington. There will be group singing of Christmas carols, led by Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, wife of the president of the George Washington University.

Winter Frolic

Victory B'Nai Brith women will hold a winter frolic at the Hayloft Club Saturday at 9 p. m. It will be a combination dance, card party and entertainment. Proceeds from this event will go to their war service fund.

Miss Idy Asarch and her committee is in charge of arrangements and Miss Harriet Miller is chairman of entertainment.

Mason Gives Creditable Violin Recital

By Ray C. B. Brown

Howard University School of Music presents Bernard Lee Mason in a violin recital on Monday night in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel. Accompanist: Warner Lawson. Program: Chaconne (Vitali), Concerto in G minor (Bruch), Prelude and Allegro in the Style of Pugnani (Kreisler), Slavonic Dance in G major (Dvorak-Kreisler) Romance from Concerto in D minor (Vieniawski), Prize Song from "Die Meistersinger" (Wagner-Wilhelmj), Spanish Dance from "La Vida Breve" (Falla-Kreisler).

Giving the second recital in the eleventh concert series of Howard University school of music, Bernard Lee Mason played the violin so well last evening in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel that he deserved a larger audience. It is unsafe to assume that an artist is not worth hearing because he is relatively inconspicuous, and many an enjoyable occasion has been missed on that assumption. Mason does not challenge the famous virtuosi, but he plays with a technical surety, a firm and expressive tone, and the uttermost sincerity of artistic purpose. His training has been sound and he applies it with musical instinct.

His major offerings were the Chaconne by Tommaso Antonio Vitali and the G minor Concerto by Max Bruch. On the principle that it is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all, it is better for a composer to be known 300 years after his birth by one work than by none. That is the fate of Vitali, whose chamber music has been forgotten while the Chaconne lives on. Written before Bach's Chaconne, Vitali's is at least worthy of comparison in style, if not in spiritual content.

The Bruch Concerto is, of course, one of the romantic masterpieces, charged with poetic inspiration and made memorable by its melodic beauties. Mason played it with emotional urgency and a communicative sympathy, while Warner Lawson aided him ably with the orchestral reduction. A concluding group contained only two original violin pieces: Kreisler's "Prelude and Allegro in the style of Pugnani" and the second movement from Vieniavski's D minor Concerto. The other three numbers were transcriptions by Kriesler and Wilhelmj. When so much violin literature is available, one wishes that violinists would enlarge our knowledge of it and forget about transcriptions.

Citizens Group Rescinds Action

The Manor Park Citizens Association last night reconsidered and withdrew a resolution which it recently submitted to the Federation of Citizens Associations requuesting that street car and bus tokens be sold in business places and on streetcar platforms.

The motion was withdraw in view of the manpower shortage. A resolution requesting more inbound buses from 5th and Sheridan sts. nw. during the morning rush hours was adopted.

Navy Honors D. C. Officer, Weather Expert

It was upon the weather predictions of Comdr. Richard C. Steere, husband of Mrs. Christine H. Steere, 1529 Varnum st. that the success of Allied landings in French Morocco, Sicily and Salerno depended, it was revealed in Algiers yesterday.

It was up to him to tell in advance what kind of surf the troops would meet in their landings.

Each time he was able to assure Vice Admiral H. K. Hewitt, commander of U. S. naval forces in North African waters, that at the hours chosen for debarking the sea would be calm enough to permit beaching of the great American amphibious forces without heavy casualties from winds and waves.

Awarded Decoration

As a result he now wears the ribbon of the Legion of Merit, and has a new sprinkling of gray hairs.

"I was getting gray hair by the minute two days out of Casablanca a year ago this month," he said. "The storm had developed over Iceland. If it followed the classic pattern it would have set up huge swells off French Morocco, which has one of the most exposed coast lines in the world."

At such times a 50-foot surf may develop. Troops attempting to land under these conditions would be drowned by the thousands. But Steere knew that the storm was moving fast, so fast that he did not believe it would have the usual effect on Morocco.

"I was burning up the books looking at charts and I made 20 different calculations," he said. "That night, 36 hours before the landing, I told the admiral the surf conditions would permit us to get ashore. Then I figured the deed was done and went to bed. I slept all right."

Landing A Success

Admiral Hewitt, under whom Steere and other Navy men like to serve because, even under the heaviest stress, "he never gets nervous himself or makes you feel nervous," had complete faith. He went ahead with the landing as planned, which came off well in the 3 to 4 foot surf Steere had forecast.

In the assault on Sicily, Admiral Hewitt again called in the commander, who directs one of the first Navy aerological units assigned to amphibious operations. A freak, 33-knot wind sprang up the day before "D" day, whipping up whitecapped waves, made hundreds of soldiers seasick, worried their officers.

Not Steere. He felt the wind's pulse with an anemometer, drew some weather maps.

"I could see it would be short-lived and knew we would be all right once we got in the lee of the island" he said. "We advised no change in plans."

Sure enough, the wind died down after nightfall and sea swells and surf diminished. Steere then called the turn again, forecasting the weather for the attack on Salerno in Italy. It was almost a vacation by contrast to the other landings, he said.

WOMEN NEEDED

For Work in Food Stores

Starting Salary $24.80

For Six 8-Hour Days

A Real Opportunity for Women Who Want to Help With the War Effort

The War Manpower Commission stated: "War work is more than work in a factory. The woman who waits on trade in a grocery store is doing an important war job. She is helping to keep war production going by helping war production workers stay on the job."

Consider These Attractive Benefits:

1. No experience necessary.
2. Two weeks training at full salary.
3. Opportunity for advancement.
4. Work near your home.
5. Pleasant working conditions.
6. Opportunity to secure Group Life Insurance, Hospitalization and Sick Benefits at a very low cost.
7. No Sunday or holiday work.
8. Convenient working hours.

THAT'S A FUNNY PLACE TO WEAR HIS SKATES!
OH, I DON'T KNOW!
THAT'S WHERE HE DOES MOST OF HIS SKATING!

JOE PALOOKA Strong Boy By Ham Fisher

I WAS STRONG AS A BULL. MOM'S GOULASH IS THE ANSWER. I GUESS IT'S GOT MORE A THEM UH— VITAMINS THAN A WHOLE FACTRY OF PILLS.
HEY WALSH— WHY DON'TCHA GET A FREIGHT ELEVATOR? THIS IS TOO HEAVY TO CARRY TO THE CELLAR!
HAW! HAW— HEY JOE—
FELLAS USED T'KID ME A LOT— BUT I WOULDN'T FIGHT— I HATED FIGHTIN' AN'— HULLO SAP. I HEAR KNOBBY'S GONNA GET SOME HARNESS FOR YOU.
'SCUSE ME— I'M IN A HURRY.
PSSST!
STILL DO— EXCEPT WHEN I SEE A LITTLE FELLA ATTACKED BY A BULLY—
OOP..
OR SOME KINDA INJUSTICE. THEN I'D REALLY GIT SORE.
YOU SHUNT OF DIRTIED THESE HERE PACKAGES— THEY AINT MY PROPERTY.

DON'T MOVE, HERR SWENSON— YOU ARE NOW IN THE HANDS OF THE GESTAPO!
WHAT ABOUT THIS GIRL? THERE'S NOTHING IN OUR PLAN ABOUT HER—OBVIOUSLY SHE MUST COME ALONG— WE CAN'T LEAVE HER BEHIND!

SUPERMAN Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

OWW!
FANTASTIC NOTIONS— HMPH! I'M STILL CONVINCED THAT UNCLE CLARK IS UNCLE SUPERMAN!
IT'S SIMPLE 'RITHMETIC! I SAW SUPERMAN FLY INTO A ALLEY ACROSS THE STREET— AND THEN UNCLE CLARK CAME OUT!
SO, NOT ONLY IN THE INTERESTS OF TRUTH, BUT TO SAVE MY REPUTATION, I'VE GOTTA PROVE MY THEORY!

GYPSY! PLEASE! MISS CHATTERBY AND MRS. GUSHMOOR ARE MY GUESTS!
I'M SORRY, MRS. WORTH! BUT NO OLD SATCHEL-MOUTH IS GONNA LIE ABOUT MY BEHAVIOR!
YOU DENY THAT MAX FALCON AND SOME YOUNG MAN WERE FIGHTING OVER YOU DURING THE BLACKOUT?
THERE WAS A MIXUP OVER ESCORTS AT THE DANCE.. BUT PRACTICALLY NO ONE WAS KILLED!
AN' YOU TWO DIRT-CASTERS HAVE GOTTA NERVE! TRYIN' TO CRAB MY ACT WITH MRS. WORTH!
WE DON'T HAVE TO STAY HERE AND BE INSULTED BY A CHEAP SHOWGIRL!
CHEAP, AM I? YOU SHOULD LIVE LONG ENOUGH TO PAY MY TAKE FOR ONE PERFORMANCE! GET MOVIN'! I PRESUME YOU PARKED YOUR BROOMSTICKS OUTSIDE...?

ARE YOU GOING TO GET RID OF THESE OLD SHIRTS?
NO, NO! NOT ON YOUR LIFE!
HOW ABOUT THESE OLD TROUSERS? THEY'RE WRECKS
OKAY. I WANT 'EM KEPT WOULD YOU MIND TELLING ME WHAT YOU PLAN TO DO WITH THEM?
WEAR 'EM WHEN I HAVE SOME DIRTY JOB TO DO— LIKE CLEANING THE CELLAR
WHY, I THOUGHT YOU WERE GOING TO WEAR THOSE OLD CLOTHES WHEN YOU CLEANED THE CELLAR!
OH— TOO MUCH TROUBLE TO CHANGE 'EM

DIXIE DUGAN A Relapse! By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel

"Christmas Eve in a South Pacific Fox Hole"—Even in the jungle-swamps the boys take time out for a prayer and a thought of home on Christmas Eve.

"Christmas Eve at a North African Air Base"—The Christmas mail comes through on a transport plane for the soldiers, sailors and paratroopers in Africa.

SEE...

"Christmas Eve From the Top of the World"—A full-relief sculpture of the top of the globe . . . with American fighting men in action on every front.

You are cordially invited to view this unusual Christmas display, which has been created and built by The Hecht Co.... and dedicated to America's War Effort... and to the continued selling of War Savings Bonds and Stamps. See at first hand, in complete and life-like detail, how our fighting men will spend Christmas Eve throughout the world's battle areas. Many of our boys will be on the firing line—many in fox-holes in the South Pacific... many in battered Sicilian villages... others may be afloat in life-rafts on the North Atlantic... still others in Japanese Concentration Camps. You'll see all this... and more... when you view The Hecht Co.'s War Bond windows... now open for public view.

A LETTER FROM HENRY MORGENTHAU, JR., SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY, TO CHARLES B. DULCAN, SR., VICE PRES. AND GENERAL MANAGER OF THE HECHT CO.

Vice President and General Manager
The Hecht Company
Washington, D. C.

November 22, 1943

Dear Mr. Dulcan:

Your Christmas War Bond windows, dramatizing as they do the way our fighting men will be spending their Christmas this year, are a most unusual and valuable contribution not only to the people of Washington, but to all America. These three-dimensional window displays cannot help but bring home to all who view them the true spirit of Christmas, 1943—a spirit of understanding and communion with our boys; a desire to share their Christmas here on the home front.

From my own personal observation in the actual battle zones, I can attest to the accuracy of the heart-stirring scenes you portray. It is my hope that just as the Hecht Company helped lead the way with its inspiring presentation of the "Four Freedoms" display which later swept the Nation, so this Christmas War Bond display will serve as a model to retailers all across the land. For I believe, with you, that the best possible expression of the will to share this Christmas with our boys lies in buying and giving the one gift which will most surely and speedily bring those boys home—War Bonds.

Sincerely yours,

Henry Morgenthau Jr.
